County Requests Law on Tax Addition

By Lynn Mulvaney

KINGSTON—Concern for the county's economy echoed throughout a marathon four-hour session of the Ulster County Legislature Thursday during which provision was made for the implementation of an additional one per cent sales tax, creation of an industrial development agency and a youth bureau.

The board voted 18 to 12 with two abstentions and an absence to request

state legislation providing the increase in sales tax in order to keep its options open and hold down the real property tax. Others felt off-track betting would provide the revenue when needed. Still others advocated keeping a tight rein on spending.

Legislator Philip Davis, R-Dist. 7, said "If the county had the sales tax option last fall, we wouldn't have had to raise the real estate tax."

Minority Leader Louis M. Klein, D-Dist. 6, who previously agreed to co-sponsor the legislation and changed his mind, said he "cannot rely on the will of the majority to hold the sales tax in abeyance." He felt it would be imposed "to bail the legislature out of reckless spending during the balance of the year."

Countering, Melvin Mones, R-City, took exception to Klein's statement saying the legislature can't spend beyond its 1976 budget.

Mones also indicated that if the county imposes the tax without having the state's approval of the increase, "the City of Kingston would be robbed of $375,380 it now gleams from its sales tax."

Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago, R-Dist. 8, said he talked about preempting the city sales tax and Koenig reportedly told Savago, "No way, Pete, we need it."

The additional one per cent tax would mean $4 million to apply to the 1977 budget, according to Majority Leader Ernest J. Gardner, R-Dist. 5, "if it is needed."

Several Democrats called it a regressive tax and suggested that the county take "a deep look at OTB."

After consideration for a number of years, the legislature approved overwhelmingly its request that the New York State Legislature provide for the creation of an industrial development agency embracing the entire county. It is seen as a stimulus for new industry as well as the expansion of existing industries.

The creation of the youth bureau came to fruition despite the board's previous stance against establishing it at this time because of the tight economy.

Since then it has been learned that the youth board has received approval to hire an administrator and secretary with CETA funds if they are applied for now.

Once the office is created, $120,000 in state aid will be available for the county for youth programs.

Further concern was expressed for the county payroll in view of the fact that the legislators have conveyed the desire to hold to the present county employment levels and reduce the number of employees through attrition.

A move to control the payroll was made by William R. West, R-Dist. 2 but the proposal was referred to the Finance Committee by a vote of 18-14.

Economic priorities also came into the picture in controversial votes on proposals to demolish the old Buick garage and prepare plans for construction of a highway department administrative building. The board voted 28 to 4 to demolish the garage to make way for parking space and approved by a vote of 24 to 8, the hiring of architect Thomas H. Clancy to design the administration building on Hurley Avenue.

A tax break for homeowners using solar energy was defeated by a tie vote of 16 to 16 after a move to refer it to the Tax Base Study Committee was also defeated.

State Officials Confirm Report

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON—Officials from the State Department of Taxation and Finance have again confirmed what Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, D-101st Dist. previously stated; the fact that Ulster County could increase its sales tax by as much as two percentage points last December without approval of the state legislature and without "preempting" any of the city's sales tax revenue.

In the case of state approval, it wasn't necessary because the tax outside the city is only five per cent and the county can on its own volition go to seven per cent any time it chooses.

In the case of preempting the city's sales tax share, the county had no choice back in December because the law requires it give the city six months notice prior to the end of the city's fiscal year (which would have been June 30) and that wasn't possible in December.

The county has the option when preempting city sales tax but one and one half per cent of the city's two per cent sales tax is sheltered from any county takeover. The county could have, with proper notice, taken one-half per cent of the city's two per cent sales tax, depriving the city of $387,500 in sales tax revenues.

The city, based on the existing one per cent sales tax collected for the county, is now paying $775,000 a year to the county in sales taxes.

Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago, R-Dist. 8, says he doesn't want to take sales tax revenue from the city nor does he want to increase the county sales tax while the city's sales tax remains the same, thus the move for an eight per cent sales tax which would require state legislative approval.

With an eight per cent sales tax the county could increase the sales tax one per cent across the board, raising it from a total of seven per cent to eight per cent in the city and from five per cent to six per cent in the county.

Howls of Protest at Paltz

NEW PALTZ—The howls of the Asian Studies Department were the loudest at the State University College at New Paltz Thursday, and lasted overnight, as President Stanley K. Coffman Jr. announced just where the state budget ax would fall.

More than a dozen Asian studies students were in their second day of a fast and occupation of Dr. Coffman's ninth floor office Thursday, and were prepared to bed down on the carpet despite possible forcible eviction to protest the cuts that threaten to reduce that department by 50 per cent.

An Asian Studies major, Ann Carli, explained the action to the Freeman. She mentioned specifically the total elimination of all Asian language from the university as ludicrous. "If I were to graduate with this major and look for a job, they'd laugh at me with no language," she pointed out.

If a staff of eight is cut back to four, the department would inevitably lose its reputation as "one of the few strong departments at New Paltz," she said and would not be able to attract students in an area of emerging importance.

She had transferred to New Paltz particularly because of the strength of the department, she said, as had several other sit-in students. "I'll be graduated, but I feel I have to fight for it," said Ms.

Carli.

The fasting, following a "Gandhi method," started early Wednesday. Students occupied the office until 5 p.m., then returned the next morning to begin what they expected would be a long vigil.

Almost all students interviewed Thursday predicted a continuing attempt to build political pressure against cutbacks in the state university budget, and against the apparent governmental trend of "sacrificing future generations for the sake of expediency," as one put it.

Some 27 staff "lines have had to be trimmed (in addition to 15 cut earlier this year) to save $253,000, according to an order from Albany. A "line" is generally considered to be equal to one full time position, although there are many variables. The budget recommended that 12 of these be teaching positions, but that was cut by the special joint college committee to 10.5 by cutting four more people in support services and juggling some others.

As stated by Coffman the positions affected will be: four lines lost in Asian Studies, eliminating Chinese language (Japanese and Hindi have already been axed), and effectively wiping out Southeast Asia and Japan as areas of study.

Two lines would be lost in African Studies, thereby "eliminating it as a formal study," said Dr. Coffman; a half-line of Jewish Studies; one line of art studio; one of biology; a half-line of sociology; and a half-line of extension. The major changes the administration made from the committee recommendations were to eliminate history cutbacks, double Asian Studies trimming and add African Studies to cut the list.

The whole matter is a bitter business for all concerned, those involved more than that," commented the president near the end of the 90-minute low key address and discussion in a lecture center filled with faculty and students.

He explained that faculty positions were trimmed "not necessarily in areas of greatest demand . . . a high percentage are tenured . . . the union contract must be kept in mind at every step." He said the overriding consideration was how best to serve the students," stating several times that his decisions in Asian and African studies were made because of relatively low recent student enrollment.

Vehemently Oppose Merger

KINGSTON—The proposal that the Ulster County Blood Bank merge with the Greater New York Blood Program met with considerable opposition at an informational meeting today at the Holiday Inn.

Henry Groppler, the blood bank president, explained that his group had been ordered by the New York State Department of Health, to immediately stop collecting blood outside the Kingston City Laboratory. Affiliation with a Greater New York Program would furnish the necessary licensing to continue present collection programs.

Dr. Carlo Ehrlich, the executive director of the Greater New York Blood Bank, said that his group would take over responsibility toward a collection of blood until the county blood bank's membership reaches a decision on affiliating.

Most of the objections voiced by the 25 persons at the meeting came over the board's alleged lack of communication with members and alleged failure to explore viable alternatives to affiliation with the New York group.

Dr. Ehrlich said that affiliation with his group would mean reduced costs to blood recipients because of the more economical procedures inherent in a larger organization.

One alternative suggested was for the Ulster County Blood Bank to obtain the necessary licenses that would enable it to continue its present collection program, but Groppler said that such a move would be difficult and very expensive.

City Waste Bids Suspect

(Editor's note: In this concluding article of a two-part series, further questions are raised concerning action on the City of Kingston's solid waste disposal problems.)

By Matt Spireng

KINGSTON—There appears to be a strong possibility that bids submitted last November on a contract to haul city solid waste from a transfer station within Kingston to an as yet undisclosed landfill site did not conform to specifications bidders were supposedly required to meet, meaning the contract about to be signed with Spada Sanitation Inc. which will cost the city an estimated $3.8 million over the next 15 years could wind up being thrown out in a court case.

The problems hinge on one paragraph in the specifications picked up by potential bidders last November, which states: "Qualifications of bidder: Bidders (sic) must certify to the Board of Public Works of the City of Kingston that he has the facilities to dispose of said solid wastes hauled from the corporate limits of the City of Kingston."

The paragraph seems to imply that at the time the bid was submitted the bidder had to certify he had a place to dump the city's garbage. Woodrow Diehl, administrative assistant to the BPW was asked, if the bidders (there were only two, Spada Sanitation Inc. of Kingston and Dutchess Sanitation Inc. of Poughkeepsie) submit such certification when they submitted bids.

"We assume because they submitted a bid they had a place to dump," Diehl said, adding that certification might have been received by the city since the bids were submitted.

Mayor Francis R. Koenig says his interpretation of the paragraph is that once a contract is signed with the successful bidder the successful bidder must certify he has a place to dump.

Then why, Koenig was asked, do the specifications elsewhere refer to "contractor" and once to the "successful bidder," but nowhere else to just the "bidder" or "bidders"? If the mayor's interpretation of the paragraph is correct then should it not have read: "Contractor must . . ." or "Successful bidder must . . .?"

"I can't answer that; the corporation counsel (Aaron Klein) drew it up," Koenig said.

Klein could not be reached for comment Wednesday or Thursday.

A telephone call Wednesday to Spada Sanitation Inc., which has been awarded the hauling contract at an estimated cost to the city of some $250,000 per year for the next 15 years (with an added five-year option), elicited the following information from Theresa Spada, who identified herself as the daughter-in-law of Michael Spada Sr., president of the firm, who was not available.

Asked where the firm planned to dump the solid waste from Kingston, she said that "about a month ago" the firm gave contracts it has to dump in "several" landfills to the city. She was told that city officials interviewed on the subject by the Freeman had said nothing about such contracts. She did not identify the sites, but suggested we either call back later to speak to Michael Spada Sr. or contact his attorney, Vincent G. Bradley.

An immediate call to Koenig was met with the answer that he knew nothing about such contracts and the suggestion that we check with Klein.

Moments later Theresa Spada called the Freeman and informed us that she had spoken to her father-in-law and he said to relay the following message: He didn't know why we couldn't get the requested information from the city. "He said when the right time comes all the information will be given to you," she related.

Later in the afternoon, Spada's attorney, Vincent G. Bradley returned our call. Informed that we had some questions to ask Michael Spada and were earlier referred to him, Bradley said, "It's in relationship to a client and I'm not even allowed to tell you I represent him."

The question remains, where will Spada Sanitation be dumping? All indications are that he will not be allowed to dump Kingston refuse in the towns of Saugerties or Ulster, both of which have taken action of late to prevent such dumping.

Asked about potential Spada Sanitation dump sites, Koenig said Michael Spada during a casual conversation had mentioned three: Plattekill, Saugerties "and one other." The one other, the mayor said, "was down the line somewhere, I don't recall where."

An application for a permit to haul garbage submitted by Spada Sanitation Thursday to the Ulster County Health Department lists only two dump sites: the Town of Ulster and the City of Kingston. Spada Sanitation currently has such a permit to haul which expires March 31. The applications for the permits require that dump sites be listed.

A Showdown in Boiceville

Dr. Frank Marlow, superintendent of schools, stands at the entrance to the district offices in Boiceville Thursday. Marlow reported for work at 9 a.m. after receiving a stay of his dismissal by the board from the Commissioner of Education, but was barred from the office by John Mower, vice-president of the Ontario School Board, who claimed the commissioner's directive didn't entitle him to return to work. Several hours later, attorneys for the Education Department ruled that Marlow should be allowed to resume his duties. The superintendent occupied his office this morning without incident. Human Rights Day

KINGSTON—Gov. Hugh Carey in his proclaiming today as Human Rights Day reflects back to the historic day, March 12, 1945, when the State Legislature enacted its first law against discrimination.

The Rev. John H. Gilmore, director of Kingston's Human Rights Commission, in pointing to the proclamation, said that with the signing of the law, this state became the first to pass legislation designed to prevent practices of discrimination in employment because of race, color, creed or national origin.

In 31 years since the passage of this historic law, New York State has retained its leadership in progressive Human Rights Legislation. The New York Human Rights Law now prohibits discrimination in areas of employment, housing, education, public accommodations and credit. In addition to race, color or national origin, it is now forbidden to discriminate because of age, sex, disability or marital status.

The City's Commission on Human Rights is located in City Hall, 1 Meadow Street. Anyone regardless of race, color, creed, sex, etc., who feels that they have been discriminated against in any of the above areas is urged to call the office at 331-5124, or come to the office.

The Human Rights Commission is also the Affirmative Action Commission for the City.

PERB Report to City a $300,000 Stipend

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON—A Public Employee Relations Board fact finder's report delivered to city officials earlier this week contains recommendations for salary increases and pension plans that could cost the city more than $300,000 a year.

The biggest dollar item is fact finder Seth Towse's recommendation that the city adopt a 20-year retirement plan for its 78 professional firemen. Based on last year's departmental personnel budget of just over $840,000 and a 20.6 per cent cost factor, the retirement alone would cost the city close to $175,000 a year.

City police have had a 20-year retirement plan for the past five years. City firemen now have a 25-year retirement plan.

Both departments had asked the city for raises in excess of $2,000 per man per year but Mayor Francis R. Koenig, faced with a $20 per thousand tax increase this year and with a decline of $2.9 million in assessed property value, claimed poverty and refused any and all raises.

The fact finder recommended an $868 raise per man for the fire fighters for a total of just under $67,000 and $850 per man for the city's 75 police officers for a total of just under $64,000 per year.

Neither Koenig nor Harry Hornbeck, president of Local 461 of the Professional Fire Fighters Association, would comment on the fact finder's report. Koenig said he was meeting with Corporation Counsel Aaron E. Klein Monday to review the report; Hornbeck said he will meet with his local tomorrow. PBA President John Riggins was not available for comment.

The fact finder, contacted in Loudenville, said he was not at liberty to comment on specifics of his report. It is due for official release next week.

Towse did detail some of the procedures to be followed if the parties do not accept his report, a conclusion most observers see as foregone.

Assuming the fact finder's report is rejected—by the city as too much, by the unions as not enough—binding arbitration becomes necessary. Each side will choose an arbitrator, with PERB to choose a third arbitrator to form the panel.

Sources indicate that PERB arbitration panels tend to use fact finder's reports as a basis for judgment.

Whether Koenig's threat to fire police and firemen if they are granted a raise can be enforced remains to be seen. Sources indicated that such a threat might be considered to be an unfair labor practice and could be subject to arbitration in itself.

The city is also at impasse with its 300-member Department of Public Works labor force. A fact finder's report is pending on that situation.

Gorman Named to CS Commission

KINGSTON—Although 30 out of 32 legislators extolled the many attributes of Dr. Gerald P. Gorman, former minority leader of the legislature, before naming him as a member of the Ulster County Civil Service Commission Thursday night, two other candidates names were advanced by the Democrats before his appointment was finalized.

In what was seen as political maneuvering, the Democratic legislators nominated a former Republican legislator, Brian R. White, who switched his party affiliation to the Democrats last year. They wished to name White to replace Arthur Ewig, a Democratic Civil Service commissioner who resigned. Midway through the vote of the county legislature when the tally was 10 to 6 against White, Minority Leader Louis M. Klein withdrew the resolution nominating White and indicated he would subsequently nominate a Conservative for the post.

Klein said he was not voting against Dr. Gorman but suggested instead that the board appoint the doctor to the Board of Health. The legislature later appointed Dr. John A. Olivet to that post.

When it was the Republicans' time to nominate a candidate, they selected Dr. Gorman, a Democrat, praising him highly for his splendid record with the legislature.

It was then that Klein moved to table the appointment and recommended William Jackson for the post.

All but two legislators, Thomas Nyquist, D-Dist. 8, and Kathleen Quick, D-City, voted for Dr. Gorman.

In other action the board voted to:

- Fund the county nutritional program for the elderly, sponsored by Ulster County Community Action.
- Reaffirm its support of a moratorium on nuclear power plants "with no time limit."
- Authorize $60,467 in mass transportation funds which are to be funded by state aid and gifts from local transportation lines.
- Request the State Legislature to mandate public hearings on property acquisition by the New York State Division for Youth.
- Study the coordinating of building and fire codes within the towns and throughout the county, establishing and enforcing occupancy quotas.
- Authorize an agreement between Ulster and Greene Counties to care for Greene County's TB patients.
- Engage in a study of a telephone alert jury attendance plan.
- Provide $746 for the People's Place Project at 101

Abel Street, a pilot project to aid the elderly.

- Request the State Legislature to amend the Civil Service Law to allow credit points for provisional employees.
- Award a $232,906 bid made by Ayvee Construction Co., for the construction of the Phoenixia Bridge.

- Restrict imported solid and liquid waste in the county.
- A move to establish a special committee to consider a consumer protection code and establish a consumer affairs office was referred to the Sealer and Weights Committee.

Candidates Hit Out at K's Plea

United Press International
Presidential candidates are jumping all over Secretary of State Henry Kissinger for suggesting they soften their criticism of President Ford's foreign policy.

"American foreign policy is too important to be left to petty partisan consideration," said Democrat Henry Jackson. "This is the first time in my memory that a secretary of state in an election year has taken the stump."

Ronald Reagan, campaigning in Chicago for Tuesday's Illinois GOP primary, also was angered: "If our foreign policy can be ruined by telling people the truth about it," he said, "then it can't be much of a foreign policy."

Democrat Jimmy Carter vowed in Chicago that, if elected, he will fire Kissinger. "I don't think Henry Kissinger trusts the American people," Carter said.

Kissinger didn't mention names when he told the Boston World Affairs Council Thursday that America's biggest foreign policy problem is division at home. But his words were clearly aimed at the men who hope to unseat his boss, particularly Reagan and Jackson for attacking his attempts at detente with Russia.

Kissinger said the country "has permanent interests and concerns that must be preserved beyond this election." There will be more divisiveness and recrimination, he said, "if the quest for short-term political gain prevails over all other consideration."

One candidate liked what he said — his boss, President Ford, campaigning in Rockford, Ill., praised "the statesmanship of Henry Kissinger."

"We are at peace and that is a testament in itself," Ford said. Carter, meanwhile, commended the New York legislature for passing a bill that will identify on the April 6 primary ballots just which candidate the list of delegates supports.

Jackson, because of his strong organization in the big state, stood to gain the most from the lack of identification.

Morris Udall, trying to build a liberal coalition for the New York campaign, also was pleased by the legislature's action, but said Jackson still must be considered the New York favorite.

Julian Bond, the black state senator from Atlanta who ran for vice president at the 1972 Democratic convention, announced he will support Udall because he "didn't develop a social conscience just yesterday."

Bond said Carter, his fellow Georgian, is "too far to the right for me."

George Wallace told a St. Louis news conference the only way to convince voters he is in good health is to work full time, travel all over the country, and run a rigorous schedule — which, he said, he has done.

Fred Harris, campaigning in Milwaukee, said his "next real first-rate push" will be in the April 27 Pennsylvania primary.

And former governor Michael V. DiSalle of Ohio called a press conference later today in Washington to announce formation of a "John Glenn for President Committee." Glenn, the first American to orbit the earth, is a senator from Ohio.

Church Raps Nixon Stance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Declaring he really did not have to explain his actions, Richard M. Nixon has spelled out his view that a president has a "sovereign" right to break laws in the name of national security.

The former president Thursday told his lawyers to release 34 pages of sworn answers to 77 written questions from the Senate intelligence committee on a variety of intelligence related issues.

The committee, headed by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, had forwarded the questions to Nixon in preparation for its final report on abuses of the intelligence agencies. Church denounced Nixon's "sovereign" concept as "pernicious and dangerous."

In a preface to his responses, Nixon said neither a president nor a former president could be compelled to testify concerning the conduct of his office, but that he would answer voluntarily.

It was the second release of Nixon testimony in as many days. A civil suit deposition, in which Nixon discussed wiretaps on 13 government officials and four reporters in 1969 to find who leaked word of secret U.S. bombing raids on Cambodia, was published Wednesday.

Nixon said in Thursday's answers that he as president had sanctioned:

- A covert CIA operation in Chile in 1970 to prevent the election of Marxist Salvador Allende as president, although he claimed no part in the intervention which resulted in the 1973 coup in which Allende was killed.
- A massive, coordinated intelligence operation in 1970 to combat violent protests, terrorism and bombings.
- A Secret Service telephone tap of his brother, Donald Nixon, in 1970 to check on his business dealings.

A Loaf for Jimmy

Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter accepts a loaf of rye bread from well-wishers in Chicago. The former Georgia governor, who won the Florida primary earlier this week, is campaigning for votes in the March 16 Illinois primary. (UPI)

Nyquist Astounded

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — State Education Commissioner Ewald B. Nyquist claimed he was "astounded by the insensitive action" of the state Consumer Protection Board, after it announced Thursday it would sue Nyquist's department to obtain records dealing with private vocational schools.

Nyquist said his department has tried to cooperate with the consumer board. But its director, Rosemary S. Pooler, claimed her staff had been trying to get the documents since last October, with no success.

Ms. Pooler said the material was needed to determine whether the vocational schools were giving students a fair shake.

Favors Earlier Budget Hearings

ALBANY—Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey, D-101st Dist., has co-sponsored a bill which passed the assembly last month which will require county legislatures to hold public hearings on their upcoming budgets on Oct. 25, rather than after election day.

"No longer will county legislatures be able to conceal from the voters the true condition of the county's fiscal affairs until after election day," said Hinchey. "Too often the voters are promised no tax increases and treated to visions of a comfortable surplus during the election campaign only to learn immediately afterwards that taxes are going to have to be increased drastically in order to avoid a deficit."

Hinchey Wants Mortgage Agency

ALBANY — Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey, D-101st, has reintroduced legislation creating a state mortgage finance agency which he says will "do much to improve the employment situation for construction workers not only in Ulster County but throughout New York State."

The bill (A7254) would expand the supply of funds available for residential mortgages and thus stimulate the building trades, according to Hinchey.

"Our construction workers have been particularly hard hit by the current recession," said Hinchey. "We must create more jobs for them. I believe that my bill, for which I now have 34 co-sponsors in the Assembly, will do just that. It will also stimulate the overall economy of our region and fill a genuine need, as many banks have proved reluctant to extend mortgage money to prospective new homeowners."

Hinchey's bill would create an agency which would issue bonds, the proceeds of which would be used to make loans to banks, savings and loan associations, and other qualified lenders, who in turn would use the money to make new mortgages for single and multiple family residential homes. It would also provide for the rehabilitation of existing structures. The Agency's bonds would not constitute a debt of the State, but would be payable solely from the funds of the Agency, derived primarily from the interest and principal payments received from the lenders.

"The need for the state to take the lead in finding more jobs for its workers has become even more urgent now that President Ford was able to kill the Public Works and Countercyclical Bill last week by a veto," said Hinchey. "That bill would have provided up to a million dollars for workers in the Ulster County area, through capital construction and the other services which it would have provided."

Hinchey pointed out that this situation developed in Ulster County only this past year when the Republican Party ran a campaign based on the slogan, "Remember . . . we have reduced county taxes five of the past seven years," and one month later the Republican chairman of the legislature, Peter Savago, was talking of raising property taxes from $9.2 million in 1975 to $14.7 million in the coming year. The County Legislature eventually adopted a 1976 budget requiring a 32 percent increase in the county property tax.

"This abrupt kind of turnabout, which amounts to a fraud perpetrated on the voters, could be ended by the bill which I co-sponsored in the assembly," said Hinchey.

Hinchey feels that the assembly bill will not only redress the injustice currently being done to the voting public but will also result in greater accountability on the part of their representatives in county government.

"The fiscal problems besetting many of our municipalities will never be solved unless we make officials in government strictly accountable for their actions," said Hinchey. "And this means that the public must be kept up-to-date on matters pertaining to the budget. Certainly it is only fair and reasonable to ask that this accounting be made at a time that will permit the taxpayers of the county adequate opportunity to make their sentiments known."

Hinchey says the inflationary cost of government has become of such increasing concern to the general public that it is imperative the legislature take new initiatives to insure full accountability from officials on budgetary matters.

"The public demands this, and I am going to use whatever influence I have as a legislator to see that their demands are met," said Hinchey.

Miller Parents' Campaign

KINGSTON—At a meeting Wednesday night, Mrs. Maiech, president of the Miller Parents' Organization, announced that her group is planning a telephone-letter campaign to get parents involved in present and future decisions that will affect the students of this district.

T.A.C.T., (Teachers and Community Together), feels that the current problems of overcrowding at the high school and dissension among school board members, are having, and will continue to have, an adverse effect on all students in the Kingston district.

T.A.C.T. urges all parents to attend two upcoming meetings so that they can learn firsthand what the board is doing. The first meeting will be the Board of Education meeting at George Washington School on April 1 at 8 p.m.

There will also be an informational meeting at Miller School April 6 at 7:30 p.m.

Clarkin Named to Board

ALBANY — Dr. James Clarkin of Kingston has been named to the Board of Directors of the 1,600-member New York State Society of Internal Medicine.

Dr. William P. Nelson III of Albany is the new president of the society, which met recently in New York City. He succeeds Dr. Joseph N. Silverstein of Brooklyn.

About 50 delegates from the 15 component chapters of the society attended the meeting to discuss the problems of internists in New York State.

was awarded the contract for construction of a new Joy Bridge in the Town of Woodstock. That project has been picketed by unemployed union workers for the past two weeks because Berardi does not employ union labor.

Nagy's challenge for an open forum with Berardi was prompted by remarks the contractor made in the March 2 Freeman. Berardi said his decision not to hire union labor stemmed from union "featherbedding" and other policies that he said made it virtually impossible to perform a construction job efficiently and economically.

"In fairness to all our citizens," said Nagy, "we think (an open forum) might be a very good idea. A discussion of this nature will afford both sides the opportunity to bring out all the facts, and not deal in half truths and innuendoes."

Nagy took exception to Berardi's comment, in refusing to meet with the unions to discuss the Joy Bridge issue that "You don't bargain with the unions . . . they make a demand and you either sign it or they picket you."

"How can any fair minded individual say, 'I don't like what you have asked for and therefore I am not going to meet and discuss it with you'?" asked Nagy, "You just can't say I don't like something and I don't want to discuss it."

Nagy said the unions involved in the Joy Bridge picketing are ready and willing to undertake negotiations or discussions with Berardi to resolve their differences.

Nagy also addressed several specific criticisms that were raised by Berardi in the March 2 article. He said that all labor unions in the Mid-Hudson region are opposed to the concept of "featherbedding," or the hiring of more men than are actually necessary to perform the work. He noted that the employer, not the union, has the exclusive right to make and enforce rules to assure orderly and efficient operations and to schedule work.

In response to Berardi's criticism that the Bricklayers Union recently obtained a raise in wages while most of the members were unemployed, Nagy pointed out that the pay hikes were included in a contract that was negotiated with and approved by the Hudson Valley Construction Employers Association.

Nagy also pointed out that Berardi was a union contractor for more than 30 years and was a party to many of the negotiated contracts with the labor unions.

Maybe He Should Give It Back

The he we are referring to is Dr. Frank Marlow, recently restored but not working superintendent of the Onteora School District. The "It" is the salary he has been collecting while out of office.

After a round and round hearing by the school board, Dr. Marlow was fired. He stepped down and appealed the board's decision to the State Commissioner of Education, Ewald Nyquist. Nyquist, who by pattern is becoming famous in his decisions supporting deposed superintendents throughout the state, "restored" Marlow. However, restored doesn't mean completely exonerated. Therefore, Dr. Marlow can't go back to work until Nyquist goes over transcripts of the hearing.

Marlow has been collecting his salary while out of office and now, in office but out of work, is still collecting it. That salary is $40,400 a year. He's been getting that all along, which is fine except that the school board has had to pay others for services to keep the office going. The Freeman feels that Dr. Marlow should have his salary placed in escrow until it is finally determined that he is guilty or innocent of the charges.

He should agree. He has assured all that he is innocent. He has begged to go back to work because he has been collecting his salary for a job he isn't presently doing. And, he has publicly stated that it's a waste of taxpayers' money to pay other people to do the job he's getting paid not to do.

If he is innocent and is brought back to work, then he should be compensated for his discomfiture with his back salary and the district will have to lose out on the extra money that has been used to keep the job functioning.

And, if he's guilty and doesn't come back, will he voluntarily pay the district the money he's collected for doing nothing? It's possible, but guilty people don't always act that rationally.

The Amnesty Issue

Dear Editor:

I would like to reply to a letter on the subject of Amnesty, which appeared in your March 4 issue, and was authored by Joseph C. Hassett, Commander, Disabled American Veterans and Ulster County Veterans Association.

Mr. Hassett, in replying to the letter of a war resistor, stated that "if your type were on the battlefield and under fire, you would desert and endanger not only your buddies but the entire operation."

We have all heard that argument so many times before that it has become as familiar as reruns of I Love Lucy. Where it goes wrong is in assuming that the war resisters were motivated by cowardice and not conscience. Most of them that I have known were motivated by conscience, and deeply held convictions about the immorality of the Vietnam War. Most of them that I have known were not irresponsible, but rather acted with more responsibility than the vast majority of Americans who closed their minds to the truth while 56,000 of their sons died for nothing.

Mr. Hassett said also that we must never forget our POWs and MIAs. I would like to know why people like Mr. Hassett, if they are sincere, never become concerned with the upwards of 200,000 civilians, many of them clergymen who had committed no greater crime than to publicly disagree with Nguyen Van Thieu, who were tortured and abused in corrupt prison system funded by U.S. tax dollars. The food rations at Con Son were miserable. A handful of rice with some sauce full of sand and pebbles and rotten fish.

The ration for one person was given to five. Rape was accepted at the police stations and in the prisons. In the case of Nguyen Thanh Cong his wife's aunt, who was pregnant at the time, was beaten with truncheons in front of him and the security personnel threatened to cause a miscarriage unless she signed a false confession. Such cases were typical, as we now can document. To have demanded fair treatment for our own CIA operatives and bomber personnel while we paid for this kind of obscenity directed against civilians was the pinnacle of hypocrisy.

Finally I am fed up with the My Country Right Or Wrong mentality that seems so prevalent in establishment veterans organizations, and which comes across in Mr. Hassett's letter. Actually it was a good line once, before it got cut in half. The full quote goes—"My country right or wrong. If right to be kept right, if wrong to be put right." It is my contention that those who fought to stop the Vietnam War deserve the title of American more than does Mr. Hassett.

Respectfully,
Paul Atkinson

Reject Easy Solutions

Dear Editor:

People who are concerned with issues of justice can only be disheartened to hear a prominent leader in the criminal justice field propose a procedural change that would remove protections that are universally accepted as vital to the presumption of innocence that remains such an important part of American justice.

The suggestion to change the New York State Criminal Procedure Law to allow the courts to convict an accused, "solely on the evidence of a confession or admission" violates all concepts of liberty and justice. Difficulty in prosecuting the crime of Arson cannot make the recommendation more acceptable.

Criminal conviction, within the judicial system of the United States, requires proof of guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. The confession, standing alone, does not satisfy this condition. It is reasonable and proper to be certain that a crime has been committed before we convict the accused.

Due process requirements of the United States and New York State Constitutions reaffirm this position. The proposed change would clearly violate due process and the United States Supreme Court would speedily strike down this irresponsible provision of the law.

Prosecution in our courts must be based on truths which are developed from "facts" (like confessions and admissions) through independent verification.

It is very important that our laws make it difficult to convict anyone of a crime. Regardless of how much we deplore the release of guilty felons because of procedural difficulties, we must support these procedures in order to protect the innocent. That is the American system and the only fair system for all.

It is true that the independent evidence needed in proving the crime of Arson is difficult to obtain. The obvious solution to the problem is additional effort by better trained investigators.

We must defend our American system of justice and reject "easy" solutions that are ready to sacrifice TRUTH to gain some CONVENIENCE.

Claims Violations

As a Union member and concerned citizen, I would like to comment on Sunday's Editorial (The Right to Work) and previous articles that have been written on the Joy Bridge Project.

First of all the Daily Freeman should get its facts straight. Mr. Berardi didn't save the taxpayers $60,000 since Mr. Berardi's bid was $179,318.00 and the next highest bid was $187,343.00, for a savings of $8,025.00.

As a member of Carpenters Local 265, I spent six days out at the Joy Road Bridge site and was appalled at the shoddy work being performed with violation after violation being committed with apparent approval of the county inspectors on the site. If all contractors Union and non-Union alike were able to work under these exact conditions I'm sure that many more taxpayers dollars could be saved.

The violations are too numerous to list here and now, but if the Daily Freeman is so concerned about saving the taxpayers money, I am willing to sit down with them any time or any place and point out these violations that have occurred on this job and other work performed by Mr. Berardi. I will also have pictures and proof of such violations and that have and do exist.

As a Union member I know only too well that we have our short-comings and faults, but this shouldn't interfere with Mr. Berardi doing the job correct and adhering to the rules and specifications spelled out by the New York State Department of Transportation.

Sincerely Yours,
CHARLES E. QUINN,

Collecting For Gulf

WASHINGTON—I never thought I'd say this about a large American corporation, but the Gulf Oil Co. is an Indian-giver. After slipping millions of dollars in illegal contributions to American politicians for the past 15 years., it now wants its money back.

The thing that bothers me is the Gulf request might start a precedent, and other American companies will start asking for their illegal contributions to be returned which could bankrupt many senators and representatives, not to mention governors and mayors, in this country.

The scene is the office of a senator on Capitol Hill. A man with a wide-brimmed hat and a large mustache and a bulge under his arm walks in.

"Senator, my name is Joe Bananas from the Gulf Oil Co."

"Oh, are you a lobbyist?"

"No, I'm what you might call a collector for the company." He takes out a notebook. "Our records show that for the last 10 years you've been getting $30,000 per annum under the table from us."

"Not so loud," the senator says nervously. "I want you to know that I've been grateful to Gulf for their contributions to my campaign, which have assured the people of my state honest government in Washington."

"That's nice. But we want our money back."

"You want your money back?"

"That's right, buddy boy. The Gulf Oil Co. is shocked and horrified that some people in their organization were going around illegally contributing to American politicians. The only way to make amends is for us to get the money returned. Since you've been on the pad for 10 years, you owe us $300,000. We ain't going to charge you interest."

"But I don't have $300,000. I spent it on my political campaign."

"That's too bad. The boys at the oil company are going to be very upset. They don't like politicians who won't give them back their illegal contributions."

"Listen, when I took these illegal donations I was told there were no strings attached. I could spend the money on anything I wanted to, and there was nothing mentioned at the time about returning it."

You must have misunderstood. Why would a company like Gulf give an illegal donation to a politician without expecting him to pay it back? We're not in the oil business for our health."

"I would never have accepted the money if I knew I had to return it."

"We're asking you nicely to give us the dough. We have the methods of collecting it if this doesn't work."

"Are you collecting money from foreign politicians you bribed as well?"

"No, the policy of the company is to let the foreign politicians keep our donations as a matter of goodwill."

"But that's unfair. Why should the American politicians be asked to pay back the money while the foreign politicians keep their contributions?"

"Senator, I don't make those decisions. I was just asked to come here to pay you a friendly visit and inform you that the boys in Pittsburgh want their 300 Gs."

"And if I refuse?"

"I wouldn't try to run away, senator. You'd have no place to hide. We've got Gulf stations all over the country."

Strange Meetings

WASHINGTON—Two strange, secret meetings occurred last November between a prominent Congressman and a notorious criminal. The Congressman, who is under grand jury investigation, wanted to hire the criminal to check on a key witness. The subject of murder was discussed briefly and obliquely.

Gruff, crewcut Rep. Henry Helstoski, D-N.J. arranged the mysterious meetings with stocky, swarthy Frank Peroff, an underworld figure who has become a government informant.

We have obtained tape recordings, which give a detailed account of their private conversations. The only dispute that remains is over who brought up the suggestion of murder. Each man swears it was the other.

To understand this bizarre tale of intrigue some background is necessary. Federal prosecutors are investigating charges that Helstoski collected kickbacks from illegal aliens in return for introducing private immigration bills. These bills stopped, at least temporarily their deportation.

His former aide, Albert DeFalco, already has been convicted of shaking down the aliens for $36,000. At DeFalco's trial, the congressman said he had introduced the bills out of sympathy for the aliens and had not participated in any kickback arrangement.

The most damaging witness against DeFalco was a Chilean, named Oswaldo Aguirre, whom the prosecutors are also using to build a case against the Congressman.

The investigation was dragging on for 16 months. Last October Helstoski came across a news item about Peroff. The paper quoted the racketeer as boasting: "I made my name smuggling people and money out, using planes. That was my thing . . . In Chile, we smuggled out damn near a billion dollars, and some of that was for American companies."

The impressed Helstoski sent Peroff a cryptic letter on his congressional stationery. "Having seen the enclosed news clipping," wrote the Congressman, "I would like to discuss this particular matter with you and perhaps retain you if you could fulfill some requirements."

The racketeer responded with the suggestion that they meet at Washington's Dulles Airport, where they would attract little attention in the flow of strangers. Peroff was also worried about retaliation from the mobsters he had helped put in prison. At Dulles, they would have to pass through weapons detectors to reach him.

Helstoski showed up with his blonde secretary, Kathy Dunn. The Congressman told Peroff that he wanted to hire an investigator to go to Chile and check into the background of the government witness, particularly Aguirre.

Peroff bragged about his criminal accomplishments and offered to accept the Chilean assignment for $50,000. The Congressman complained that the price was too high. He was sufficiently interested in Peroff's services, however, to ask for a second meeting.

Helstoski claimed afterward, according to the tapes, that all he wanted Peroff to do was seek out "the truth." But Peroff contended: "That's not all he wanted. He said he thought the men (witnesses) had unsavory pasts, and he wanted me to bring back evidence of it. But he also said that if I couldn't find legitimate evidence, I was to bribe local officials to fabricate whatever was needed."

Then came the alleged murder suggestion. "If I was unsuccessful at that," Peroff added, "I was to 'Make sure they're not around' for a trial."

The tapes contain Helstoski's vigorous denial. He claimed it was really Peroff who hinted about murder. Because of a court-imposed gag order, Helstoski could not comment directly.

The Congressman's version, however, is supported by his secretary. It is definitely her recollection, she told our reporters Jack Cloherty and Jay Gourley, that Peroff brought the conversation around to murder. It was also her recollection that Peroff hinted at it during the initial meeting. Yet Helstoski still wanted to meet with Peroff a second time.

The tough, but likeable Helstoski is a hero to the people of his working-class district. Once he took money from his own pocket to help a needy constituent. Certainly, he is more credible than the notorious Peroff. But why would a Congressman seek out a racketeer in the first place? And why would he want to meet with him a second time?

LUXURY TRAVEL: The World Bank, Inter-American Development Bank and the International Monetary Fund were set up to lend money to underdeveloped nations. But not all the money goes to help poor countries.

The three prestigious banks have spent more than $500,000 in the last two years, for example, to pay the travel expenses of wives who accompanied bank officials on business trips.

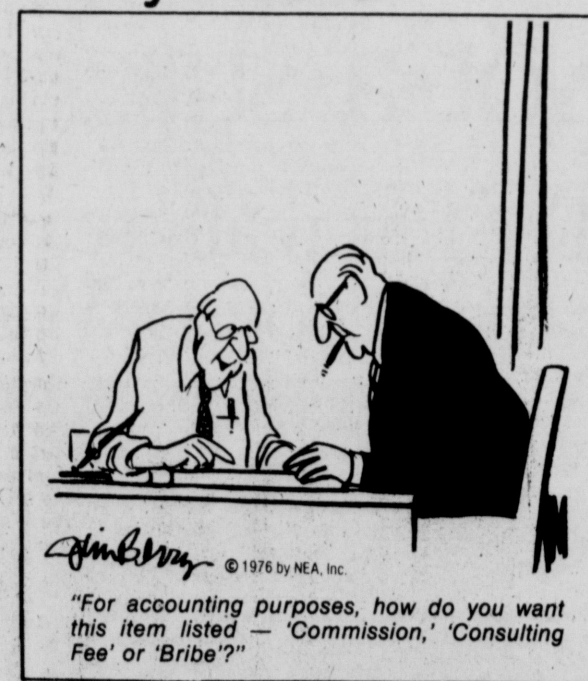

A Treasury Department study showed the World Bank, during a 21-month period, "funded 168 trips by spouses." In 44 cases, the bank paid not only for transportation but subsistence. The average wife's travel expenses ran well over $2,000.

The Inter-American Development Bank paid the way for 76 wives to accompany their husbands during the same 21-month period, at an average cost of $710. The International Monetary Fund paid the wives' expenses in 26 cases, shelling out an average of more than $2,000 per trip.

Spokesmen for the international banking organization explained that most spouse travel is permitted only after the husband has been out of the country for months.

While most banking bigwigs prefer to travel first class, one exception is World Bank head Robert McNamara. The former Defense secretary flies tourist almost without exception. He has been known to fume as his subordinates file into first class seats.

Getting The Oriental Goods

Feb. 31st. On March 4th, the oriental ticker testified that it was March 1st.

"Is it any wonder," he said, "that those ignorant heathens have slant eyes? They can't even tell time." He muttered under his breath. "They can't even add two apples and three apples without an abacus."

After a year, he became sly about the watch. He began to praise it to little John. It wasn't gold-plated; it was 18 karat. The Chinese had built ancient secrets into the timepiece; secrets of days of the week, dates, hours and minutes unknown to modern man. In a conspiratorial whisper, he told his son he wouldn't part with the watch for $150.

Rolling In

Young John did not nibble. The old man waited. One afternoon, Johnny walked into the sanctum-sanctorum and announced that he bought a new automobile. "Is that so?" Dad said, marveling. "Let me guess — it's a Chevy, a Ford or a Pontiac."

No, Johnny said, "It's a Toyota." "It's a what?" "Toyota." "A motorcycle?" "A Japanese car." "The Japs don't make cars. They make cheap toys and little TV sets you watch with one eye covered."

"It's a car." "What's that name again?" Louder: "Toyota." "They're shrewd people. They worked the word 'Toy' up front." "Dad, it's a good automobile. It can go forever on a gallon of gas."

"Oh," the old man said, "one of those. Well, I'll get my coat. You can take me for a ride." "I can't." "Why the hell not?"

Johnny fidgeted. "To tell the truth, all the symbols on the dashboard are in Chinese or something. Every time I try to turn the lights on, the windshield wipers go crazy."

"Has it got a spare tire?" Johnny tired of the game. "Instead of a tire, they pack two geisha girls in the trunk." "Ah," the old man said sarcastically, "one of my boys is a wit."

Johnny was out of patience. "It's a darn good car, Dad. I'm serious. Soon as I learn to decipher the dashboard, I'll take you for a long ride." The old man crept out of his leather chair. He put his arm around his son in the confidential manner of someone trying to sell French post cards.

"John," he said, "how would you like to buy a good Chinese watch?"

Your Legal Expenses As An Employee

By Sylvia Porter

(Fifth of ten columns)

If you are an employee with office-at-home expenses, the IRS says you can claim a deduction for those expenses only if — among other prerequisites — your employer requires you to maintain that office as a condition of your employment.

Before 1975, several court decisions had rejected this IRS rule in favor of a more liberal requirement that the office-at-home must be "appropriate and helpful" to the performance of your duties as an employee — even though not required by your employer.

But last year, the Fourth Circuit reversed a Tax Court decision that had allowed an IRS attorney to deduct part of his apartment rent as an office-at-home expense because he voluntarily took some of his office work home and read specialized literature at home to keep up to date with developments in his job field. The Circuit Court pointed out that the IRS lawyer didn't use any part of his apartment as a real place of business and that the IRS furnished him with an office that was both suitable and available when he might need it. His apartment rent was a personal expense.

What this means to you is that the IRS will have a stronger argument against you if you claim a deduction for an office-at-home that is not actually required by your employer as a condition of your employment.

If you take deductions for away-from-home travel expenses, the IRS provided you with several guidelines in 1975.

Say you're a truck driver, as one illustration, who hauls loads on round trips of several hundred miles, with a half-hour layover at the destination before driving the return load to your home city. The IRS's ruling is that you cannot deduct the cost of your meals during the half-hour layover as an away-from-home expense. But say you have an eight-hour layover because another loaded truck-trailer isn't ready for the return trip or because the same trailer has to be reloaded. Although your employer doesn't formally authorize your eight-hour rest, he agrees to it.

On such trips, your cost of meals and lodging during the eight-hour layover is a deductible away-from-home travel expense because the eight-hour layover is a substantial period during which you can get needed sleep or rest.

Similarly with railroad employees such as locomotive engineers, conductors, brakemen. The IRS says they can't deduct the cost of meals at away-from-home terminals on round trips taking only one day.

If you are a police officer or highway patrolman, you may receive cash payments from your state, county, etc., governments to cover the cost of meals you must buy while on duty. The IRS insists that these payments are taxable income, not tax-free meals furnished for the convenience of the employing government.

One Circuit Court of Appeals says the IRS is right while four others say the IRS is wrong. In 1975, a Tax Court case upheld the IRS in taxing a police officer on his meal allowance even though the case arose in a state where an earlier Circuit Court decision had held that these allowances were not taxable.

In view of the split among the courts, police officers with substantial meal allowances may want to resist the IRS's efforts to tax their allowances even if this involves them in litigation.

SPECIAL TAX TIP FOR '75 by the Research Institute of America: If you claim a dependency deduction for your parents who receive Medicare, you got an important assist from a Tax Court case in 1975. The IRS's view is that Medicare reimbursement for hospital care (Part A) counts as part of your parent's total yearly support but payments covering doctor care (Part B) are excluded. In the court case, the taxpayer contributed more than half his mother-in-law's support for the year if both Part A and Part B were excluded from support, but less than half if Part A was included. The Tax Court found no difference between Part A reimbursement for which coverage is compulsory under Social Security and Part B for which coverage is voluntary. If the IRS was willing to exclude Part B, Part A was no different.

Toughies for Parents

A school that educates one of our children took a poll the other day, but they didn't include some of the toughest questions faced by parents.

For example:
1. It is 7:30 a.m. Your child says, "I don't feel so good. I think I should stay home today." His temperature is normal. Should you:

a. Send him to school anyway? (On the assumption that if he is really ill, sooner or later someone will notice and call you.)
b. Inspect his bedroom for the remains of indigestible food, like cores of green apples?
c. Let the child stay in bed? (On the theory that even if he isn't ill he should enjoy an occasional victory over the system.)

d. Telephone the teacher to find out whether a test is scheduled for that day?

2. The science teacher says your child refuses to dissect, draw, look at, or even discuss the digestive, circulatory, and reproductive systems of earthworms or frogs. Should you:

a. Tell the teacher to soak his head in a vat of formaldehyde?

b. Tell your child she can have a pajama party if she agrees to dissect one frog?

c. Call in the American Civil Liberties Union to support your child's right of dissection on dissection?

3. Your child says that he will be beaten up tomorrow unless he pays a dollar to the class bully. Should you:

a. Check to make sure that your child and the class bully aren't pulling a fast one and planning to make a 50-50 split?
b. Check to make sure there is a class bully?

c. Refuse the dollar and hope the bully is bluffing?

d. Give your child 50¢ in the hope that he can strike a compromise? (This ploy, if it works, could start your child on a path that could end up in Congress.)

4. Your child's hair is so long that it hangs over his eyes. He refuses to have it cut. Should you:

a. Cut it when he's asleep?

b. Urge him to leave his hair long, knowing that he will want to do the opposite of what you ask him to do?

c. Tell him that hair in the eyes can cause acute phlebitis of the eyeball, which would result in his disqualification from all sports?

5. Your child often asks for help with his schoolwork, but the level of his work in most subjects has passed your level of education and understanding. Should you:

a. Sign up secretly for night school or correspondence courses?

b. Admit the truth to your child and concentrate on other areas in which you can stay ahead, at least for a few more years?

c. Tell your child that everything is being taught differently now and ask him to call in friends for aid?

6. You find yourself in a debate at the Parent-Teacher Association meeting over whether sex education should be taught in your child's school. Should you:

a. Come out against sex education because you had so much fun learning the subject on your own?

b. Come out in favor of sex education on the theory that nothing stills childhood passions on any subject as quickly as the teaching of it in a classroom?

c. Stay out of the fight, confident that your child knows plenty already?

Future of Nuclear Power

The enemies of nuclear power are poised for the kill. The Naderites are counting on the California initiative on nuclear safety, scheduled for June 8, to produce a vote that will effectively call a halt to nuclear plant investment in America's most populous state. Furthermore, the Naderites expect the country to go as California goes. All told, there are nuclear initiatives in process in 21 states.

The Naderites and their allies among the ecologists may prove to be good prophets. But before anyone tosses in the sponge, the advocates of nuclear power tell us to watch the small state of Connecticut, where Governor Ella Grasso has recently set up a Nuclear Safety Evaluation Task Force. If the final report and recommendation of this group comes before June, as is expected, it could have a great effect on the way Californians evaluate the potential danger of burning atoms to get electricity.

Most Experienced State

The fact is that Connecticut, which gets approximately one-third of its energy from nuclear power, has had more experience in using and controlling the atom than most other states. In the New London area, where Millstone One and Millstone Two at Waterford have been supplying atom-derived power for some time and where a third plant, Millstone Three, is expected to be ready by 1983, there was a lot of early sophistication about controlling the nuclear process. After all, eastern Connecticut is where employees of the Electric Boat Company have been making nuclear submarines ever since Admiral Hyman Rickover persuaded the Navy to go all out with the one thing that really gives us what is euphemistically called "mutual deterrence" vis-a-vis an atom-armed Soviet Russia. For a decade the inhabitants of eastern Connecticut have taken the atom more or less for granted.

Recently, however, there have been a couple of minor mishaps at the Millstone installations. When some radioactive water got into Long Island Sound, there was a flap in the press despite the statement of one Millstone safety engineer that the leakage was less contaminating radioactively to individuals than sleeping with one's wife or eating a good salad. A subsequent Millstone leak caused a second scare, but it passed without any apparent danger to anyone inside or outside the plant.

In spite of the relatively insignificant nature of the Millstone mishaps, the feeling that nuclear operations are not 100 per cent hermetically sealed in the New London area has led to the creation of Governor Grasso's investigatory body, Lynn Alan Brooke, commissioner of the Connecticut Department of Planning and Energy Policy, who heads the Grasso task force, has hit out at "the lack of public confidence in the ability and credibility of Federal agencies charged with regulating the nuclear industry." Obviously his target is the Federal government's Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Probe Planned

To help the task force in evaluating the operations of Connecticut's nuclear power plants (in addition to the Millstone complex there is a fourth at Haddam Neck on the Connecticut River), the state's Public Utilities Control Authority has included the safety issue in its lengthy hearings on power economics. These hearings may turn out to be the most searching probe conducted anywhere.

A Connecticut Citizen's Action Group has told the task force that all nuclear construction should be halted pending safety investigation. This does not sit well with Christopher Dodd, the New London area's Representative who is quite aware that New England is behind the eight-ball when it comes to importing costly oil and coal from distant refineries and mines. Bringing low sulfur coal to New England should over a 10-year period, be 68 per cent more expensive than getting an equal amount of energy from nuclear fuel. Even with more costly uranium, the projected savings in energy production of nuclear plants over coal-fired plants is bound to be substantial when one considers that New England pays in transportation up to $18 a ton more for coal than the mine-mouth price.

Connecticut's Senator Lowell Weiker, speaking of the pending investigation, says, "We've got to get rid of the demagoguery that has surrounded this issue and get down to separating fact from panic." The "facts" that the Connecticut task force turns up could be more definitive for the nuclear future than California's June initiative.

Working under a New York State grant, Mrs. Karnosky will work toward improving library services in penal institutions in Ulster, Dutchess, Greene, Columbia and Putnam counties.

The grant is for four months, during which time Mrs. Karnosky will work part time.

64th Scouting Anniversary

3,600 County Girls Having a Birthday

By Joan Woinoski

KINGSTON — Approximately 3,600 girls in Ulster County are having a birthday. They are part of the 7½ million Girl Scouts throughout 96 countries who are observing their 64th anniversary this week.

"Flames of Freedom" are being lit by Girl Scouts around the world today, the flame symbolizing the pledge that Girl Scouts will carry forward the light of freedom for all people as they enter the nation's third century. American girls throughout the world are joining in this simple Bicentennial ceremony launched at the Girl Scouts

National Convention by Honorary President, the First Lady Betty Ford.

For the past 64 years, since Juliette (Daisy) Gordon Low organized the first Girl Guide Company in Savannah, Ga. March 12, 1912, girls have recited the same promise and obeyed the 10 scouting laws. Through volunteer leaders, the basic ideals of scouting have been passed on to thousands of girls. In Ulster County alone, there are 200 troops, divided into 13 Neighborhoods, reaching about 25 per cent of the community's girls and young women.

The first local organization to congratulate the Girls

Scouts on their 64th anniversary was the League of Women Voters of Mid-Ulster County. "It is particularly appropriate for the LWV to acknowledge this occasion," said Mrs. Dorothy Vilches, LWV president, "because the LWV and Girl Scouts share a common goal, that of promoting good citizenship."

Early last year the Girl Scouts approached the national LWV office regarding possible cooperation between local leagues and Girl Scout Councils and this active partnership for democratic government has been working well in many communities.

Local Leagues and Girl Scouts work together to achieve individual and common goals. Girls babysit while adults vote. They accompany older persons to the polls. Senior Scouts contribute their time and energy to local leagues as researchers, information aides and office assistants. League members serve as council consultants on projects for earning citizenship, community service, conservation, or other badges. They explain governmental processes, conduct seminars on politics and invite scouts to attend meetings where study results are presented and consensus sought on study items.

The purpose of the Girl Scout movement is to inspire girls with the highest ideals of character, conduct, patriotism and service that they may become happy and resourceful citizens. The purpose of the LWV is to promote political responsibility of citizens in government.

What is Girl Scouting all about? Is it just a program, an activity or is it an ideal, a philosophy, a way of life? Audrey Finkelstein in an issue of Girl Scout Leader defines Girl Scouting as a value-rooted, people-centered movement, and "movement" means a series of acts working toward some desired aim. Its aim is "better people."

The informal, educational program centered around the interests and abilities of girls is the vehicle in which the girls are transported along the journey towards becoming self-realized, courageous, compassionate, concerned and committed mature women.

Through troop management, girls learn to make decisions and to abide by the decisions of others, learning to follow as well as to lead. Because of the Citizenship and International aspects of the program, girls are more aware of and involved with the people around them and throughout the world. Through Health and Safety, girls learn to respect and preserve human life. Through Service and Social Action, girls have opportunities to stretch themselves and to invest themselves in the enterprise of mankind. Every game they play and song they sing and day they camp helps teach these girls to live with others and with themselves; winning, losing, understanding, learning responsibility and affirmation of life. Its purpose is not for the girls just to look, but to see; not just to hear, but to listen; not just to touch, but to feel. It is not an after school recreation group. It is a way of life, a program-with-a-purpose based on ideals and code of conduct.

The largest voluntary organization of its kind for girls, Girl Scouting is open to all girls from 6 through 17 who subscribe to the Girl Scout Promise and Law. It inspires each girl to develop her own values and sense of worth as an individual, affords girls a chance to develop skills in areas of their choice and interests, and . . . it is fun.

Girl Scouting is: Discovery for Brownie Scouts, ages 6-7-8; Adventure for Junior Scouts, 9-10-11; Action for Cadette Scouts, 12-13-14; Self-awareness for Senior Scouts, 14-15-16-17; Commitment for Campus Girls Scouts, college age; Sharing for adults, men and women. Approximately 37 million girls, men and women have been members since the organization's founding.

The aim of Girl Scouting is not to teach girls to build better campfires, or to be better singers, artists or cookie sellers, but to help girls develop skills that will help them to perform and accept responsibility.

To be honest, to be fair, to be friendly and considerate, to protect and improve the world, to honor country and mankind . . . these are the basic tenets of the Girl Scout Promise and Law.

Girl Scouting has always provided a chance for girls to make a choice, to be partners in planning, to learn the possibilities in life and to seek and set goals. Scouting has exposed girls to the world and allowed them to make the decisions. Activities include the Arts, the Home and Out-of-Doors. However, a uniform, a meeting, a cookie sale and a campfire are not Girl Scouting. They are just part of helping a girl learn about and respect herself. And, in the process, to learn about and respect others.

Four interrelated emphases define the broad objectives, the scope, and the focus of the Girl Scout program. They are: deepening awareness, relating to others, developing values, contributing to community. Together, the four emphases identify the basic thrusts of its program. They reflect the intent and the potential of the movement to play a vital, meaningful role in the lives of girls and women in our society. The emphasis is supported through an atmosphere in which people rather than things are of prime importance.

During the nation's 200th birthday year, it is especially fitting to celebrate the contributions of Girl Scouting as a growing vital force in the development of girls in these United States. During 1976, three and a quarter million members are concentrating on Horizons '76 the part of the Bicentennial observance that seeks to improve the quality of life in communities. They are working with a steady purpose to achieve their twofold mission: the commitment of youth to building the future of our country, and the commitment of adult volunteers to helping today's girls grow into tomorrow's leaders of community, state and nation. Then, Girl Scouts feel they will be serving as a catalyst for positive change in the third century of this nation.

Petra Wilson, Kim Natoli and Terri Whitaker from Troop 6, St. John's Church, took part recently in the Indian exhibit at the Heritage Fair in the New York State Armory. All troops in the Kingston Neighborhood participated in the annual World Friendship Scouting event sponsored by Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts. Profits from the sale of various arts and crafts are donated to the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund which enables girls from other countries to come to the U.S. and American girl scouts to go abroad.

"Flames for Freedom," a significant but simple candlelighting ceremony to help celebrate Girl Scouting's Birthday and the Bicentennial Year began at the local level at the Heritage Fair. Pamela Foehner, Neighborhood chairman, lights the candles of the Girl Scout leaders and they, returning to their troop meetings, light the candles of the scouts. Taking part in the ceremony are Charlet Salimone and Lori Baker. Looking on are Kelly Flood and Adele Pangburn.

Beth Owings, (L) and Sandy Kleitsch, Cadette Troop 175, hand-rub Colonial candlestick holders in preparation for the Heritage Fair.

'Snuff' Protest Locally

KINGSTON — This past Wednesday, women from the Monticello-Kingston-Woodstock areas participated in a protest demonstration against the showing of a film called "Snuff" now booked into the Rialto Theatre in Monticello and distributed by Allen Shackleton of New York's Monarch's Releasing Corporation.

Dismemberment and murder of a woman as sexual entertainment is the film's subject and certain press reports have indicated it is entirely possible that women were actually dismembered while still alive during the filming of the original "snuff" film.

Whether murder was actually committed during the filming, there has been sufficient controversy about it to ban its advertisements from such newspapers as New York Times, New York Post and Daily News.

There have been reports also that the original "snuff" film was supposed to have been made in South America and prints of it were being distributed by organized crime to private pornography collectors for large sums of money.

The Woodstock Women's Center participates in the protest demonstration in Monticello, and reports that the local movie supposedly contains only simulated torture scenes but that its advertising and promotion imply it is an actual "snuff" film which "could only have been made in South America . . . where Life is CHEAP!"

According to an Associated Press report from Buenos Aires, however, and carried in the Chicago Tribune on Oct. 6, 1975, at least three prostitutes were found dead and mutilated and Buenos Aires police believe they may have participated in the making of a "snuff" film. Since the film opened in New York on February 11 there have been reports of the mutilation killings of two women in New York.

Women Against Violence Against Women, a group of feminists from the three areas, has organized the protest demonstrations with the intention of enlisting enough community and public support to close the film down in Monticello.

Detailed information about the protest movement may be obtained by contacting Alice Fix, Woodstock Women's Center; Dorothy Persh of Poughkeepsie NOW; Peggy Henebery and Barbara Deming of Women Against Violence Against Women.

THE PERFECT CHURCH?

Dear Newcomer to the Kingston Area:

If you're looking for the perfect church, look no more! Your search is over. There is no such thing!

A certain man rejected a pastor's invitation to attend his church by charging, "Your church is full of hypocrites!" The pastor replied, "Don't let that stop you. There's always room for one more."

Fair Street Church is not the perfect church because it is made up of human beings like you and me. But the people of Fair Street Church would like to invite you to join them in a sincere effort to live a better life, a life more like that of Jesus Christ.

Join us this Sunday, you and your family.

Glee Club Director Colby

KINGSTON — "No Music Without Fun!"

That's the inscription above the door of the cadet glee club's rehearsal room located in the Cadet Activities building at West Point.

Kingston area residents will have a chance to hear how well they live up to their motto when the Fourth Class Glee Club of the U.S. Military Academy performs on the stage of Kingston High School auditorium Saturday, April 10.

The West Pointers will be here as guests of, and performing with, the Mendelssohn Club Bicentennial Choir in the first of two special spring concerts. The second, on Saturday, May 22, is a joint concert of the Mohawk-Hudson Male Chorus Association. The two concerts are sponsored by the Mendelssohn Club for the Bicentennial celebration in a two-part presentation of the theme, "200 Years of America's Music."

Director of the 45-cadet singing group is Lt. William H. Cosby. Music selected by the cadets ranges from contemporary ("Aquarius") to ancient (two English catches) and includes their special version of "America, the Beautiful" with narration.

Lt. Cosby will conduct the finale of the concert, a rendition of "Battle Hymn of the Republic," featuring the combined voices of the glee club and the Bicentennial Choir with brass accompaniment by part of Andy Hummel's Kingston High School band.

Tickets are now available at a special subscription price for the two-concert series. All advance sales will be on a series subscription basis. Flyers describing the two concerts and ticket order forms may be obtained at the following locations in Kingston: Abrams Music Store, Kingston Music Center and all three locations, of the Kingston Trust Company. In Saugerties, they may be picked up at the Bobby Farris Music Store, and in Woodstock at Sound-In. Ticket orders must be received by April 1 to allow time for tickets to be sent by return mail. Proceeds from admissions to the two concerts will go towards expenses. For further information, ticket chairman Bill Brandt of Woodstock, or concert chairman Al Plonsky of Kingston may be contacted.

Meditation, Art Show at New Paltz

NEW PALTZ — "Meditation and Modern Art: Saying the Unsayable and Unsayable" is the title of a slide show and lecture being presented in New Paltz this weekend. Charles Stein and Carlene Meeker will offer the program Sunday, March 14 at 4 p.m. at the Dancing Theater, North Front Street. The program is supported in part by a grant from the New York State Council on the Arts, and a small donation will be asked at the door.

During one portion of the program, the audience will be encouraged to participate in

"meditating" slides of the art works of Kandinsky, Klee, Dali, Newman and others.

Sponsoring the lecture and slide show is Open Studio, a Paltz based organization. Poet-photographer Stein is the author of several books of poetry; has taught at various universities, institutes and colleges. Painter-illustrator Carlene Meeker has been an assistant and curator for artist Roy Lichtenstein; is currently associated with a Soho art gallery in New York City. Their Sunday afternoon program is open to the public.

Emphasis Is Placed On the Individual

ROSENDALE — A Catholic school is free to innovate and St. Peter's School, Rosendale, has exercised that option in recent years to greatly expand its program. After many years of service to the community, the school's program was successfully redesigned and faculty changes were made.

Emphasis on individualized instruction at St. Peter's, along with other changes, has resulted in increased enrollment to a substantial degree since the fall of 1974.

Now involved in preparation for the 1976-77 school term, the Rosendale school announces that anyone interested in registering a child for that term should call the school office for details as soon as possible. In connection with that announcement, the principal's office notes there are still some openings left in grades kindergarten through eighth for the upcoming school term.

Paltz LWV

NEW PALTZ — "Does Our Property Belong to Us?" or "Land Use, Whose Responsibility?" will be the topic of the Tuesday, March 16, public meeting held by the League of Women Voters of New Paltz. The meeting, scheduled for 8 o'clock, will be held at the Inter-County Savings Bank. Leaders will be Mary Ellen Soghoian, Helen Osburg and Carol Roper.

Weekend

Women's Year . . . A DCC Symposium

POUGHKEEPSIE — "Woman: Her Infinite Variety" is the topic of a day-long symposium scheduled Saturday, March 13 at Dutchess Community College. The conference, the second observance on campus of International Women's Year, will include four major workshops and an address by Jenny Farley, director of Women's Studies at Cornell University.

The event is a sequel to an earlier program this year which explored the variety of alternatives available to women today under the title, "Free to Choose." Ms. Farley's address this Saturday will be entitled, "Women in 1976: Digging In."

Reservations for the symposium should be made immediately with the College's Office of Community Services. A modest fee for the day covers workshop materials and lunch. Day-Care services will be available for those who wish to have children cared for while they attend the conference.

Workshops, which will begin in Dutchess Hall at 9:30 a.m., will feature discussions on "The Single Woman," "Sexism and Religion," "The Emerging Self," and "Two-Score-Plus." Also on the day's program will be a dramatic presentation by Poughkeepsie's Community Experimental Repertory Theatre of Edgar Lee Master's "Spoon River Anthology," and a selection of original poetry readings, entitled "Our Own Company." Ms. Farley's keynote address will follow a luncheon break in the new cafeteria building on campus.

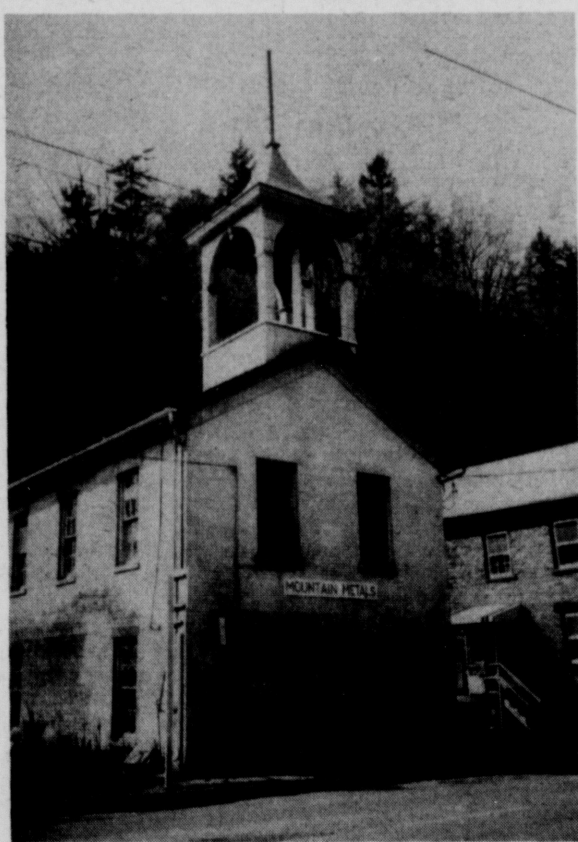

The four workshops listed above will be repeated during the afternoon session. Among topics to be discussed during both morning and afternoon workshops will be the concerns of women living alone.

Both panel discussion and audience participation will be emphasized at all workshops. The "Single Woman" sessions will focus on internal and external forces which both prevent and encourage women in preparing for autonomy. "Sexism and Religion" will explore the implications of sexism in religion and current controversies over women's role in today's churches. Panelists from Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths will discuss the various ways religion has influenced women's lives, and topical materials and bibliographies will be available.

"The Emerging Self" panel will concentrate on how women can begin to attend more to their own needs as evolving individuals without risk to present relationships that are important to them. Focus will be on the variety of resources available to assist women in determining their own direction for personal discovery and growth.

The "Two-Score-Plus" workshop will provide information on the decision making process for mature women; will focus on the "re-tooling" necessary when children have left the home and new skills and interests must be developed.

The DCC symposium is scheduled to end by 3:30 p.m. Saturday.

Mountain Metals

Mountain Metals . . . Spring Classes

KINGSTON — March 20th is the first day of spring and also the first day of classes at Mountain Metals, a Kingston crafts workshop. The courses being offered include Pewter Casting, Stained Glass and Jewelry Casting. Open house is planned Saturday from 10 to 1.

Mountain Metals Studio is located on Route 213 at the end of Wilbur Avenue, housed in a 100 year old firehouse, formerly Twaalfskill Hose Company No. 5. Much work has been done to restore this fine building. The school is partially funded by a $600 grant from America, the Beautiful Fund of New York, Inc.

All courses are especially designed for the beginner. Pewter casting involves the making of small objects such as belt buckles, figures, candle-holders and the like, from wax. The wax form is then gravity cast in plaster molds with pewter.

Stained Glass, taught by Al Tirella of Sunlight Studios, includes instruction in the making of windows, small containers, mirrors. Jewelry Casting of rings, necklaces, figurines in bronze, silver, pewter or gold will be done with the aid of a centrifuge using the lost wax process.

Each class meets once a week for three hours. All tools and materials except precious metals are supplied free. A tuition fee for each course, lasting four weeks, is being charged.

The Racquet Squad

Barbershop quartets are often organized under unusual circumstances. The Racquet Squad has such a history. The group organized in 1966 for the express purpose of playing a weekly game of tennis. However, since all four members were veteran babershoppers, it wasn't long before they were singing up a storm in places other than locker room showers. The quartet, which includes Tom LaMotte, tenor; Dave Frankland, lead; Dave Schuman, baritone; Ralph Brandt, bass, will be featured in "Barbershop USA," a production by Colonial City Chapter, Sweet Adelines Inc. The musical is slated for Saturday at 8 p.m. at M. Clifford Miller Jr. High School in Lake Katrine. Tickets are available from chorus members or Abrams Music Store in Kingston.

John Burroughs Field Trip Set

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON — Members of the John Burroughs Natural History Society will have a field trip to Cruger's Island Sunday, March 14, to observe waterfowl and other spring migrants along the Hudson River. Leader will be Dennis Alwon of the John Burroughs Society.

Interested persons should meet at 7:30 a.m. at Whaleback Inn on Route 9G near Bard College. (From Kingston, east across the Rhinecliff Bridge, left at Route 9G, and proceed a few miles to the Whaleback Inn.)

On Wednesday, March 17, members of the John Burroughs Natural History Society will have their regular meeting at the Inter-County Savings Bank in New Paltz. The trustees will meet at 7 p.m. and the regular business meeting will begin at 8 p.m.

Dr. Heinz Meng of New Paltz will present an illustrated talk on the release and behavior of three young Peregrine Falcons. These captive bred falcons were released in the Shawangunk Mountains in 1975 learned to fly well, started catching their own prey, and eventually migrated south in September. This promises to be an interesting program. Members are urged to attend and to bring their friends. Guests are welcome.

Annual Ring Dance At Rondout Valley

KYSERIKE — The annual ring dance of the junior class at Rondout Valley High School will be held in the high school cafeteria from 8-12 p.m. on Saturday, March 13.

The Electra Sound, a duo of professional disc jockeys, will provide music for juniors and their dates.

Julie Decker is in charge of entertainment, Valerie Gladstone of decorations and Cindy Downs of food.

Whitehead Is Guest

WEST POINT — William Whitehead, director of music at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church in New York City, will present the opening program of the Cadet Chapel Recital series on Sunday, March 14, beginning at 3:30 p.m.

Whitehead, a graduate of the Curtis Institute of Music and a member of the faculty at Mannes College, was the first organist to win the Young Artist Award of the Philadelphia Orchestra.

The public is invited. Admission is free, but voluntary contributions are welcome.

The monthly recital series continues through June. The next is scheduled for Sunday, April 4.

RVHS Concert Set KYSERIKE — The visiting Queensbury High School Band will join the Rondout Valley High School Band in a concert in the high school auditorium tonight beginning at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited.

Jazz Ensemble At Paltz Event

NEW PALTZ — If you remember Glenn Miller's "Little Brown Jug" or recall dancing to "A String of Pearls," you'll enjoy the concert this weekend at the New Paltz High School auditorium, South Putt Corners Road, in college town.

A fund raising event for the Elting Memorial Library of Paltz (the building fund seeks $95,000 for an addition to the library), the concert will feature the Dutchess Community College Jazz Ensemble this Sunday, March 14 at 2 p.m.

The Jazz Ensemble is a big group — 18 in all — which features original arrangements used by the bands of the "Big Band Era." The group was formed in 1970 by Roger Thorpe, DCC associate professor of music. A native of Gardiner and a graduate of New Paltz schools, he plays a scintillating trumpet, has performed professionally with the Glenn Miller, Woody Herman and Les and Larry Elgart Bands.

All solos in Sunday's concert, many by Thorpe himself, will also be the original arrangements as performed when the popular songs were first introduced long ago. It promises to be an afternoon of nostalgia, as well as an event aimed at stimulating enjoyment and excitement. And, every seat filled will help the library's building fund grow. So, if you have not already secured tickets in advance, plan to go Sunday and purchase your ducats at the door.

Of special interest this year will be a collection of 19th century steel engravings of Revolutionary War events, an American flag with 34 stars, various paintings and prints depicting the Hudson River, a collection of antique dolls and related memorabilia, and many fine examples of rare Tiffany pieces.

The Holiday Inn is located on Route 9 at Exit 13 of Interstate Route 84. Parking is free and there is a restaurant on the premises.

At 7:30 p.m. and again at 10 p.m. Sunday, a film, Forbidden Planet, will be shown in the main building auditorium. A 1956 psychological science fiction drama involving the survival of a group of earthlings, it is accompanied by a short film, Shadow of an Apple. Admission is free.

We Overlook The 'Real People'

A lot of people are so busy watching and listening to the presidential candidates, they overlook the real people who could make the difference. Show business personalities.

It's simply a matter of scoring. To date, on the Democratic side Jimmy Carter has the endorsement of the Marshall Tucker band and Gregg Allman. Since Gregg is married to Cher, it could mean the entire block of "navel" votes could go to Carter.

Mo Udall has Linda Ronstadt as a supporter and Fred Harris lists Harry Chapin, Arlo Guthrie, Pete Seeger and Tom Paxton behind him. George Wallace is claiming a large segment of country music performers.

On the Republican side of the ledger, Ronald Reagan hopes to net Pat Boone. Gerald Ford is still doing a single.

The Democrats seem to have captured the lion's share of tennis players (which could make a difference at the convention) but have only one tap dancer (Shirley MacLaine).

The Republicans, however, have several blockbusters, Sammy Davis, Jr., Pearl Bailey and John Wayne, who have been known to effect a landslide victory.

Still confused and wondering who to watch in the forthcoming election year?

Watch Rich Little. Rich is no fool. He's not going to align himself with any candidate whose voice he can't do.

Watch Jeanne Dixon. She's another one who, in her business, can't afford to endorse a "loser."

Watch Bob Hope. As yet, he's uncommitted, but you can bet he won't play footsie with a "ski" man even if he has to nominate Jack Nicklaus himself.

Paul Newman. Some people question how much effect a sex symbol will have on the voting public. I can only tell you Paul Newman supported Humphrey in 1968. In 1972, I voted for Humphrey and he wasn't even running.

Watch for the uncommitted vote. There are 97 per cent of the entertainers in Las Vegas, Hollywood, Nashville and New York who are still on the fence.

My husband refutes my theory. he says people listen to

Fertility Determined By Age

DEAR DR. LAMB — My sister-in-law reads your column faithfully. She says that it is possible for a woman of age 60 to become pregnant if precautions aren't taken. I disagree with her. She will look for your answer.

DEAR READER — You have a 99.9 per cent chance of being right, maybe even greater. Documented pregnancy after the age of 56 has never been reported.

In the past decade there has been some confusion regarding menstrual periods and fertility. Women who have been taking sequential birth control pills and interrupt the medicine monthly for artificial menstruation will continue to have this response as long as they take these pills and follow the regime.

The hormones build up the lining of the uterus (womb) in the first part of the month and when they are stopped the lining is shed. This "period" is induced artificially by hormones and is unrelated to the ovaries. Therefore the continuation of monthly bleeding with such a treatment regimen is unrelated to the ability of a woman to get pregnant. Consumers Get Help

NEW YORK CITY — Consumers served by the Poughkeepsie office of the New York State Department of Law received $323,274 in restitution recovered for them during 1975, Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz announced today.

Recoveries topped the $254,000 recovered in 1974 by the Poughkeepsie office by almost $70,000. Approximately $30,000 of the 1975 recoveries was in security deposits for tenants in two large apartment complexes.

The Poughkeepsie office received 2,487 new complaints and closed out 2,554 complaint files for the calendar year 1975, Lefkowitz said.

Coping

Dear Abby

Abby Advises: 'Spare the Rod in Potty-Training'

DEAR ABBY: This is my first "Dear Abby" letter, and I'm counting on your help.

Our son, who is almost 3, is about to drive me crazy with wetting his pants. I realize that little boys do have their accidents, but surely not all the time!

Abby, we've tried whipping him, shaming him and even keeping him from going hunting with his Daddy (which he loves to do) until he quits wetting his pants and starts acting like a big boy.

Nothing we do seems to help one bit. I'll be having our second child soon, and I would give anything for our first child to be potty-trained once and for all. Please suggest something.

EXHAUSTED MOTHER

DEAR EXHAUSTED: Whipping and shaming your child is exactly what you should NOT do! Your pediatrician is the one who is qualified to advise you. Ask him today. Your son may have a physical problem that needs treating.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to the same man for 30 years. When he picked a wife, he said he wanted a church-going girl who didn't smoke or dance—one who was quiet, modest and not sexy.

I was that girl. I gave him two children who are both married. Now my husband has decided that he no longer loves me, and he's taken up with a younger woman who is sexy and can "turn him on." He doesn't care if she smokes or drinks, either.

Behind my back, he had divorce papers served on me. He never let me work because he wanted me to stay home and be a full-time wife and mother, so I have no skills. I don't want a divorce and am contesting it. I left my home and am living with my daughter. I attend church regularly.

The lawyers say we could live separately, and come and go as we please, but that's against my way of life. I don't believe in divorce, and I still love him, regardless. What is your advice? We are both 50.

MARRIED FOR LIFE

DEAR MARRIED: You may prevent your husband from getting a divorce, but you can't force him to live with you or to love you. Perhaps if you hang on long enough, he'll change his mind and return to you, but you have no guarantees.

In the meantime, find something constructive to do. Go back to school or get involved in civic and volunteer work. Good things are more apt to happen to people who forget themselves and think of others. Try it. It works!

DEAR ABBY: Please help me. I just love to get a man who's hard to get, but after I get him, I lose all interest in him.

Then when he loses all interest in me, I start getting interested in him all over again.

I really don't do this on purpose, Abby, but it has happened so many times there must be a reason for it. Can you explain it?

GOING IN CIRCLES

DEAR GOING: You aren't ready for a serious commitment yet. You enjoy the excitement of the chase, but you don't really want the prize. (P. S. It's typical of adolescent behavior, but some grownups never outgrow it.)

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

SPORTS TODAY Seaver Wants to Be a Met, But . . .

What Bad Year?, Asks Gary Player

MIAMI (UPI) — Gary Player didn't win a tournament on the PGA tour last year and — in his good-natured way — is getting a little tired of hearing about it.

"When you think that I won $125,000 last year, well, I think that's pretty good," he said.

The South African superstar made his complaint after shooting a 69 Thursday in the first round of the $200,000 Doral Open Golf Tournament. He is tied with Jack Nicklaus and eight other golfers three shots behind co-leaders Hubert Green and Ben Crenshaw going into today's second round.

Player says he feels he has to go home once in a while to see his family and also that he is obligated to play in some tournaments overseas.

"Everybody says I had a bad year last year but they don't understand how hard it is to jump in and out, jump in and out," he said.

He won $74,000 on the U.S. tour last year and added another $50,000 in foreign events.

"If I could have stayed on the tour and played almost every tournament here last year, I think I could have doubled or even tripled my money. In fact, I'm sure I could have tripled it," said the muscular Player who was dressed in a white golf shirt, white slacks, white socks and white shoes.

"When I go home, I don't practice, because I've been away for six weeks and I want to spend the time with my family," he said.

With his frequent trips home to South Africa, 10,000 miles away from here, and journeys to international tournaments, Player says he has covered more miles than any other athlete in history.

"It's well over 4 million miles and by the end of this year it'll be close to 5 million," he said.

The 39-year-old Player said he was pleased with his putting Thursday which resulted in his first sub-70 round since he started playing the Doral "Blue Monster" Course in 1962.

"I'm putting extremely well," he said. "But I didn't play all that well from tee to green. I hit a few hooky shots."

Crenshaw, who seems to be finally reaching the plateau predicted for him when he started on the tour in 1973, said he wasn't playing quite as well as he did when he won the Bing Crosby tournament and the Hawaiian Open earlier this year.

Crenshaw, who had only one previous win on the tour, credited his 1976 surge to advice from his father.

"He helped me on my setup (stance) and got me on the right track," the 24-year-old golfer said.

Green said he picked out a new three wood from his stock of new clubs after he missed the cut at Orlando last week and credited the club for an eagle-three on the 10th hole.

He used it for his second shot and it came to rest just four feet from the hole.

"I haven't been hitting my three woods this year and when that shot hit the green, it scared me to death," he grinned.

He said he hoped he was pulling out of a slump that has plagued him since he won the Southern Open last fall.

"It almost seemed like I made more birdies today than I made all year," he said. "It feels good to have a good round under my belt for a change."

Nicklaus bogeyed the first and third holes — both par fives — and he blamed his problems on his early tee-off time of 8 a.m.

"I was playing like I was expecting to wake up at any time," he said.

Mueller Leads

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Craig Mueller held a 14 pin edge today over Louie Moore for the lead in the $65,000 New Orleans Open bowling tournament.

Mueller's pinfall Thursday for 26 games was 5,644 on 6,494 actual pins spilled, a 211 average and 150 bonus pins for his 5-3 match play record.

Moore, of Columbus, Ohio, was at 5,630 followed by Bill Beach, Sharon, Pa., 5,602; Bobby Jacks, New Orleans, 5,600; and Jim Maxey, Atlanta, 5,586. Mueller, of Union, N.J., was seeking his first Professional Bowlers Association title.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The only thing that satisfies the ego more than being Number One is being able to prove it.

That's what makes Hank Aaron feel so good.

He can prove he's the top salary-earner in the majors simply by showing you his bimonthly paycheck. As a designated hitter for the Milwaukee Brewers, the 42-year-old home run record-holder will get $240,000 from them this year. That's $40,000 more than Jerry Ford gets for running the country, and please, no more jokes about which one had the better year. Neither did.

Without any fringe benefits thrown in, for pure salary alone, here's what baseball's pecking order looks like:

Hank Aaron $240,000, Richie Allen $225,000, Johnny Bench $200,000, Joe Morgan $200,000, Pete Rose $190,000, Lou Brock $175,000, Carl Yastrzemski $165,000, Steve Carlton $165,000, Catfish Hunter $150,000, George Scott $150,000, Nolan Ryan $150,000, Bobby Bonds $150,000 and George Scott $150,000.

One player is missing from that list and that's Tom Seaver, who made $170,000 with the Mets last year. That would put him number seven on the list between Brock and Yastrzemski.

The Mets talked salary with Seaver for this year at the end of last season, but he told them he was in no great hurry, he'd rather wait. He could afford to in view of the fact he was the National League's biggest winner with 22 victories, he struck out 243 batters, making him the leader in that department also, and he set a major league record by striking out more than 200 for the eighth straight season.

One other little item. He won the Cy Young Award for the third time and the only other pitcher who ever did that was Sandy Koufax way back when there were only 10 teams in each league. That "little" item amounts to a sure ticket for Seaver to the Hall of Fame in Cooperstown after he's finished pitching.

Occasionally during the past few years, some people would argue over who was the best pitcher in baseball. Now nobody does. There no longer is any argument over who is the best pitcher in baseball. Everybody knows Tom Seaver is, and he knows it, too, because he doesn't exactly live in a vacuum.

SPORT PARADE

Milton Richman,
UPI Sports Editor

Now he checks that money list above and comes away with the distinct feeling something isn't right. He hasn't forgotten how Catfish Hunter got $3 million for signing with the Yankees a year ago as a free agent and now with the new rulings on the reserve clause and free agency staring every player in the face, he easily imagines how much he could get if he were a free agent.

But he's not. He still belongs to the Mets and will have to negotiate his contract with them unless he's traded.

They ask him for a figure. He gives them one—$825,000 over three years. That works out to $275,000 a year, a figure that would jump Seaver over Hank Aaron and make him the biggest salary earner in baseball.

The Mets get upset. Seaver is taking advantage of the situation, they feel. Don Grant, the club's board chairman, and Joe McDonald, the general manager, say if Seaver is unhappy with the Mets and wants to be traded, they'll trade him.

"I'm sure they mean it," Tom Seaver said Thursday from Tampa, Fla.

"I don't want to be traded," added the Mets' 31-year-old ace. "I told them that last year, but I'm not coming to them with my hat in my hand."

Seaver doesn't think he's coming at the Mets with any gun, either.

He talks about what some other players are getting, and he doesn't mention any names but it's obvious he hasn't forgotten the $3 million the Yankees gave Catfish Hunter.

"If another player makes X amount of dollars," he says, "should I cover my eyes and pay no attention to that whatsoever. Should I humble myself and say 'oh, no, I don't want the money, let the ball club keep it.' What am I supposed to do, give it the old 'gee, whiz, gang,' and go happily on my way? I'm not in that boat."

Seaver says he has had a happy 10-year association with the Mets, hopes it will continue and believes it will.

"I don't want to leave New York," he says, "but I don't want to stay in New York knowing I could go somewhere else and make more money."

He immediately adds, "somewhere else" could be New York as well.

If you need that translated, Seaver is referring to the Yankees. Imagine Tom Seaver and Catfish Hunter on the same pitching staff. A lot of things would have to happen for that to come about. Chances are they won't.

The odds are Tom Seaver will sign with the Mets again, possibly for somewhere between what Hank Aaron and Richie Allen are getting.

That'll make him number two on the list. The ideal spot from which to try harder.

Miller: Season May Be Delayed

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — Baseball club owners and Major League Players Association executive director Marvin Miller go back to the negotiating table today to try to get talks off dead center and clear the way for the opening of the 1976 season on schedule.

But Miller and several players think the season is in danger of being delayed.

About 40 players, including the members of the executive board of the players' union, met for more than two hours Thursday with the owner's players relations committee and Miller described the non-negotiating discussions as "the same old hash."

Today's meeting will be a negotiating session and Miller said he was "almost certain" the talks would continue through the weekend.

The players met earlier Thursday for more than two and one half hours to discuss the situation and unanimously adopted a resolution criticizing the owners, Miller said.

Mr. and Mrs. Bench Splitting?

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Is the celebrated marriage between Cincinnati Reds star Johnny Bench and model Vickie Chesser near the end?

Bench, who took the blonde beauty as his bride last Feb. 21 after a whirlwind courtship, said Thursday night "I'll have something to say about it tomorrow."

Bench first saw Vickie on television as the Ultra-Brite "Sex Appeal" girl and had a mutual friend arrange a blind date. It was only 24 days later the couple announced their plans to be married.

"We consider the owners' lockout of spring training camps to be not only destructive to good faith negotiations but also destructive to the image of baseball," the players' resolution said.

"It is an attempt to intimidate the players rather than negotiate and it will not succeed," the players said.

Miller said the resolution was not read to the owners' committee but said he did give it the "gist" of the resolution.

Miller said Ed Fitzgerald, chairman of the Milwaukee Brewers and a member of the owners' committee, admitted during Thursday's session that the lockout was a pressure tactic.

"It was admitted here today they feel if they open the season they don't have a bargaining position, therefore it is to pressure the players. It is a pressure tactic pure and simple," Miller said.

Miller said the primary purpose of Thursday's meeting was to clarify the players' position and a spokesman for the owners said it was to outline the problems to the players and to build some communications.

Miller said the owners feel the season can open as scheduled but said "as time passes it gets more and more doubtful. There's an awful lot to do in a short time."

Cincinnati Reds catcher Johnny Bench said he didn't see how spring training camps can be open before the middle of next week, if, then, and said the question of retroactivity was a major "logjam."

That issue revolves around whether or not any contract negotiated by the union would supercede those players might now be under. More than 160 players are now playing out their option year, which means they become free agents at the end of the 1976 season.

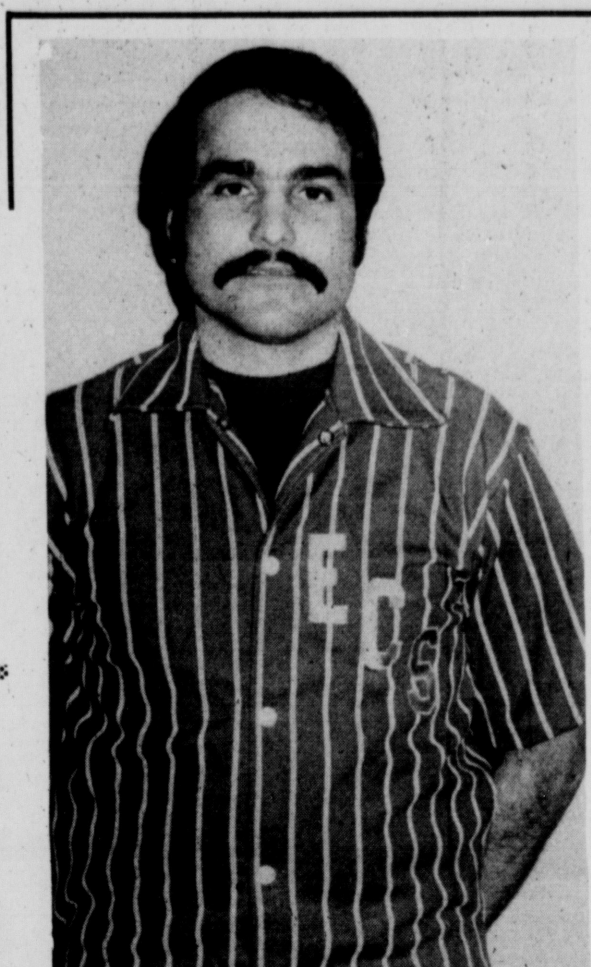

Recent federal court decisions have ruled that a player becomes a free agent after he completes the length of his contract, plus the option year.

There is a strong probability any new union contract would provide a player stay with a team a given time, possibly five or six years, then play out one option year before becoming a free agent.

Players now in their option year are insisting their current contracts be honored and Los Angeles Dodger pitcher Mike Marshall said Thursday he would sue the players association if it negotiated that right away.

"I don't want to hurt any other player, but I feel I should protect the rights given me by Franklin Delano Roosevelt," Marshall told newsmen as he left the meeting early to catch a plane. He did not elaborate.

"We will not strip the players of their rights in any contract," Miller said.

Vic Dalessio

Dalessio Thinks He's Had Enough

By Steve Kane

ELLENVILLE—After two stints as the varsity basketball coach at Ellenville High School, Vic Dalessio said he thinks he's had enough.

"I don't think I'll be around next year," Dalessio said Thursday. "I haven't submitted a resignation—I may not even do that. I might just not apply for the position next year."

Dalessio expressed some disenchantment with the situation at Ellenville during the year, and he reiterated those feelings after his team completed a 6-11 season.

"I've stepped back and reassessed my own feelings, and it seems like I'm not making the progress I should," he said. "It's the lack of respect that hurts most. I've loved the game all my life, and I still love it, but I'm a teacher first, and if you can't teach, you're not successful. I don't think the kids want it. . . I'm not getting the feedback from them that I should."

Though a part of Ellenville's record can be excused for its presence in the same division as strong teams from Liberty, Fallsburgh and Marlboro, there is still the general opinion that Ellenville did not play up to its potential this year. Dalessio felt the attitude his team displayed contributed to that.

"I wouldn't mind losing if everybody gave a hundred per cent and we just lost to better teams, but it's not like that. There is no self pride and no respect for the system. After a while it gets to you," he said.

Dalessio detailed some incidents dating back to the summer that pointed up the apathy he ran against. One was an indoor summer league that folded for lack of participants; another was a minuscule turnout at a breakfast that had St. John's University coach Lou Carnesecca as its speaker.

"Ellenville is a funny place," he said.

Marlboro Gains 'B' Finals

MARLBORO—Marlboro High made its way into the finals of the Class B Section Nine basketball tournament at Orange County Community College Thursday night, and the thing most noticeable about the Dukes' victory over Albertus-Magnus was the ease with which it was accomplished.

Behind a fine all around game by center Anthony Monroe, Marlboro crushed its opponent, 64-39. In the only other sectional action Thursday, Washingtonville upset

Nyack, 75-68 to gain a berth in the Class A finals opposite top seeded Liberty.

Monroe dominated the backboards, taking down 14 rebounds for the Dukes. He also threw in ten of his game high 19 points in the second period to help Marlboro shake off a slow start and leave Albertus-Magnus eight points behind at halftime.

Duke coach Joe Ciampi was satisfied with his team's execution at both ends of the court. He had reason to be. The 39 points Albertus-Magnus scored wasn't much for a team that likes to run, and the contributions of John DeMarco and Rich Mills gave the winners three shooters in double figures.

Marlboro led a sluggish first quarter, 11-5 then started clicking offensively in the second period. It was as good as over by then as the Dukes opened things up by 20 points in the third quarter. DeMarco finished with 15 points, and Mills hit ten.

In Saturday's championship round at OCC, Marlboro will face James O'Neill in the 6:30 p.m. contest, and Liberty will take on Washingtonville at 8:15 p.m.

Ali-Young Set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Muhammad Ali, providing a biennial year touch for boxing, has decided to return home again to defend his heavyweight crown against third-ranked Jimmy Young in the nation's capital April 30.

Actually, the scheduled 15-round will be fought at the Capital Centre on the outskirts of Washington in Largo, Md. It will be televised nationally for home viewing and will be Ali's first ring appearance in the continental United States since his successful defense of the championship against Ron Lyle in Las Vegas last summer. In recent years, he has fought at such far-flung sites as Zaire, Manila, Malaysia and Puerto Rico.

Ali's bout with Young was announced by Abe Pollin, chairman of the board of the Capital Centre, who will be promoting the fight with Don King, the New Yorker who has arranged most of the champion's recent title matches.

Young, whose biggest win was a victory over Lyle in a 10-rounder, boasts a record of 16 wins, four losses and two draws. Ali has won eight straight against sometimes less than impressive opposition since losing to Ken Norton on March 31, 1973.

It will be the first heavyweight bout in the Washington area since Joe Louis knocked out Buddy Baer in the old Griffith Stadium on March 31, 1941. It also will accomplish a boyhood ambition for Pollin, who saw the Louis-Baer fight as a 17-year-old high school youth and has wanted to bring another title fight back to the nation's capital.

Pollin told newsmen the minimum guarantee for Ali would be worked out by King and the champion.

Hopewell Hopeful

Alabama and North Carolina Have Stumbled Into No-Man's Land

By UPI

Alabama and North Carolina, one by winning and the other by losing, each stumbled into the no-man's land of the NCAA battle which begins Saturday.

Sixth-ranked North Carolina was upset by Virginia in the Atlantic Coast Conference and, as a result, was placed in the Midwest region where top-ranked Indiana and No. 2 Marquette stand as formidable obstacles between the Tar Heels and the NCAA's final round of four in Philadelphia.

Even worse for seventh-ranked Alabama was the fact the Crimson Tide put itself in the same unenviable position as North Carolina by winning the Southeastern Conference title. If the Crimson Tide had not beaten Vanderbilt in overtime Monday, Alabama would have been placed in the Eastern region with an easier path to Philadelphia.

Complicating matters, North Carolina and Alabama face each other at Dayton, Ohio, in top matchup of Saturday's first round. For the survivor, Indiana and Marquette stand next in the line.

The undefeated Hoosiers, led by Scott May and Kent Benson, face St. John's at South Bend, Ind. Indiana defeated the Redmen 76-69 earlier this season to win the Holiday Festival tournament in New York, where St. John's enjoyed the support of a large partisan crowd.

Marquette, 25-1, takes a 21-game winning streak against Western Kentucky in the other half of the doubleheader at Dayton. The Warriors are looking ahead to a Midwest showdown with Indiana and Marquette Coach Al McGuire said, "I'd like to get at Indiana as soon as possible. The sooner the better. Too many things can happen in a tournament if you're looking ahead. Indiana's been close to getting beat a few times and I think they can be tightening some."

Indiana, however, is not the only undefeated team entering the tournament as third-ranked Rutgers carries a 28-0 record into post-season play. The Scarlet Knights meet New Jersey rival Princeton at Providence, R.I. Rutgers won an earlier game with Princeton this season, 72-65.

Defending champion UCLA makes its first NCAA tournament appearance under the guidance of Gene Bartow. The Bruins, who have won 10 of the last 12 NCAA titles, take a 23-4 mark into their first-round game against San Diego State in Eugene, Ore. Although their record falls short of their more spectacular seasons, the Bruins entered last year's tournament in much the same fashion and went on to win the title.

Fourth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas, which lost only once, faces Boise State in the second game at Eugene.

Eighth-ranked Notre Dame plays Metro Six champion Cincinnati at Lawrence, Kan., in one of the better matches of the day. The other games involving top 10 teams have ninth-ranked Michigan against Wichita State in Denton, Tex., and 10th-ranked Washington against Missouri at Lawrence, Kan.

Virginia, which upset North Carolina State, Maryland and North Carolina to win the ACC tournament last week, faces DePaul at Charlotte, N.C., and Tennessee, lucky to be edged out of the SEC crown by Alabama, faces Virginia Military in the opening game of that doubleheader.

Goalie Gary Edwards stops drive by Phil Esposito (L)

Cavs a Cinderella Team?

Will the Cleveland Cavaliers, once the laughingstock of the NBA, be the Cinderella team of 1976?

The Cavs dumped the 1975 Cinderella team—the Golden State Warriors—110-99 Thursday night before a sellout crowd of 19,821 in Cleveland.

The victory was Cleveland's 11th straight at home and moved the Cavs to within 1 1/2 games of the Central Division-leading Washington Bullets.

The loss, only the 19th in 66 games for the Warriors, kept the defending NBA champions from clinching a tie for the Western Division title.

Austin Carr, who finally discarded a knee brace that had decorated his right leg for the last two seasons, kept Cleveland in the game by hitting 6-of-8 shots to help the Cavs grab a 60-59 halftime lead.

"It sure is a lot different coming off the bench," said Carr, who was a blue chip starter for the Cavs before running into a series of leg injuries. "You have to have a different attitude coming off the bench, but I feel like my old self again and am driving for the basket."

Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch called the game "our best defensive game of the season."

"When you give the Warriors only 87 shots, you are doing a great job on defense," said Fitch. "The way we played on our recent road trip, I was scared to death of facing the Warriors, but we went for our inside passing game in the third quarter and it paid off."

Bobby Smith, who scored 10 of his game-high 24 points in the first period, flipped in 10 in a 28-point third period that propelled the Cavs to an 88-77 lead going into the final 12 minutes.

The Warriors had trouble scoring in the third period, connecting on only 8-of-20 shots.

"We just weren't smart in that third period," said Golden State's Rick Barry, who had 24 points but only two in the second half. "We didn't play defense like we should have and we let them run their offense. If you don't play good defense, it opens up things and Cleveland has the shooters."

The Warriors cut the lead to 102-95 with 4:10 left, but a pair of foul shots by Nate Thurmond and a stuff by Jim Brewer ended the Warriors' victory hopes one minute later.

Downhill Finale Set

ASPEN, Colorado (UPI) — The finale of the downhill portion of the World Cup Ski racing today will have little effect on the overall standings of the international competition.

The top three overall competitors — Sweden's Ingemar Stenmark and Italy's Piero Gros and Gustavo Thoeni—are not entered in the downhill. Gros and Thoeni will try to cut Stenmark's commanding lead in Sunday's Mens Slalom, also a finale in the World Cup.

Downhill champion Franz Klammer of Austria, who drew the ninth starting position today, had the fastest time of 1:50.050 minutes and three practice runs over the 11,000-foot course with a vertical drop of 2,900 feet. Klammer is fourth overall and is given almost no chance of catching the leaders.

Drawing the top starting positions were Sette Ferstl of West Germany, Dave Irwin of Canada and Ken Read of Canada.

Rosie Mittermaier of West Germany need not worry that she was not among the top 10 finishers in Thursday's trial run. She already has added the Women's World Cup title to her two Olympic gold medals and World Combined Title this year and is the 13th starter today.

Immaculata Advances

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Top-seeded Immaculata (Pa.), the nation's No. 2 women's basketball team, met Cheyney (Pa.) today in the quarterfinals of the regional Eastern Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women basketball playoffs.

Immaculata easily defeated Kean (N.J.) 77-52 Thursday. Second-seeded Montclair (N.J.) also advanced by trouncing Rutgers (N.J.) 91-58. Montclair played Lock Haven (Pa.) today in the winner's bracket.

In other first-round games, Cheyney defeated Pittsburgh 62-50, Lock Haven upset seventh-seeded Delaware 91-64, Edinboro edged West Chester (Pa.) 65-64, Slippery Rock beat Penn State 60-35, St. Joseph's downed East Stroudsburg (Pa.) 73-60 and Maryland defeated William Paterson (N.J.) 73-59.

Addison (Ad) Jones, the city's legendary Bowling Milkman and all-time No. 1 sponsor, remains a remarkably active octogenarian in behalf of the New York State Bowling Association championships.

After racking up considerable mileage, shoe leather and his own money, Jones has lined up 23 teams for the Kingston Night Program on May 16 in Albany. Mayor Frank Koenig is expected to accompany the Kingston delegation which will be greeted by the ABC's past president, Joseph Robellotto.

Kingston Bowling Association has pledged four teams, captained by Jack Spader, Ed Thomas, Vince Carpio and Joe Fautz.

Other: Kingston entries, with teams and captains: Adirondack Trailways, Tony Van Gonsic; Kingston Cablevision, Wayne Hommel; H&E Wolf Roofing, Hans Wolf; Fisher Home, Robert Nerone; Roundout Savings Bank, Gerry Kearney; The Jones Boys, Robert Shelighner; Tony Shell, Cottrell, Richard Buck.

Kelder's Grocery, Hurley, Randall Kelder, Jr.; The Fleas, John Betkowski; Kozy Tavern, Ray Houghtaling; Artie's Bar and Grill, Robert Boughton; Mayone Construction, Rich Mayone; Montgomery Ward, Bob Blume; P&B Pro Shop, Herb Petersen; Saugerties Bowling Center, Arthur Young; Blue Mountain Market, Howard Bearman; Jack's Promise Land Rest, Harold Lindberg; American Legion 150, Kingston, Joe Fautz; Immaculate Conception, Kingston, Joe Mannello.

Bob (Tall) Smith continues to hold firm as the Kingston area's scoring leader (730) but his average has shrunk (?) from 215 to 213 since the last ratings. He is still conceded a solid shot to erase Johnny Ferraro's all-time average mark of 209. Bill Vertetis is in second place with 720.

Joan Jameson, awaiting another child, leads the distaff side with 645. Barb Van Keuren is runnerup at 636. One change during the week saw Terry Becker moved into the No. 6 spot with a 629 in the Bowlerama Quads.

John Relyea and Roger Murray are tied with 289 solos. Art Schnall has 285. Tops among women are Sis Balash with 267 and Karen Tucker 266.

Why are there so many good golfers and bowlers these days compared to 20 years ago? Because, they start earlier, that's why. How about 5-year-old Charlie Tiano III (no relation) rolling 129 in his third league appearance? He did it with a 9-pound ball and, as a Mini-Bantam bowler is eligible for an American Junior Bowling Congress award, for rolling 125 or more. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles (Ben) Tiano, Jr. . . 11-year-old Glenn Eckhoff posted 154-221, 224-599, losing his 600 on a 10-pin tap on the last ball . . . Richard Scoville (11) won an AJBC award for rolling seven strikes in a row in a 215 game.

The top three averages in the International League are: Bob (T) Smith 213-plus, Chris Schick 201 and Ed Pelham 198. . . Coby's Tavern of Saugerties appears to have the team title wrapped up. . . The International has two teams in Oklahoma City for the American Bowling Congress Championships. . . Among the local hotshots west of the Mississippi are Bob (T) Smith, Jack Steve and David Ferraro, Warren (Pudgy) Dunn, Ron Brandt, Joe (Lefty) Fautz, Jerry Smith, Hans Wolf and Al Radell. . . Jim Lichtenberg, a 185 Kingston High bowler, fired 671 and 1235 for six games to capture the Section One individual title, while Saugerties High was taking the team title. . .

The 42nd annual Championship Tournament of the New York State Women's Bowling Association, Inc. which opens tonight in Plattsburg on the North Bowl Lanes has attracted a total of 2,526 teams, 5,296 doubles and 10,592 singles competing for a total prize fund of $124,726.

Team entries represent 96 of the 97 local associations in New York State. Leading associations in travelling teams are Syracuse with 185 teams, Rochester 168, Buffalo 137. Rochester leads in doubles with 402, followed by Syracuse 346 and Buffalo 333.

Percentage-wise, the Keeseville Women's Bowling Association has the largest entry with 31 percent. Plattsburg WBA, hostess association, has entered 140 teams and 215 sets of doubles.

Tourney Dates for KBA

KINGSTON — Kingston Bowling Association has announced April 24-25 and May 1-2 dates for its annual championship tournament at Mid-City Lanes.

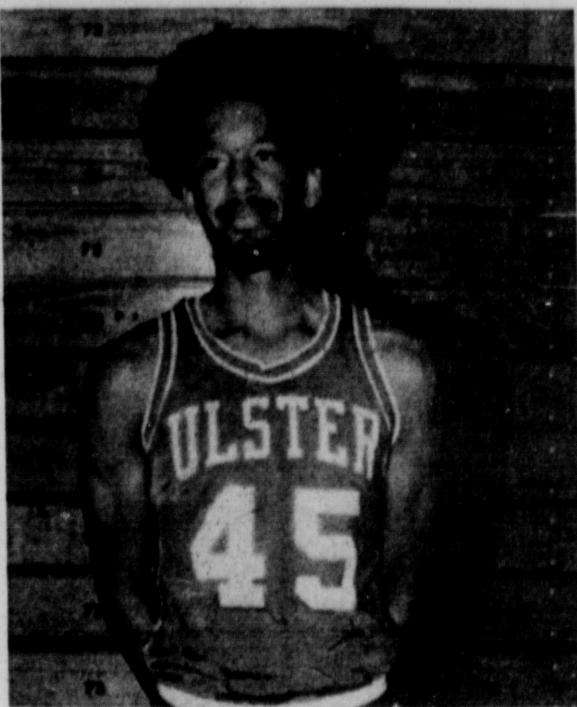

Tournament Manager Edmund Thomas said that entry blanks are available at the three local bowling association establishments. There is no change in entry fees of $30 for teams, $12 doubles and $6 singles. The all-events fee is $2 per bowler.

The team event is scheduled Saturday, April 24 and Sunday, May 2, with singles and doubles Sunday, April 25 and Saturday, May 1.

The KBA is projecting an estimated $4,500 prize list. The increase cost of bowling, Thomas said, has cut into the prize list but the KBA hopes to supplement its prize fund with proceeds of a special promotion to keep the prize on a par with other years.

Deadline for entries is April 20. There will be no extension of the deadline because of the short amount of time between the deadline and opening date of the tourney.

Bible Is Feature Of Bicentennial

RHINEBECK — A Bicentennial reenactment of the inauguration of President George Washington scheduled in Rhinebeck on March 20 will include the Bible upon which the first president of the United States took his oath of office.

The Bible will be used in the reenactment under the auspices of Rhinebeck Chapter Order of DeMolay through the consent of St. John's Lodge No. 1 A.Y.M., trustees of the historic Bible.

The famed Bible will be used in the Bicentennial ceremony marking the inauguration of President Washington by Chancellor of New York Robert R. Livingston, then a resident of Rhinebeck.

A Bicentennial parade will kick off the big day with units assembling at the Beekman Arms at 4 p.m. The inauguration Rites will follow at 5 p.m. at the Old Dutch Reformed Church in Rhinebeck, of which Livingston was a benefactor and parishioner. A commemorative dinner will follow at 6 p.m. at the Rhinebeck Masonic Temple.

All community organizations are being encouraged to participate in the Bicentennial parade, in an effort to make this a community project, through contact with DeWitt Gurnell, Town of Rhinebeck Historian.

The reenactment ceremony will be portrayed by the following: DeWitt Gurnell, Town of Rhinebeck Historian; and director of the Bicentennial activities of Rhinebeck as George Washington; Joseph Waters, Rhinebeck Justice of the Peace and President of the Rhinebeck Rotary as John Adams; Earl G. Howells, advisor of the Rhinebeck DeMolay as James Otis and Rick L. Williams, master councilor of the Four Rivers Region Order of DeMolay, and Past Master Councilor of Rhinebeck Chapter, as Robert R. Livingston.

Proceeds from the commemorative dinner will benefit Rhinebeck DeMolay's charitable and Bicentennial activities. Reservations for the dinner are available by mailing a check or money order to: DeMolay, P.O. Box 251, Rhinebeck, 12572.

Gurnell has been working with the DeMolay, in designating this event as Rhinebeck's most historical program for its celebration of the Bicentennial year, something not to be missed by anyone and to be witnessed by everyone.

This regional conference on energy is viewed by its organizers as being one of the most significant symposiums on energy to have been planned for the Mid-Hudson region.

The day-long conference will be held from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

$18,000 Hospital Gift

ELLENVILLE — The Ellenville Hospital Auxiliary has received a gift of $18,000 in Israel Bonds from Mildred and Lou Resnick, it has been announced by Evelyn Greenberg, president of the hospital service organization.

The Resnicks who have been frequent and generous contributors to the hospital and the auxiliary chose to give $18,000 because it represents a thousand "chai" the Hebrew word for "life" and the representation of the number 18.

The gift was made in honor of the hospital's 10th birthday as a tribute to Florence and Irving Blickstein. "We were particularly pleased," the Resnicks said, "that the hospital Board of Directors chose to honor the Blicksteins at the annual dinner. We appreciate their steadfast and enthusiastic support of the hospital, their own generosity and that which they encourage from others, as well as their devoted friendship."

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, MARCH 13
Your birthday today: Diversification is your key to success this year. Your work proceeds with an added creative quality or you move on to something else. Skill at presenting yourself favorably comes from current experience. Relationships develop complexities connected by fascinating threads. Today's natives have captivating personalities, and reformist ideas that aren't always pursued consistently.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Get out of set habits even if it means you temporarily have to skip regular chores. Creative or original work is needed. Get busy at it.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Local travel and errands compete with equally important communications that demand attention. By refurbishing your home you get better use out of it.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: The soft-sell, easygoing, sociable approach is favorable for organizing further ventures. Even partner's fantasies point out profitable facts.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Learn as much as you can about family history. Inventive hobbies pay off; skills you've gained help with current problems.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: You're at a personal peak, and have more leverage than usual. Go after what appeals to you. Chance circumstances get people favorably involved in your plans.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Don't explain what you hope to achieve. Enjoy the present status quo. It never quite comes back, but is affected by what you make of it now.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: A solution is in the offing, perhaps one you gave up on ever finding. It's a great day to resume broken ties, and for group reorganization.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: You finally hear favorable comment. Continue the practical approach in your job. Long-time friends egg you on, but offer little down-to-earth help.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Despite much planning, a last-minute check shows much is lacking. You are of enormous help to others if you realize their place in your program.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Partners come up with provocative ideas that don't fit in with existing projects. Make friends with people who would like to know your better.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Keep careful record of what you lend. New investments are feasible only if you completely understand them.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: You have the facilities, the know-how, and the cooperation needed. What you must put in is personal effort. Travel brings unexpected benefits.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Ph.D.

LOCKER: (Q) Diana and I share a big locker at school, which we fixed up real nice last fall. We told Sue she could put some of her books in it because her locker is upstairs.

Now she has taken over the locker completely. It wouldn't be so bad if she were neat, but she is sloppy. We've asked her time and again to clean up her stuff but nothing happens.

We don't want to throw her out because we know she'd be hurt and maybe treat us like enemies. What else can we do?—In a Mess in Florida

(A) Very neatly type or print a set of rules for neatness and a limit on books and other items, for your locker. Paste the list of rules up on the inside of the door. Call Sue's attention to them. Tell her they must be adhered to.

Then if she keeps up her sloppy ways you will have just and written reason to tell her she didn't shape up so she must ship out.

Don't be chicken about this. With a girl like Sue you have to be realistic.

HELPING: (Q) I have a real big problem. You see, my boy friend and I broke up and then got back together. He has been shooting up and wants me to help him stop. I really don't know how I can help him without falling to pieces. If you would please give me a little advice I would surely appreciate it.—Very Worried in Virginia

(A) Your best course is love and understanding and willingness to listen to his problems. You should also encourage him to talk to a school counselor, who could help him more than you can.

Under no circumstances join him in taking drugs of any kind. If he insists on this, let him go his own way.

Nuisance bid pays dividends

America against Great Britain in the 1962 World's championship.

When Bobby bid five spades over South's four notrump, he wasn't taking any real chance. He was sure they could make a heart slam and equally sure that no one was going to stop to double him at his real desperado bid.

Almost all experts have a way to handle Blackwood interference. The Jacoby method is to double the interference bid to show no aces, pass to show one ace and bid to show more than one ace.

The British pair may well have been playing that same system with the British North player concluding that his spade void was the same as an ace in view of Bobby's five-spade bid.

Whatever the reason, the British arrived at the heart grand slam and to add insult to injury Bobby's partner looked at his ace of diamonds and doubled.

Seek Stocking-Masked Robber

By Matt Spireng
KINGSTON—Police are seeking a stocking-masked robber who confronted two female clerks at Stewart's Bread & Butter Shop on Albany Avenue with a sawed-off shotgun Thursday night and fled with some $47 in cash.

The armed robbery occurred shortly before 11 p.m. City detectives said the thief fled on foot.

The robber was described as a white male with dark complexion, about 6-feet tall, with a black full mustache. He wore a stocking mask with holes cut out for the eyes and mouth, detectives said, and a black checked coat.

The robber demanded that the two clerks, who were alone in the store at the time, hand over the money, which was placed in a paper bag. He pushed past a male customer just entering the store as he fled, police said. The customer called police when the clerks told him what had happened.

Dentist Charged

Saugerties Town Police early today charged Woodstock dentist Theodore Belfor, 34, of Glasco Turnpike with second degree burglary and third degree assault after he allegedly kicked in the door to a Blue Mountain Road home and punched the woman occupant in the face.

Police did not identify the alleged victim, who they said knew Belfor, but explained that she was allegedly punched three times in the face and possibly sustained a broken nose.

Belfor was released after posting $500 bail following the 2:40 a.m. incident.

Assault

Ellenville State Police on Thursday charged James Sheridan, 37, an employee at Lake Minnewaska with second degree assault in connection with an incident last Sunday.

Authorities said that during a dispute with several teenagers over some property they claimed to have found lying at the side of the road on Lake Minnewaska property Sheridan allegedly swung the neck of a cello (not connected to the cello at the time) which smashed through the rear side window of the car the teenagers were riding in and struck one of the occupants in the face as he was eating a sandwich, knocking out all the teeth in one side of his mouth

Concorde Challenge Brewing

NEW YORK (UPI) — Air France and British Airways, challenging the authority of New York and New Jersey, say they intend to begin federally approved Concorde supersonic flights to Kennedy Airport next month.

But, the Port Authority of New York-New Jersey, which operates the airport, said Thursday it will use "every legal means" to bar the Concorde until completion of a six-month trial at three other airports.

The airlines, citing authorization from Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr., sent a telegram to Port Authority Chairman William J. Ronan saying they intend to schedule flights into and out of Kennedy "beginning on or about April 10, 1976, and to initiate training flights next week."

Woodstock Clinic

WOODSTOCK — A clinic for immunization against polio, whooping cough, diphtheria, tetanus, measles and German measles will be conducted March 17 at the Woodstock Health Center, 8 Maple Lane, from 9:30 a.m. until 10:30. The clinic, conducted by the Ulster County Health Department, will be under the direction of Marilyn Mitchell. These preventive services are available for those age three months to 21 years.

Police Beat

and lacerating his face. Sheridan was released in the custody of his employer following arraignment.

Two Arrested

Following a call from an alert resident, Ulster County Sheriff's deputies and Shandaken Town Constables early today arrested two Sayville, L.I. residents, John Flynn, 16, and William Rome, 28, on charges of third degree burglary. Deputies said they were allegedly caught inside John's Sunoco Gas Station on Route 28 in Big Indian shortly after midnight. They were jailed in lieu of $2,500 bail each.

Minor Injury

Hurley State Police said today that one minor injury was reported Wednesday morning when a school bus carrying about 50 children flipped on its side on Route 28A in the Town of Olive. The bus had pulled to the side of the road to make room for an oncoming truck, went into a ditch and toppled over, police said. No tickets were issued. One 14-year-old complained of a bruise on the knee, authorities said.

Jewelry Taken

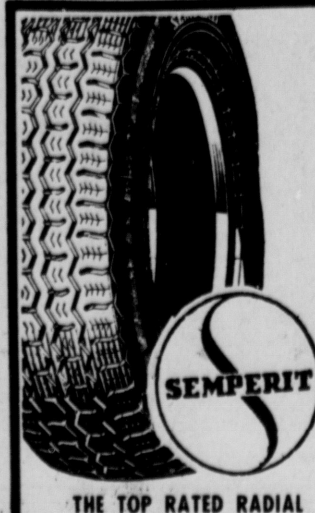

An as yet undetermined amount of jewelry was taken in a burglary at Lucci's Jewelers, 601 Broadway, sometime Wednesday night or early Thursday. City detectives said several showcases were ransacked. An inventory was underway today to determine exactly how much was taken.

County Requests Law on Tax Addition

By Lynn Mulvaney

KINGSTON—Concern for the county's economy echoed throughout a marathon four-hour session of the Ulster County Legislature Thursday during which provision was made for the implementation of an additional one per cent sales tax, creation of an industrial development agency and a youth bureau.

The board voted 18 to 12 with two abstentions and an absence to request

state legislation providing the increase in sales tax in order to keep its options open and hold down the real property tax. Others felt off-track betting would provide the revenue when needed. Still others advocated keeping a tight rein on spending.

Legislator Philip Davis, R-Dist. 7, said "If the county had the sales tax option last fall, we wouldn't have had to raise the real estate tax."

Minority Leader Louis M. Klein, D-Dist. 6, who previously agreed to co-sponsor the legislation and changed his mind, said he "cannot rely on the will of the majority to hold the sales tax in abeyance." He felt it would be imposed "to bail the legislature out of reckless spending during the balance of the year."

Countering, Melvin Mones, R-City, took exception to Klein's statement saying the legislature can't spend beyond its 1976 budget.

Mones also indicated that if the county imposes the tax without having the state's approval of the increase, "the City of Kingston would be robbed of $375,380 it now gleams from its sales tax."

Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago, R-Dist. 8, said he talked about preempting the city sales tax and Koenig reportedly told Savago, "No way, Pete, we need it."

The additional one per cent tax would mean $4 million to apply to the 1977 budget, according to Majority Leader Ernest J. Gardner, R-Dist. 5, "if it is needed."

Several Democrats called it a regressive tax and suggested that the county take "a deep look at OTB."

After consideration for a number of years, the legislature approved overwhelmingly its request that the New York State Legislature provide for the creation of an industrial development agency embracing the entire county. It is seen as a stimulus for new industry as well as the expansion of existing industries. The creation of the youth bureau came to fruition despite the board's previous stance against establishing it at this time because of the tight economy. Since then it has been learned that the youth board has received approval to hire an administrator and secretary with CETA funds if they are applied for now. Once the office is created, $120,000 in state aid will be available for the county for youth programs.

Further concern was expressed for the county payroll in view of the fact that the legislators have conveyed the desire to hold to the present county employment levels and reduce the number of employees through attrition.

A move to control the payroll was made by William R. West, R-Dist. 2 but the proposal was referred to the Finance Committee by a vote of 18-14.

Economic priorities also came into the picture in controversial votes on proposals to demolish the old Buick garage and prepare plans for construction of a highway department administrative building. The board voted 28 to 4 to demolish the garage to make way for parking space and approved by a vote of 24 to 8, the hiring of architect Thomas H. Clancy to design the administration building on Hurley Avenue.

A tax break for homeowners using solar energy was defeated by a tie vote of 16 to 16 after a move to refer it to the Tax Base Study Committee was also defeated.

State Officials Confirm Report

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON—Officials from the State Department of Taxation and Finance have again confirmed what Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, D-101st Dist. previously stated; the fact that Ulster County could increase its sales tax by as much as two percentage points last December without approval of the state legislature and without "preempting" any of the city's sales tax revenue.

In the case of state approval, it wasn't necessary because the tax outside the city is only five per cent and the county can on its own volition go to seven per cent any time it chooses.

In the case of preempting the city's sales tax share, the county had no choice back in December because the law requires it give the city six months notice prior to the end of the city's fiscal year (which would have been June 30) and that wasn't possible in December.

The county has the option when preempting city sales tax but one and one half per cent of the city's two per cent sales tax is sheltered from any county takeover. The county could have, with proper notice, taken one-half per cent of the city's two per cent sales tax, depriving the city of $387,500 in sales tax revenues.

The city, based on the existing one per cent sales tax collected for the county, is now paying $775,000 a year to the county in sales taxes.

Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago, R-Dist. 8, says he doesn't want to take sales tax revenue from the city nor does he want to increase the county sales tax while the city's sales tax remains the same, thus the move for an eight per cent sales tax which would require state legislative approval.

With an eight per cent sales tax the county could increase the sales tax one per cent across the board, raising it from a total of seven per cent to eight per cent in the city and from five per cent to six per cent in the county.

UPI Dateline Shooting in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Moslem rebels seized two army barracks in southern Lebanon today, claiming complete control of all military posts in the southern region. The leader of the army rebellion said he was winning the struggle for power.

LONDON — Prime Minister Harold Wilson has scored a solid victory over rebellious left-wing members of his party, but took a clobbering today from Conservatives in two special parliamentary elections.

The Wilson government bounced back Thursday from a humiliating defeat in the House of Commons to win a confidence vote by an unexpected 17-vote margin on its proposal to slash $10 billion in public spending.

Howls of Protest at Paltz

NEW PALTZ—The howls of the Asian Studies Department were the loudest at the State University College at New Paltz Thursday, and lasted overnight, as President Stanley K. Coffman Jr. announced just where the state budget ax would fall.

More than a dozen Asian studies students were in their second day of a fast and occupation of Dr. Coffman's ninth floor office Thursday, and were prepared to bed down on the carpet despite possible forcible eviction to protest the cuts that threaten to reduce that department by 50 per cent.

An Asian Studies major, Ann Carli, explained the action to the Freeman. She mentioned specifically the total elimination of all Asian language from the university as ludicrous. "If I were to graduate with this major and look for a job, they'd laugh at me with no language," she pointed out.

If a staff of eight is cut back to four, the department would inevitably lose its reputation as "one of the few strong departments at New Paltz," she said and would not be able to attract students in an area of emerging importance.

She had transferred to New Paltz particularly because of the strength of the department, she said, as had several other sit-in students. "I'll be graduated, but I feel I have to fight for it," said Ms.

Carli. The fasting, following a "Gandhi method," started early Wednesday. Students occupied the office until 5 p.m., then returned the next morning to begin what they expected would be a long vigil.

Almost all students interviewed Thursday predicted a continuing attempt to build political pressure against cutbacks in the state university budget, and against the apparent governmental trend of "sacrificing future generations for the sake of expediency," as one put it.

Some 27 staff "lines have had to be trimmed (in addition to 15 cut earlier this year) to save $253,000, according to an order from Albany. A "line" is generally considered to be equal to one full time position, although there are many variables. The budget recommended that 12 of these be teaching positions, but that was cut by the special joint college committee to 10.5 by cutting four more people in support services and juggling some others.

As stated by Coffman the positions affected will be: four lines lost in Asian Studies, eliminating Chinese language (Japanese and Hindi have already been axed), and effectively wiping out South-east Asia and Japan as areas of study.

Two lines would be lost in African Studies, thereby "eliminating it as a formal study," said Dr. Coffman; a half-line of Jewish Studies; one line of art studio; one of biology; a half-line of sociology; and a half-line of extension. The major changes the administration made from the committee recommendations were to eliminate history cutbacks, double Asian Studies trimming and add African Studies to cut the list.

The whole matter is a bitter business for all concerned, those involved more than that," commended the president near the end of the 90-minute low key address and discussion in a lecture center filled with faculty and students.

He explained that faculty positions were trimmed "not necessarily in areas of greatest demand . . . a high percentage are tenured . . . the union contract must be kept in mind at every step." He said the overriding consideration was how best to serve the students," stating several times that his decisions in Asian and African studies were made because of relatively low recent student enrollment.

Vehemently Oppose Merger

KINGSTON—The proposal that the Ulster County Blood Bank merge with the Greater New York Blood Program met with considerable opposition at an informational meeting today at the Holiday Inn.

Henry Groppler, the blood bank president, explained that his group had been ordered by the New York State Department of Health, to immediately stop collecting blood outside the Kingston City Laboratory. Affiliation with a Greater New York Program would furnish the necessary licensing to continue present collection programs.

Dr. Carlo Ehrlich, the executive director of the Greater New York Blood Bank, said that his group would take over responsibility toward a collection of blood until the county blood bank's membership reaches a decision on affiliating.

Most of the objections voiced by the 25 persons at the meeting came over the board's alleged lack of communication with members and alleged failure to explore viable alternatives to affiliation with the New York group.

Dr. Ehrlich said that affiliation with his group would mean reduced costs to blood recipients because of the more economical procedures inherent in a larger organization.

One alternative suggested was for the Ulster County Blood Bank to obtain the necessary licenses that would enable it to continue its present collection program, but Groppler said that such a move would be difficult and very expensive.

City Waste Bids Suspect

(Editor's note: In this concluding article of a two-part series, further questions are raised concerning action on the City of Kingston's solid waste disposal problems.)

By Matt Spireng

KINGSTON—There appears to be a strong possibility that bids submitted last November on a contract to haul city solid waste from a transfer station within Kingston to an as yet undisclosed landfill site did not conform to specifications bidders were supposedly required to meet, meaning the contract about to be signed with Spada Sanitation Inc. which will cost the city an estimated $3.8 million over the next 15 years could wind up being thrown out in a court case.

The problems hinge on one paragraph in the specifications picked up by potential bidders last November, which states: "Qualifications of bidder: Bidders (sic) must certify to the Board of Public Works of the City of Kingston that he has the facilities to dispose of said solid wastes hauled from the corporate limits of the City of Kingston."

The paragraph seems to imply that at the time the bid was submitted the bidder had to certify he had a place to dump the city's garbage. Woodrow Diehl, administrative assistant to the BPW was asked, if the bidders (there were only two, Spada Sanitation Inc. of Kingston and Dutchess Sanitation Inc. of Poughkeepsie) submit such certification when they submitted bids.

"We assume because they submitted a bid they had a place to dump," Diehl said, adding that certification might have been received by the city since the bids were submitted. Mayor Francis R. Koenig says his interpretation of the paragraph is that once a contract is signed with the successful bidder the successful bidder must certify he has a place to dump.

Then why, Koenig was asked, do the specifications elsewhere refer to "contractor" and once to the "successful bidder," but nowhere else to just the "bidder" or "bidders"? If the mayor's interpretation of the paragraph is correct then should it not have read: "Contractor must . . ." or "Successful bidder must . . .?"

"I can't answer tat; the corporation counsel (Aaron Klein) drew it up," Koenig said.

Klein could not be reached for comment Sednesday or Thursday. A telephone call Wednesday to Spada Sanitation Inc., which has been awarded the hauling contract at an estimated cost to the city of some $250,000 per year for the next 15 years (with an added five-year option), elicited the following information from Theresa Spada, who identified herself as the daughter-in-law of Michael Spada Sr., president of the firm, who was not available.

Asked where the firm planned to dump the solid waste from Kingston, she said that "about a month ago" the firm gave contracts it has to dump in "several" landfills to the city. She was told that city officials interviewed on the subject by the Freeman had said nothing about such contracts. She did not identify the sites, but suggested we either call back later to speak to Michael Spada Sr. or contact his attorney, Vincent G. Bradley.

An immediate call to Koenig was met with the answer that he knew nothing about such contracts and the suggestion that we check with Klein.

Moments later Theresa Spada called the Freeman and informed us that she had spoken to her father-in-law and he said to relay the following message: He didn't know why we couldn't get the requested information from the city. "He said when the right time comes all the information will be given to you," she related.

Later in the afternoon, Spada's attorney, Vincent G. Bradley returned our call. Informed that we had some questions to ask Michael Spada and were earlier referred to him, Bradley said, "It's in relationship to a client and I'm not even allowed to tell you I represent him."

The question remains, where will Spada Sanitation be dumping? All indications are that he will not be allowed to dump Kingston refuse in the towns of Saugerties or Ulster, both of which have taken action of late to prevent such dumping.

Asked about potential Spada Sanitation dump sites, Koenig said Michael Spada during a casual conversation had mentioned three: Plattekill, Saugerties "and one other." The one other, the mayor said, "was down the line somewhere, I don't recall where."

An application for a permit to haul garbage submitted by Spada Sanitation Thursday to the Ulster County Health Department lists only two dump sites: the Town of Ulster and the City of Kingston. Spada Sanitation currently has such a permit to haul which expires March 31. The applications for the permits require that dump sites be listed.

A Showdown in Boiceville

Dr. Frank Marlow, superintendent of schools, stands at the entrance to the district offices in Boiceville Thursday. Marlow reported for work at 9 a.m. after receiving a stay of his dismissal by the board from the Commissioner of Education, but was barred from the office by John Mower, vice-president of the Onteora School Board, who claimed the commissioner's directive didn't entitle him to return to work. Several hours later, attorneys for the Education Department ruled that Marlow should be allowed to resume his duties. The superintendent occupied his office this morning without incident. PERB Report to City a $300,000 Stipend

By Hugh Reynolds
KINGSTON—A Public Employee Relations Board fact finder's report delivered to city officials earlier this week contains recommendations for salary increases and pension plans that could cost the city more than $300,000 a year.

The biggest dollar item is fact finder Seth Towse's recommendation that the city adopt a 20-year retirement plan for its 78 professional firemen. Based on last year's departmental personnel budget of just over $840,000 and a 20.8 per cent cost factor, the retirement alone would cost the city close to $175,000 a year.

City police have had a 20-year retirement plan for the past five years. City firemen now have a 25-year retirement plan.

Both departments had asked the city for raises in excess of $2,000 per man per year but Mayor Francis R. Koenig, faced with a $20 per thousand tax increase this year and with a decline of $2.9 million in assessed property value, claimed poverty and refused any and all raises.

The fact finder recommended an $868 raise per man for the fire fighters for a total of just under $67,000 and $850 per man for the city's 76 police officers for a total of just under $64,000 per year.

Neither Koenig nor Harry Hornbeck, president of Local 461 of the Professional Fire Fighters Association, would comment on the fact finder's report. Koenig said he was meeting with Corporation Counsel Aaron E. Klein Monday to review the report; Hornbeck said he will meet with his local tomorrow. PBA President John Higgins was not available for comment.

The fact finder, contacted in Loudenville, said he was not at liberty to comment on specifics of his report. It is due for official release next week.

Towse did detail some of the procedures to be followed if the parties do not accept his report, a conclusion most observers see as foregone.

Assuming the fact finder's report is rejected—by the city as too much, by the unions as not enough—binding arbitration becomes necessary.

Each side will choose an arbitrator, with PERB to choose a third arbitrator to form the panel.

Sources indicate that PERB arbitration panels tend to use fact finder's reports as a basis for judgment.

Whether Koenig's threat to fire police and firemen if they are granted a raise can be enforced remains to be seen. Sources indicated that such a threat might be considered to be an unfair labor practice and could be subject to arbitration in itself.

The city is also at impasse with its 300-member Department of Public Works labor force. A fact finder's report is pending on that situation.

Gorman Named to CS Commission

KINGSTON—Although 30 out of 32 legislators extolled the many attributes of Dr. Gerald P. Gorman, former minority leader of the legislature, before naming him as a member of the Ulster County Civil Service Commission Thursday night, two other candidates names were advanced by the Democrats before his appointment was finalized.

In what was seen as political maneuvering, the Democratic legislators nominated a former Republican legislator, Brian R. White, who switched his party affiliation to the Democrats last year. They wished to name White to replace Arthur Ewig, a Democratic Civil Service commissioner who resigned. Midway through the vote of the county legislature when the tally was 10 to 6 against White, Minority Leader Louis M. Klein withdrew the resolution nominating White and indicated he would subsequently nominate a Conservative for the post.

Klein said he was not voting against Dr. Gorman but suggested instead that the board appoint the doctor to the Board of Health. The legislature later appointed Dr. John A. Olivet to that post.

When it was the Republicans' time to nominate a candidate, they selected Dr. Gorman, a Democrat, praising him highly for his splendid record with the legislature.

It was then that Klein moved to table the appointment and recommended William Jackson for the post.

All but two legislators, Thomas Nyquist, D-Dist. 8, and Kathleen Quick, D-City, voted for Dr. Gorman.

In other action the board voted to:

- Fund the county nutritional program for the elderly, sponsored by Ulster County Community Action.

- Reaffirm its support of a moratorium on nuclear power plants "with no time limit."

- Authorize $60,467 in mass transportation funds which are to be funded by state aid and gifts from local transportation lines.

- Request the State Legislature to mandate public hearings on property acquisition by the New York State Division for Youth.

- Study the coordinating of building and fire codes within the towns and throughout the county, establishing and enforcing occupancy quotas.

- Authorize an agreement between Ulster and Greene Counties to care for Greene County's TB patients.

- Engage in a study of a telephone alert jury attendance plan.

- Provide $746 for the People's Place Project at 101

Abel Street, a pilot project to aid the elderly.

- Request the State Legislature to amend the Civil Service Law to allow credit points for provisional employees.

- Award a $232,906 bid made by Ayvee Construction Co., for the construction of the Phoenixia Bridge.

- Restrict imported solid and liquid waste in the county.

- A move to establish a special committee to consider a consumer protection code and establish a consumer affairs office was referred to the Sealer and Weights Committee.

Candidates Hit Out at K's Plea

United Press International
Presidential candidates are jumping all over Secretary of State Henry Kissinger for suggesting they soften their criticism of President Ford's foreign policy.

"American foreign policy is too important to be left to petty partisan consideration," said Democrat Henry Jackson. "This is the first time in my memory that a secretary of state in an election year has taken to the stump."

Ronald Reagan, campaigning in Chicago for Tuesday's Illinois GOP primary, also was angered: "If our foreign policy can be ruined by telling people the truth about it," he said, "then it can't be much of a foreign policy."

Democrat Jimmy Carter vowed in Chicago that, if elected, he will fire Kissinger. "I don't think Henry Kissinger trusts the American people," Carter said.

Kissinger didn't mention names when he told the Boston World Affairs Council Thursday that America's biggest foreign policy problem is division at home. But his words were clearly aimed at the men who hope to unseat his boss, particularly Reagan and Jackson for attacking his attempts at détente with Russia.

Kissinger said the country "has permanent interests and concerns that must be preserved beyond this election." There will be more divisiveness and recrimination, he said, "if the quest for short-term political gain prevails over all other consideration."

One candidate liked what he said — his boss, President Ford.

George Wallace told a St. Louis news conference the only way to convince voters he is in good health is to work full time, travel all over the country, and run a rigorous schedule — which, he said, he has done.

Fred Harris, campaigning in Milwaukee, said his "next real first-rate push" will be in the April 27 Pennsylvania primary. And former governor Michael V. DiSalle of Ohio called a press conference, later today in Washington to announce formation of a "John Glenn for President Committee." Glenn, the first American to orbit the earth, is a senator from Ohio.

Nixon said in Thursday's answers that he as president had sanctioned:

- A covert CIA operation in Chile in 1970 to prevent the election of Marxist Salvador Allende as president, although he claimed no part in the intervention which resulted in the 1973 coup in which Allende was killed.

- A massive, coordinated intelligence operation in 1970 to combat violent protests, terrorism and bombings.

- A Secret Service telephone tap of his brother, Donald Nixon, in 1970 to check on his business dealings.

It was the second release of Nixon testimony in as many days. A civil suit deposition, in which Nixon discussed wiretaps on 13 government officials and four reporters in 1969 to find out leaked word of secret U.S. bombing raids on Cambodia, was published Wednesday.

Church denounced Nixon's "sovereign" concept as "pernicious and dangerous."

In a preface to his responses, Nixon said neither a president nor a former president could be compelled to testify concerning the conduct of his office, but that he would answer voluntarily.

The former president Thursday told his lawyers to release 34 pages of sworn answers to 77 written questions from the Senate intelligence committee on a variety of intelligence related issues.

The committee, headed by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, had forwarded the questions to Nixon in preparation for its final report on abuses of the intelligence agencies.

campaigning in Rockford, Ill., praised "the statesmanship of Henry Kissinger."

"We are at peace and that is a testament in itself," Ford said. Carter, meanwhile, commended the New York legislature for passing a bill that will identify on the April 6 primary ballots just which candidate the list of delegates supports.

Jackson, because of his strong organization in the big state, stood to gain the most from the lack of identification.

Morris Udall, trying to build a liberal coalition for the New York campaign, also was pleased by the legislature's action, but said Jackson still must be considered the New York favorite.

Julian Bond, the black state senator from Atlanta who ran for vice president at the 1972 Democratic convention, announced he will support Udall because he "didn't develop a social conscience just yesterday."

Bond said Carter, his fellow Georgian, is "too far to the right for me."

Nyquist Astounded

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — State Education Commissioner Ewald B. Nyquist claimed he was "astounded by the insensitive action" of the state Consumer Protection Board, after it announced Thursday it would sue Nyquist's department to obtain records dealing with private vocational schools.

Nyquist said his department has tried to cooperate with the consumer board. But its director, Rosemary S. Pooler, claimed her staff had been trying to get the documents since last October, with no success.

Ms. Pooler said the material was needed to determine whether the vocational schools were giving students a fair shake.

ALBANY,

Favors Earlier Budget Hearings

ALBANY—Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey, D-101st Dist., has co-sponsored a bill which passed the assembly last month which will require county legislatures to hold public hearings on their upcoming budgets on Oct. 25, rather than after election day.

"No longer will county legislatures be able to conceal from the voters the true condition of the county's fiscal affairs until after election day," said Hinchey. "Too often the voters are promised no tax increases and treated to visions of a comfortable surplus during the election campaign only to learn immediately afterwards that taxes are going to have to be increased drastically in order to avoid a deficit."

Hinchey Wants Mortgage Agency

ALBANY — Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey, D-101st, has reintroduced legislation creating a state mortgage finance agency which he says will "do much to improve the employment situation for construction workers not only in Ulster County but throughout New York State."

The bill (A7254) would expand the supply of funds available for residential mortgages and thus stimulate the building trades, according to Hinchey.

"Our construction workers have been particularly hard hit by the current recession," said Hinchey. "We must create more jobs for them. I believe that my bill, for which I now have 34 co-sponsors in the Assembly, will do just that. It will also stimulate the overall economy of our region and fill a genuine need, as many banks have proved reluctant to extend mortgage money to prospective new homeowners."

Hinchey's bill would create an agency which would issue bonds, the proceeds of which would be used to make loans to banks, savings and loan associations, and other qualified lenders, who in turn would use the money to make new mortgages for single and multiple family residential homes. It would also provide for the rehabilitation of existing structures. The Agency's bonds would not constitute a debt of the State, but would be payable solely from the funds of the Agency, derived primarily from the interest and principal payments received from the lenders.

"The need for the state to take the lead in finding more jobs for its workers has become even more urgent now that President Ford was able to kill the Public Works and Counter-cyclical Bill last week by a veto," said Hinchey. "That bill would have provided up to a million dollars for workers in the Ulster County area, through capital construction and the other services which it would have provided."

Hinchey pointed out that this situation developed in Ulster County only this past year when the Republican Party ran a campaign based on the slogan, "Remember . . . we have reduced county taxes five of the past seven years," and one month later the Republican chairman of the legislature, Peter Savago, was talking of raising property taxes from $9.2 million in 1975 to $14.7 million in the coming year. The County Legislature eventually adopted a 1976 budget requiring a 32 percent increase in the county property tax.

"This abrupt kind of turnabout, which amounts to a fraud perpetrated on the voters, could be ended by the bill which I co-sponsored in the assembly," said Hinchey.

Hinchey feels that the assembly bill will not only redress the injustice currently being done to the voting public but will also result in greater accountability on the part of their representatives in county government.

"The fiscal problems besetting many of our municipalities will never be solved unless we make officials in government strictly accountable for their actions," said Hinchey. "And this means that the public must be kept up-to-date on matters pertaining to the budget. Certainly it is only fair and reasonable to ask that this accounting be made at a time that will permit the taxpayers of the county adequate opportunity to make their sentiments known."

Hinchey says the inflationary cost of government has become of such increasing concern to the general public that it is imperative the legislature take new initiatives to insure full accountability from officials on budgetary matters.

"The public demands this, and I am going to use whatever influence I have as a legislator to see that their demands are met" said Hinchey.

Trades Official Wants Forum With Berardi

KINGSTON—George F. Nagy, treasurer of the Building and Construction Trades Council that serves the Mid-Hudson area, has proposed an "open forum" with Kingston contractor James Berardi Sr. to discuss both sides of the union labor issue.

In January, Berardi's firm was awarded the contract for construction of a new Joy Bridge in the Town of Woodstock. That project has been picketed by unemployed union workers for the past two weeks because Berardi does not employ union labor.

Nagy's challenge for an open forum with Berardi was prompted by remarks the contractor made in the March 2 Freeman. Berardi said his decision not to hire union labor stemmed from union "featherbedding" and other policies that he said made it virtually impossible to perform a construction job efficiently and economically.

"In fairness to all our citizens," said Nagy, "we think (an open forum) might be a very good idea. A discussion of this nature will afford both sides the opportunity to bring out all the facts, and not deal in half truths and innuendoes."

Nagy took exception to Berardi's comment, in refusing to meet with the unions to discuss the Joy Bridge issue that "You don't bargain with the unions . . . they make a demand and you either sign it or they picket you."

"How can any fair minded individual say, 'I don't like what you have asked for and therefore I am not going to meet and discuss it with you,'" asked Nagy, "You just can't say I don't like something and I don't want to discuss it."

Nagy said the unions involved in the Joy Bridge picketing are ready and willing to undertake negotiations or discussions with Berardi to resolve their differences.

Nagy also addressed several specific criticisms that were raised by Berardi in the March 2 article. He said that all labor unions in the Mid-Hudson region are opposed to the concept of "featherbedding," or the hiring of more men than are actually necessary to perform the work. He noted that the employer, not the union, has the exclusive right to make and enforce rules to assure orderly and efficient operations and to schedule work.

In response to Berardi's criticism that the Bricklayers Union recently obtained a raise in wages while most of the members were unemployed, Nagy pointed out that the pay hikes were included in a contract that was negotiated with and approved by the Hudson Valley Construction Employers Association.

Nagy also pointed out that Berardi was a union contractor for more than 30 years and was a party to many of the negotiated contracts with the labor unions.

Miller Parents' Campaign

KINGSTON—At a meeting Wednesday night, Mrs. Maich, president of the Miller Parents' Organization, announced that her group is planning a telephone-letter campaign to get parents involved in present and future decisions that will affect the students of this district.

T.A.C.T. urges all parents to attend two upcoming meetings so that they can learn firsthand what the board is doing. The first meeting will be the Board of Education meeting at George Washington School on April 1 at 8 p.m. There will also be an informational meeting at Miller School April 6 at 7:30 p.m.

Maybe He Should Give It Back

The he we are referring to is Dr. Frank Marlow, recently restored but not working superintendent of the Oteora School District. The "It" is the salary he has been collecting while out of office.

After a round and round hearing by the school board, Dr. Marlow was fired. He stepped down and appealed the board's decision to the State Commissioner of Education, Ewald Nyquist. Nyquist, who by pattern is becoming famous in his decisions supporting deposed superintendents throughout the state, "restored" Marlow. However, restored doesn't mean completely exonerated. Therefore, Dr. Marlow can't go back to work until Nyquist goes over transcripts of the hearing.

Marlow has been collecting his salary while out of office and now, in office but out of work, is still collecting it. That salary is $40,400 a year. He's been getting that all along, which is fine except that the school board has had to pay others for services to keep the office going.

The Freeman feels that Dr. Marlow should have his salary placed in escrow until it is finally determined that he is guilty or innocent of the charges.

He should agree. He has assured all that he is innocent. He has begged to go back to work because he has been collecting his salary for a job he isn't presently doing. And, he has publicly stated that it's a waste of taxpayers' money to pay other people to do the job he's getting paid not to do.

If he is innocent and is brought back to work, then he should be compensated for his discomfiture with his back salary and the district will have to lose out on the extra money that has been used to keep the job functioning.

And, if he's guilty and doesn't come back, will he voluntarily pay the district the money he's collected for doing nothing? It's possible, but guilty people don't always act that rationally.

The Amnesty Issue

Dear Editor:

I would like to reply to a letter on the subject of Amnesty, which appeared in your March 4 issue, and was authored by Joseph C. Hassett, Commander, Disabled American Veterans and Ulster County Veterans Association.

Mr. Hassett, in replying to the letter of a war resistor, stated that "if your type were on the battlefield and under fire, you would desert and endanger not only your buddies but the entire operation."

We have all heard that argument so many times before that it has become as familiar as reruns of I Love Lucy. Where it goes wrong is in assuming that the war resisters were motivated by cowardice and not conscience. Most of them that I have known were motivated by conscience, and deeply held convictions about the immorality of the Vietnam War. Most of them that I have known were not irresponsible, but rather acted with more responsibility than the vast majority of Americans who closed their minds to the truth while 56,000 of their sons died for nothing.

Mr. Hassett said also that we must never forget our POWs and MIAs. I would like to know why people like Mr. Hassett, if they are sincere, never become concerned with the upwards of 200,000 civilians, many of them clergymen who had committed no greater crime than to publicly disagree with Ngyen Van Thieu, who were tortured and abused in corrupt prison system funded by U.S. tax dollars. The food rations at Con Son were miserable. A handful of rice with some sauce full of sand and pebbles and rotten fish.

The ration for one person was given to five. Rape was accepted at the police stations and in the prisons. In the case of Nguyen Thanh Cong his wife's aunt, who was pregnant at the time, was beaten with truncheons in front of him and the security personnel threatened to cause a miscarriage unless she signed a false confession. Such cases were typical, as we now can document. To have demanded fair treatment for our own CIA operatives and bomber personnel while we paid for this kind of obscenity directed against civilians was the pinnacle of hypocrisy.

Finally I am fed up with the My Country Right Or Wrong mentality that seems so prevalent in establishment veterans organizations, and which comes across in Mr. Hassett's letter. Actually it was a good line once, before it got cut in half. The full quote goes—"My country right or wrong. If right to be kept right, if wrong to be put right." It is my contention that those who fought to stop the Vietnam War deserve the title of American more than does Mr. Hassett.

Respectfully,
Paul Atkinson

Reject Easy Solutions

Dear Editor:

People who are concerned with issues of justice can only be disheartened to hear a prominent leader in the criminal justice field propose a procedural change that would remove protections that are universally accepted as vital to the presumption of innocence that remains such an important part of American justice.

The suggestion to change the New York State Criminal Procedure Law to allow the courts to convict an accused, "solely on the evidence of a confession or admission" violates all concepts of liberty and justice. Difficulty in prosecuting the crime of Arson cannot make the recommendation more acceptable.

Criminal conviction, within the judicial system of the United States, requires proof of guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. The confession, standing alone, does not satisfy this condition. It is reasonable and proper to be certain that a crime has been committed before we convict the accused.

Due process requirements of the United States and New York State Constitutions reaffirm this position. The proposed change would clearly violate due process and the United States Supreme Court would speedily strike down this irresponsible provision of the law.

Prosecution in our courts must be based on truths which are developed from "facts" (like confessions and admissions) through independent verification.

It is very important that our laws make it difficult to convict anyone of a crime. Regardless of how much we deplore the release of guilty felons because of procedural difficulties, we must support these procedures in order to protect the innocent. That is the American system and the only fair system for all.

It is true that the independent evidence needed in proving the crime of Arson is difficult to obtain. The obvious solution to the problem is additional effort by better trained investigators.

We must defend our American system of justice and reject "easy" solutions that are ready to sacrifice TRUTH to gain some CONVENIENCE.

THEODORE E. DIETZ,
Kingston

Claims Violations

As a Union member and concerned citizen, I would like to comment on Sunday's Editorial (The Right to Work) and previous articles that have been written on the Joy Bridge Project.

First of all the Daily Freeman should get its facts straight. Mr. Berardi didn't save the taxpayers $60,000 since Mr. Berardi's bid was $179,318.00 and the next highest bid was $187,343.00, for a savings of $8,025.00.

As a member of Carpenters Local 265, I spent six days out at the Joy Road Bridge site and was appalled at the shoddy work being performed with violation after violation being committed with apparent approval of the county inspectors on the site. If all contractors Union and non-Union alike were able to work under these exact conditions I'm sure that many more taxpayers dollars could be saved.

The violations are too numerous to list here and now, but if the Daily Freeman is so concerned about saving the taxpayers money, I am willing to sit down with them any time or any place and point out these violations that have occurred on this job and other work performed by Mr. Berardi. I will also have pictures and proof of such violations and that have and do exist.

As a Union member I know only too well that we have our short-comings and faults, but this shouldn't interfere with Mr. Berardi doing the job correct and adhering to the rules and specifications spelled out by the New York State Department of Transportation.

Sincerely Yours,
CHARLES E. QUINN,

Collecting For Gulf

WASHINGTON—I never thought I'd say this about a large American corporation, but the Gulf Oil Co. is an Indian-giver. After slipping millions of dollars in illegal contributions to American politicians for the past 15 years, it now wants its money back.

The thing that bothers me is the Gulf request might start a precedent, and other American companies will start asking for their illegal contributions to be returned which could bankrupt many senators and representatives, not to mention governors and mayors, in this country.

The scene is the office of a senator on Capitol Hill. A man with a wide-brimmed hat and a large mustache and a bulge under his arm walks in.

"Senator, my name is Joe Bananas from the Gulf Oil Co."

"Oh, are you a lobbyist?"

"No, I'm what you might call a collector for the company." He takes out a notebook. "Our records show that for the last 10 years you've been getting $30,000 per annum under the table from us."

"Not so loud," the senator says nervously. "I want you to know that I've been grateful to Gulf for their contributions to my campaign, which have assured the people of my state honest government in Washington."

"That's nice. But we want our money back."

"You want your money back?"

"That's right, buddy boy. The Gulf Oil Co. is shocked and horrified that some people in their organization were going around illegally contributing to American politicians. The only way to make amends is for us to get the money returned. Since you've been on the pad for 10 years, you owe us $300,000. We ain't going to charge you interest."

"But I don't have $300,000. I spent it on my political campaign."

"That's too bad. The boys at the oil company are going to be very upset. They don't like politicians who won't give them back their illegal contributions."

"Listen, when I took these illegal donations I was told there were no strings attached. I could spend the money on anything I wanted to, and there was nothing mentioned at the time about returning it."

You must have misunderstood. Why would a company like Gulf give an illegal donation to a politician without expecting him to pay it back? We're not in the oil business for our health."

"I would never have accepted the money if I knew I had to return it."

"We're asking you nicely to give us the dough. We have the methods of collecting it if this doesn't work."

"Are you collecting money from foreign politicians you bribed as well?"

"No, the policy of the company is to let the foreign politicians keep our donations as a matter of goodwill."

"But that's unfair. Why should the American politicians be asked to pay back the money while the foreign politicians keep their contributions?"

"Senator, I don't make those decisions. I was just asked to come here to pay you a friendly visit and inform you that the boys in Pittsburgh want their 300 Gs."

"And if I refuse?"

"I wouldn't try to run away, senator. You'd have no place to hide. We've got Gulf stations all over the country."

Strange Meetings

WASHINGTON—Two strange, secret meetings occurred last November between a prominent Congressman and a notorious criminal. The Congressman, who is under grand jury investigation, wanted to hire the criminal to check on a key witness. The subject of murder was discussed briefly and obliquely.

Gruff, crewcut Rep. Henry Helstoski, D-N.J. arranged the mysterious meetings with stocky, swarthy Frank Peroff, an underworld figure who has become a government informant.

We have obtained tape recordings, which give a detailed account of their private conversations. The only dispute that remains is over who brought up the suggestion of murder. Each man swears it was the other.

To understand this bizarre tale of intrigue some background is necessary. Federal prosecutors are investigating charges that Helstoski collected kickbacks from illegal aliens in return for introducing private immigration bills. These bills stopped, at least temporarily their deportation.

His former aide, Albert DeFalco, already has been convicted of shaking down the aliens for $36,000. At DeFalco's trial, the congressman said he had introduced the bills out of sympathy for the aliens and had not participated in any kickback arrangement.

arrangement. The most damaging witness against DeFalco was a Chilean, named Oswaldo Aguirre, whom the prosecutors are also using to build a case against the Congressman.

The investigation was dragging on for 16 months. Last October Helstoski came across a news item about Peroff. The paper quoted the racketeer as boasting: "I made my name smuggling people and money out, using planes. That was my thing. . . . In Chile, we smuggled out damn near a billion dollars, and some of that was for American companies."

The impressed Helstoski sent Peroff a cryptic letter on his congressional stationery. "Having seen the enclosed news clipping," wrote the Congressman, "I would like to discuss this particular matter with you and perhaps retain you if you could fulfill some requirements."

The racketeer responded with the suggestion that they meet at Washington's Dulles Airport, where they would attract little attention in the flow of strangers. Peroff was also worried about retaliation from the mobsters he had helped put in prison. At Dulles, they would have to pass through weapons detectors to reach him.

Helstoski showed up with his blonde secretary, Kathy Dunn. The Congressman told Peroff that he wanted to hire an investigator to go to Chile and check into the background of the government witness, particularly Aguirre.

Peroff bragged about his criminal accomplishments and offered to accept the Chilean assignment for $50,000. The Congressman complained that the price was too high. He was sufficiently interested in Peroff's services, however, to ask for a second meeting.

Helstoski claimed afterward, according to the tapes, that all he wanted Peroff to do was seek out "the truth." But Peroff contended: "That's not all he wanted. He said he thought the men (witnesses) had unsavory pasts, and he wanted me to bring back evidence of it. But he also said that if I couldn't find legitimate evidence, I was to bribe local officials to fabricate whatever was needed."

Then came the alleged murder suggestion. "If I was unsuccessful at that," Peroff added, "I was to 'Make sure they're not around' for a trial."

The tapes contain Helstoski's vigorous denial. He claimed it was really Peroff who hinted about murder. Because of a court-imposed gag order, Helstoski could not comment directly.

The Congressman's version, however, is supported by his secretary. It is definitely her recollection, she told our reporters Jack Cloberty and Jay Gourley, that Peroff brought the conversation around to murder. It was also her recollection that Peroff hinted at it during the initial meeting. Yet Helstoski still wanted to meet with Peroff a second time.

The tough, but likeable Helstoski is a hero to the people of his working-class district. Once he took money from his own pocket to help a needy constituent. Certainly, he is more credible than the notorious Peroff. But why would a Congressman seek out a racketeer in the first place? And why would he want to meet with him a second time?

LUXURY TRAVEL: The World Bank, Inter-American Development Bank and the International Monetary Fund were set up to lend money to underdeveloped nations. But not all the money goes to help poor countries.

The three prestigious banks have spent more than $500,000 in the last two years, for example, to pay the travel expenses of wives who accompanied bank officials on business trips.

A Treasury Department study showed the World Bank, during a 21-month period, "funded 168 trips by spouses." In 44 cases, the bank paid not only for transportation but subsistence. The average wife's travel expenses ran well over $2,000.

The Inter-American Development Bank paid the way for 76 wives to accompany their husbands during the same 21-month period, at an average cost of $710. The International Monetary Fund paid the wives' expenses in 26 cases, shelling out an average of more than $2,000 per trip.

Spokesmen for the international banking organization explained that most spouse travel is permitted only after the husband has been out of the country for months.

While most banking bigwigs prefer to travel first class, one exception is World Bank head Robert McNamara. The former Defense secretary flies tourist almost without exception. He has been known to fume as his subordinates file into first class seats.

Getting The Oriental Goods

The watch was bought in Hong Kong. It had a large golden face and big black hands. The merchant was Ah Foo. "Eighteen klarat," he said, and it was made in Switzerland. It cost $75 American dollars or $275 Chinese—take your pick.

I bought it for Dad. He was living in a two-family house as an umpire. Most of his time was spent dozing in a leather chair; the waking time was devoted to adjudicating disputes between my sister Adele, who lived in the ground floor, and my brother John and his wife Anna, who were upstairs.

Each owned half the house. John had a little money and ordered a new bathroom. The plumber installed the new lavatory, forgetting to remove the old one. Adele referred to them as the two-john Bishops. "Nothing," she said, "beats togetherness."

She howled, however, when she redecorated her kitchen and found that water was seeping from the upstairs Bishops onto her walls. She sobbed. Big John the umpire ordered his son to fix the leak.

"That's unfair," Little John said. "It may be leaking from upstairs but the damage is downstairs. Adele should get it fixed."

In The Plush

Such shenanigans kept the old man on his toes. He studied the gold watch in its plush case and shook his head. "Beautiful," he murmured. "Where did you say you bought it?"

"Hong Kong." "How about that? I thought they ran 200 million laundries on a bowl of rice." "They didn't make the watch. It's Swiss." "Ah, the Swiss sold it to the Chinks and they pawned it off on you." "If you say so."

The watch was too big for his wrist. So was the flexible band. As he tottered around the house it flopped like a slave bracelet. Time is important to people who don't know what to do with it.

Big John consulted the timepiece, but it lied to him. It was selfwinding, but he wound it 20 turns every evening. It stopped before dawn and he marveled that the damn Chinese could never seem to get beyond 10 minutes past 5 a.m. or p.m.

The date on the watch drove him to a frenzy of grinding his dentures. It was never right. On March 1st, the watch read February 29th. On March 2nd, it insisted on Feb. 30th. On March 3rd, it told him

Feb. 31st. On March 4th, the oriental ticker testified that it was March 1st.

"Is it any wonder," he said, "that those ignorant heathens have slant eyes? They can't even tell time." He muttered under his breath. "They can't even add two apples and three apples without an abacus."

After a year, he became sly about the watch. He began to praise it to little John. It wasn't gold-plated; it was 18 karat. The Chinese had built ancient secrets into the timepiece; secrets of days of the week, dates, hours and minutes unknown to modern man. In a conspiratorial whisper, he told his son he wouldn't part with the watch for $150.

Rolling In

Young John did not nibble. The old man waited. One afternoon, Johnny walked into the sanctum-sanctorum and announced that he bought a new automobile. "Is that so?" Dad said, marveling. "Let me guess — it's a Chevy, a Ford or a Pontiac."

No, Johnny said, "It's a Toyota." "It's a what?" "Toyota." "A motorcycle?" "A Japanese car." "The Japs don't make cars. They make cheap toys and little TV sets you watch with one eye covered."

"It's a car." "What's that name again?" Louder: "Toyota." "They're shrewd people. They worked the word 'Toy' up front." "Dad, it's a good automobile. It can go forever on a gallon of gas."

"Oh," the old man said, "one of those. Well, I'll get my coat. You can take me for a ride." "I can't." "Why the hell not?"

Johnny fidgeted. "To tell the truth, all the symbols on the dashboard are in Chinese or something. Every time I try to turn the lights on, the windshield wipers go crazy."

"Has it got a spare tire?" Johnny tired of the game. "Instead of a tire, they pack two geisha girls in the trunk." "Ah," the old man said sarcastically, "one of my boys is a wit."

Johnny was out of patience. "It's a darn good car, Dad. I'm serious. Soon as I learn to decipher the dashboard, I'll take you for a long ride." The old man crept out of his leather chair. He put his arm around his son in the confidential manner of someone trying to sell French post cards.

"John," he said, "how would you like to buy a good Chinese watch?"

Your Legal Expenses As An Employee

By Sylvia Porter

(Fifth of ten columns)

If you are an employee with office-at-home expenses, the IRS says you can claim a deduction for those expenses only if — among other prerequisites — your employer requires you to maintain that office as a condition of your employment.

Before 1975, several court decisions had rejected this IRS rule in favor of a more liberal requirement that the office-at-home must be "appropriate and helpful" to the performance of your duties as an employee — even though not required by your employer.

But last year, the Fourth Circuit reversed a Tax Court decision that had allowed an IRS attorney to deduct part of his apartment rent as an office-at-home expense because he voluntarily took some of his office work home and read specialized literature at home to keep up to date with developments in his job field. The Circuit Court pointed out that the IRS lawyer didn't use any part of his apartment as a real place of business and that the IRS furnished him with an office that was both suitable and available when he might need it. His apartment rent was a personal expense.

What this means to you is that the IRS will have a stronger argument against you if you claim a deduction for an office-at-home that is not actually required by your employer as a condition of your employment.

If you take deductions for away-from-home travel expenses, the IRS provided you with several guidelines in 1975.

Say you're a truck driver, as one illustration, who hauls loads on round trips of several hundred miles, with a half-hour layover at the destination before driving the return load to your home city. The IRS's ruling is that you cannot deduct the cost of your meals during the half-hour layover as an away-from-home expense. But say you have an eight-hour layover because another loaded truck-trailer isn't ready for the return trip or because the same trailer has to be reloaded. Although your employer doesn't formally authorize your eight-hour rest, he agrees to it.

On such trips, your cost of meals and lodging during the eight-hour layover is a deductible away-from-home travel expense because the eight-hour layover is a substantial period during which you can get needed sleep or rest.

Similarly with railroad employees such as locomotive engineers, conductors, brakemen. The IRS says they can't deduct the cost of meals at away-from-home terminals on round trips taking only one day.

If you are a police officer or highway patrolman, you may receive cash payments from your state, county, etc., governments to cover the cost of meals you must buy while on duty. The IRS insists that these payments are taxable income, not tax-free meals furnished for the convenience of the employing government.

One Circuit Court of Appeals says the IRS is right while four others say the IRS is wrong. In 1975, a Tax Court case upheld the IRS in taxing a police officer on his meal allowance even though the case arose in a state where an earlier Circuit Court decision had held that these allowances were not taxable.

In view of the split among the courts, police officers with substantial meal allowances may want to resist the IRS's efforts to tax their allowances even if this involves them in litigation.

SPECIAL TAX TIP FOR '75 by the Research Institute of America: If you claim a dependency deduction for your parents who receive Medicare, you got an important assist from a Tax Court case in 1975. The IRS's view is that Medicare reimbursement for hospital care (Part A) counts as part of your parent's total yearly support but payments covering doctor care (Part B) are excluded. In the court case, the taxpayer contributed more than half his mother-in-law's support for the year if both Part A and Part B were excluded from support, but less than half if Part A was included. The Tax Court found no difference between Part A reimbursement for which coverage is compulsory under Social Security and Part B for which coverage is voluntary. If the IRS was willing to exclude Part B, Part A was no different.

Toughies for Parents

A school that educates one of our children took a poll the other day, but they didn't include some of the toughest questions faced by parents.

For example:

1. It is 7:30 a.m. Your child says, "I don't feel so good. I think I should stay home today." His temperature is normal. Should you:
 - a. Send him to school anyway? (On the assumption that if he is really ill, sooner or later someone will notice and call you.)
 - b. Inspect his bedroom for the remains of indigestible food, like cores of green apples?
 - c. Let the child stay in bed? (On the theory that even if he isn't ill he should enjoy an occasional victory over the system.)
 - d. Telephone the teacher to find out whether a test is scheduled for that day?
2. The science teacher says your child refuses to dissect, draw, look at, or even discuss the digestive, circulatory, and reproductive systems of earthworms or frogs. Should you:
 - a. Tell the teacher to soak his head in a vat of formaldehyde?
 - b. Tell your child she can have a pajama party if she agrees to dissect one frog?
 - c. Call in the American Civil Liberties Union to support your child's right of dissension on dissection?
3. Your child says that he will be beaten up tomorrow unless he pays a dollar to the class bully. Should you:
 - a. Check to make sure that your child and the class bully aren't pulling a fast one and planning to make a 50-50 split?
 - b. Check to make sure there is a class bully?
 - c. Refuse the dollar and hope the bully is bluffing?
4. Give your child 50¢ in the hope that he can strike a compromise? (This ploy, if it works, could start your child on a path that could end up in Congress.)
5. Your child's hair is so long that it hangs over his eyes. He refuses to have it cut. Should you:
 - a. Cut it when he's asleep?
 - b. Urge him to leave his hair long, knowing that he will want to do the opposite of what you ask him to do?
 - c. Tell him that hair in the eyes can cause acute phlebitis of the eyeball, which would result in his disqualification from all sports?
6. Your child often asks for help with his schoolwork, but the level of his work in most subjects has passed your level of education and understanding. Should you:
 - a. Sign up secretly for night school or correspondence courses?
 - b. Admit the truth to your child and concentrate on other areas in which you can stay ahead, at least for a few more years?
 - c. Tell your child that everything is being taught differently now and ask him to call in friends for aid?
7. You find yourself in a debate at the Parent-Teacher Association meeting over whether sex education should be taught in your child's school. Should you:
 - a. Come out against sex education because you had so much fun learning the subject on your own?
 - b. Come out in favor of sex education on the theory that nothing stills childhood passions on any subject as quickly as the teaching of it in a classroom?
 - c. Stay out of the fight, confident that your child knows plenty already?

Future of Nuclear Power

The enemies of nuclear power are poised for the kill. The Naderites are counting on the California initiative on nuclear safety, scheduled for June 8, to produce a vote that will effectively call a halt to nuclear plant investment in America's most populous state. Furthermore, the Naderites expect the country to go as California goes. All told, there are nuclear initiatives in process in 21 states.

The Naderites and their allies among the ecologists may prove to be good prophets. But before anyone tosses in the sponge, the advocates of nuclear power tell us to watch the small state of Connecticut, where Governor Ella Grasso has recently set up a Nuclear Safety Evaluation Task Force. If the final report and recommendation of this group comes before June, as is expected, it could have a great effect on the way Californians evaluate the potential danger of burning atoms to get electricity.

Most Experienced State

The fact is that Connecticut, which gets approximately one-third of its energy from nuclear power, has had more experience in using and controlling the atom than most other states. In the New London area, where Millstone One and Millstone Two at Waterford have been supplying atom-derived power for some time and where a third plant, Millstone Three, is expected to be ready by 1983, there was a lot of early sophistication about controlling the nuclear process. After all, eastern Connecticut is where employees of the Electric Boat Company have been making nuclear submarines ever since Admiral Hyman Rickover persuaded the Navy to go all out with the one thing that really gives us what is euphemistically called "mutual deterrence" vis-a-vis an atom-armed Soviet Russia. For a decade the inhabitants of eastern Connecticut have taken the atom more or less for granted.

Recently, however, there have been a couple of minor mishaps at the Millstone installations. When some radioactive water got into Long Island Sound, there was a flap in the press despite the statement of one Millstone safety engineer that the leakage was less contaminating radioactively to individuals than sleeping with one's wife or eating a good salad. A subsequent Millstone leak caused a second scare, but it passed without any apparent danger to anyone inside or outside the plant.

In spite of the relatively insignificant nature of the Millstone mishaps, the feeling that nuclear operations are not 100 per cent hermetically sealed in the New London area has led to the creation of Governor Grasso's investigatory body, Lynn Alan Brooke, commissioner of the Connecticut Department of Planning and Energy Policy, who heads the Grasso task force, has hit out at "the lack of public confidence in the ability and credibility of Federal agencies charged with regulating the nuclear industry." Obviously his target is the Federal government's Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Probe Planned

To help the task force in evaluating the operations of Connecticut's nuclear power plants (in addition to the Millstone complex there is a fourth at Haddam Neck on the Connecticut River), the state's Public Utilities Control Authority has included the safety issue in its lengthy hearings on power economics. These hearings may turn out to be the most searching probe conducted anywhere.

A Connecticut Citizen's Action Group has told the task force that all nuclear construction should be halted pending safety investigation. This does not sit well with Christopher Dodd, the New London area's Representative who is quite aware that New England is behind the eight-ball when it comes to importing costly oil and coal from distant refineries and mines. Bringing low sulfur coal to New England should over a 10-year period, be 68 per cent more expensive than getting an equal amount of energy from nuclear fuel. Even with more costly uranium, the projected savings in energy production of nuclear plants over coal-fired plants is bound to be substantial when one considers that New England pays in transportation up to $18 a ton more for coal than the mune-mouth price.

Connecticut's Senator Lowell Weiker, speaking of the pending investigation, says, "We've got to get rid of the demagoguery that has surrounded this issue and get down to separating fact from panic." The "facts" that the Connecticut task force turns up could be more definitive for the nuclear future than California's June initiative.

The grant is for four months, during which time Mrs. Karnosky will work part time.

64th Scouting Anniversary

By Joan Woinoski

KINGSTON — Approximately 3,600 girls in Ulster County are having a birthday. They are part of the 7½ million Girl Scouts throughout 96 counties who are observing their 64th anniversary this week.

"Flames of Freedom" are being lit by Girl Scouts around the world today, the flame symbolizing the pledge that Girl Scouts will carry forward the light of freedom for all people as they enter the nation's third century. American girls throughout the world are joining in this simple Bicentennial ceremony launched at the Girl Scouts

National Convention by Honorary President, the First Lady Betty Ford.

For the past 64 years, since Juliette (Daisy) Gordon Low organized the first Girl Guide Company in Savannah, Ga. March 12, 1912, girls have recited the same promise and obeyed the 10 scouting laws. Through volunteer leaders, the basic ideals of scouting have been passed on to thousands of girls. In Ulster County alone, there are 200 troops, divided into 13 Neighborhoods, reaching about 25 per cent of the community's girls and young women.

The first local organization to congratulate the Girls

Scouts on their 64th anniversary was the League of Women Voters of Mid-Ulster County. "It is particularly appropriate for the LWV to acknowledge this occasion," said Mrs. Dorothy Vilches, LWV president, "because the LWV and Girl Scouts share a common goal, that of promoting good citizenship."

Early last year the Girls Scouts approached the national LWV office regarding possible cooperation between local leagues and Girl Scout Councils and this active partnership for democratic government has been working well in many communities.

Local Leagues and Girls Scouts work together to achieve individual and common goals. Girls babysit while adults vote. They accompany older persons to the polls. Senior Scouts contribute their time and energy to local leagues as researchers, information aides and office assistants. League members serve as council consultants on projects for earning citizenship, community service, conservation, or other badges. They explain governmental processes, conduct seminars on politics and invite scouts to attend meetings where study results are presented and consensus sought on study items.

The purpose of the Girl Scout movement is to inspire girls with the highest ideals of character, conduct, patriotism and service that they may become happy and resourceful citizens. The purpose of the LWV is to promote political responsibility of citizens in government.

What is Girl Scouting all about? Is it just a program, an activity or is it an ideal, a philosophy, a way of life?

Audrey Finkelstein in an issue of Girl Scout Leader defines Girl Scouting as a value-rooted, people-centered movement, and "movement" means a series of acts working toward some desired aim. Its aim is "better people."

The informal, educational program centered around the interests and abilities of girls is the vehicle in which the girls are transported along the journey towards becoming self-realized, courageous, compassionate, concerned and committed mature women.

Through troop management, girls learn to make decisions and to abide by the decisions of others, learning to follow as well as to lead. Because of the Citizenship and International aspects of the program, girls are more aware of and involved with the people around them and throughout the world. Through Health and Safety, girls learn to respect and preserve human life. Through Service and Social Action, girls have opportunities to stretch themselves and to invest themselves in the enterprise of mankind. Every game they play and song they sing and day they camp helps teach these girls to live with others and with themselves: winning, losing, understanding, learning responsibly.

bility and affirmation of life. Its purpose is not for the girls just to look, but to see; not just to hear, but to listen; not just to touch, but to feel. It is not an after school recreation group. It is a way of life, a program-with-a-purpose based on ideals and code of conduct.

The largest voluntary organization of its kind for girls, Girl Scouting is open to all girls from 6 through 17 who subscribe to the Girl Scout Promise and Law. It inspires each girl to develop her own values and sense of worth as an individual, affords girls a chance to develop skills in areas of their choice and interests, and . . . it is fun.

Girl Scouting is: Discovery for Brownie Scouts, ages 6-7-8; Adventure for Junior Scouts, 9-10-11; Action for Cadette Scouts, 12-13-14; Self-awareness for Senior Scouts, 14-15-16-17; Commitment for Campus Girls Scouts, college age; Sharing for adults, men and women. Approximately 37 million girls, men and women have been members since the organization's founding.

The aim of Girl Scouting is not to teach girls to build better campfires, or to be better singers, artists or cookie sellers, but to help girls develop skills that will help them to perform and accept responsibility.

To be honest, to be fair, to be friendly and considerate, to protect and improve the world, to honor country and mankind . . . these are the basic tenets of the Girl Scout Promise and Law.

Girl Scouting has always provided a chance for girls to make a choice, to be partners in planning, to learn the possibilities in life and to seek and set goals. Scouting has exposed girls to the world and allowed them to make the decisions. Activities include the Arts, the Home and Out-of-Doors. However, a uniform, a meeting, a cookie sale and a campfire are not Girl Scouting. They are just part of helping a girl learn about and respect herself. And, in the process, to learn about and respect others.

Four interrelated emphases define the broad objectives, the scope, and the focus of the Girl Scout program. They are: deepening awareness, relating to others, developing values, contributing to community. Together, the four emphases identify the basic thrusts of its program. They reflect the intent and the potential of the movement to play a vital, meaningful role in the lives of girls and women in our society. The emphasis is supported through an atmosphere in which people rather than things are of prime importance.

During the nation's 200th birthday year, it is especially fitting to celebrate the contributions of Girl Scouting as a growing vital force in the development of girls in these United States. During 1976, three and a quarter million members are concentrating on Horizons '76 the part of the Bicentennial observance that seeks to improve the quality of life in communities. They are working with a steady purpose to achieve their twofold mission: the commitment of youth to building the future of our country, and the commitment of adult volunteers to helping today's girls grow into tomorrow's leaders of community, state and nation. Then, Girl Scouts feel they will be serving as a catalyst for positive change in the third century of this nation.

Renee Sachs of League of Women Voters helps Cadette Girl Scouts Shelley Ostrander, left, Tricia Ludlow and Kim Schoenbacher brush up on the structure and functions of the New York State government, at a pre-conference meeting. The girls will attend a Conference on Citizenship in Albany, April 11-13.

THE PERFECT CHURCH?

Dear Newcomer to the Kingston Area:

If you're looking for the perfect church, look no more! Your search is over. There is no such thing!

A certain man rejected a pastor's invitation to attend his church by charging, "Your church is full of hypocrites!" The pastor replied, "Don't let that stop you. There's always room for one more."

Fair Street Church is not the perfect church because it is made up of human beings like you and me. But the people of Fair Street Church would like to invite you to join them in a sincere effort to live a better life, a life more like that of Jesus Christ.

Join us this Sunday, you and your family.

Rev. Randall Bosch
Fair Street Church
Services 9:30 & 11 AM

Petra Wilson, Kim Natoli and Terri Whitaker from Troop 6, St. John's Church, took part recently in the Indian exhibit at the Heritage Fair in the New York State Armory. All troops in the Kingston Neighborhood participated in the annual World Friendship Scouting event sponsored by Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts. Profits from the sale of various arts and crafts are donated to the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund which enables girls from other countries to come to the U.S. and American girl scouts to go abroad.

"Flames for Freedom," a significant but simple candlelighting ceremony to help celebrate Girl Scouting's Birthday and the Bicentennial Year began at the local level at the Heritage Fair. Pamela Foehner, Neighborhood chairman, lights the candles of the Girl Scout leaders and they, returning to their troop meetings, light the candles of the scouts. Taking part in the ceremony are Charlet Salimone and Lori Baker. Looking on are Kelly Flood and Adele Pangburn.

Beth Owings, (L) and Sandy Kleitich, Cadette Troop 175, hand-rub Colonial candlestick holders in preparation for the Heritage Fair.

HVP Program Monday

KINGSTON—The Hudson Valley Philharmonic returns to Kingston's Community Theatre for an all Beethoven program Monday, March 15. Abraham Kaplan, director of choral music at New York City's famed Juilliard School, will conduct the Philharmonic in the performance to begin at 8 p.m.

The program will include Beethoven's Symphony No. 1 and the Ninth Symphony. The latter will feature the voices of the Community Mixed Chorus.

Kaplan, in addition to his Juilliard duties, also is founder and conductor of New York's Camera Singers and Camera Symphony Orchestra, and music director of the city's Symphony Choral Society. He appears regularly with his own group at Carnegie, Avery Fisher and Alice Tully Halls and has recorded frequently with the New York Philharmonic. His chorus has toured nationally; gave a command performance at the White House.

Kaplan has appeared as guest conductor with the Calgary Philharmonic, the Little Symphony of St. Louis, NBC Symphony, Kol Yisrael Orchestra, Israel Philharmonic and San Francisco opera.

Tickets for the Monday night concert at Community Theatre are available in advance through the Philharmonic box office, listed in the Poughkeepsie phone book. Seats will also be available to the public at the door on the evening of the concert.

'Snuff' Protest Locally

KINGSTON — This past Wednesday, women from the Monticello-Kingston-Woodstock areas participated in a protest demonstration against the showing of a film called "Snuff" now booked into the Rialto Theatre in Monticello and distributed by Allen Shackleton of New York's Monarch's Releasing Corporation.

Dismemberment and murder of a woman as sexual entertainment is the film's subject and certain press reports have indicated it is entirely possible that women were actually dismembered while still alive during the filming of the original "snuff" film.

Whether murder was actually committed during the filming, there has been sufficient controversy about it to ban its advertisements from such newspapers as New York Times, New York Post and Daily News.

There have been reports also that the original "snuff" film was supposed to have been made in South America and prints of it were being distributed by organized crime to private pornography collectors for large sums of money.

The Woodstock Women's Center participates in the protest demonstration in Monticello, and reports that the local movie supposedly contains only simulated torture scenes but that its advertising and promotion imply it is an actual "snuff" film which "could only have been made in South America . . . where Life is CHEAP!"

According to an Associated Press report from Buenos Aires, however, and carried in the Chicago Tribune on Oct. 6, 1975, at least three prostitutes were found dead and mutilated and Buenos Aires police believe they may have participated in the making of a "snuff" film. Since the film opened in New York on February 11 there have been reports of the mutilation killings of two women in New York.

Women Against Violence Against Women, a group of feminists from the three areas, has organized the protest demonstrations with the intention of enlisting enough community and public support to close the film down in Monticello. Detailed information about the protest movement may be obtained by contacting Alice Fix, Woodstock Women's Center; Dorothy Persh of Poughkeepsie NOW; Peggy Henebery and Barbara Deming of Women Against Violence Against Women.

Glee Club Director Colby

KINGSTON — "No Music Without Fun!"

Kingston area residents will have a chance to hear how well they live up to their motto when the Fourth Class Glee Club of the U.S. Military Academy performs on the stage of Kingston High School auditorium Saturday, April 10.

The West Pointers will be here as guests of, and performing with, the Mendelssohn Club Bicentennial Choir in the first of two special spring concerts. The second, on Saturday, May 22, is a joint concert of the Mohawk-Hudson Male Chorus Association. The two concerts are sponsored by the Mendelssohn Club for the Bicentennial celebration in a two-part presentation of the theme, "200 Years of America's Music."

Director of the 45-cadet singing group is Lt. William H. Cosby. Music selected by the cadets ranges from contemporary ("Aquarius") to ancient (two English catches) and includes their special version of "America, the Beautiful" with narration.

Lt. Cosby will conduct the finale of the concert, a rendition of "Battle Hymn of the Republic," featuring the combined voices of the glee club and the Bicentennial Choir with brass accompaniment by part of Andy Hummel's Kingston High School band.

Tickets are now available at a special subscription price for the two-concert series. All advance sales will be on a series subscription basis. Flyers describing the two concerts and ticket order forms may be obtained at the following locations in Kingston: Abrams Music Store, Kingston Music Center and all three locations, of the Kingston Trust Company. In Saugerties, they may be picked up at the Bobby Farris Music Store, and in Woodstock at Sound-In. Ticket orders must be received by April 1 to allow time for tickets to be sent by return mail. Proceeds from admissions to the two concerts will go towards expenses. For further information, ticket chairman Bill Brandt of Woodstock, or concert chairman Al Plonsky of Kingston may be contacted.

Meditation, Art Show at New Paltz

NEW PALTZ — "Meditation and Modern Art: Saying the Unspeakable and Unsayable" is the title of a slide show and lecture being presented in New Paltz this weekend. Charles Stein and Carlene Meeker will offer the program Sunday, March 14 at 4 p.m. at the Dancing Theater, North Front Street. The program is supported in part by a grant from the New York State Council on the Arts, and a small donation will be asked at the door.

During one portion of the program, the audience will be encouraged to participate in

"meditating" slides of the art works of Kandinsky, Klee, Dali, Newman and others.

Sponsoring the lecture and slide show is Open Studio, a Paltz based organization. Poet-photographer Stein is the author of several books of poetry; has taught at various universities, institutes and colleges. Painter-illustrator Carlene Meeker has been an assistant and curator for artist Roy Lichtenstein; is currently associated with a Soho art gallery in New York City. Their Sunday afternoon program is open to the public.

Emphasis Is Placed On the Individual

ROSENDALE — A Catholic school is free to innovate and St. Peter's School, Rosendale, has exercised that option in recent years to greatly expand its program. After many years of service to the community, the school's program was successfully redesigned and faculty changes were made.

Emphasis on individualized instruction at St. Peter's, along with other changes, has resulted in increased enrollment to a substantial degree since the fall of 1974.

Now involved in preparation for the 1976-77 school term, the Rosendale school announces that anyone interested in registering a child for that term should call the school office for details as soon as possible. In connection with that announcement, the principal's office notes there are still some openings left in grades kindergarten through eighth for the upcoming school term.

Paltz LWV

NEW PALTZ — "Does Our Property Belong to Us" or "Land Use, Whose Responsibility?" will be the topic of the Tuesday, March 16, public meeting held by the League of Women Voters of New Paltz. The meeting, scheduled for 8 o'clock, will be held at the Inter-County Savings Bank. Leaders will be Mary Ellen Soghoian, Helen Osburg and Carol Roper.

Guest speaker for the event will be the Rev. M. Wesley Wales, executive director of Seaway Youth for Christ, Ogdensburg.

Women's Year . . . A DCC Symposium

POUGHKEEPSIE — "Woman: Her Infinite Variety" is the topic of a day-long symposium slated Saturday, March 13 at Dutchess Community College. The conference, the second observance on campus of International Women's Year, will include four major workshops and an address by Jenny Farley, director of Women's Studies at Cornell University.

The event is a sequel to an earlier program this year which explored the variety of alternatives available to women today under the title, "Free to Choose." Ms. Farley's address this Saturday will be entitled, "Women in 1976: Digging In."

Reservations for the symposium should be made immediately with the College's Office of Community Services. A modest fee for the day covers workshop materials and lunch. Day-Care services will be available for those who wish to have children cared for while they attend the conference.

Workshops, which will begin in Dutchess Hall at 9:30 a.m., will feature discussions on "The Single Woman," "Sexism and Religion," "The Emerging Self," and "Two-Score-Plus." Also on the day's program will be a dramatic presentation by Poughkeepsie's Community Experimental Repertory Theatre of Edgar Lee Master's "Spoon River Anthology," and a selection of original poetry readings, entitled "Our Own Company."

Ms. Farley's keynote address will follow a luncheon break in the new cafeteria building on campus.

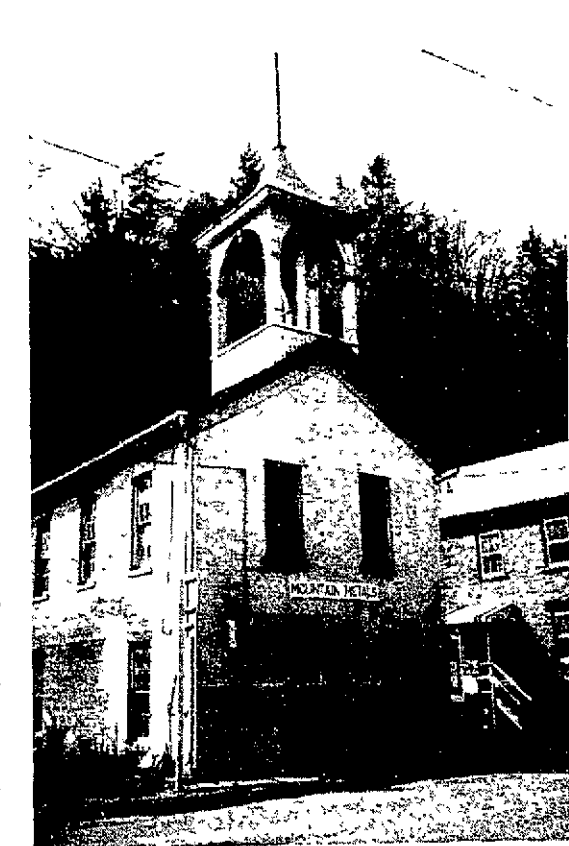

The four workshops listed above will be repeated during the afternoon session. Among topics to be discussed during both morning and afternoon workshops will be the concerns of women living alone.

Both panel discussion and audience participation will be emphasized at all workshops. The "Single Woman" sessions will focus on internal and external forces which both prevent and encourage women in preparing for autonomy. "Sexism and Religion" will explore the implications of sexism in religion and current controversies over women's role in today's churches. Panelists from Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths will discuss the various ways religion has influenced women's lives, and topical materials and bibliographies will be available.

"The Emerging Self" panel will concentrate on how women can begin to attend more to their own needs as evolving individuals without risk to present relationships that are important to them. Focus will be on the variety of resources available to assist women in determining their own direction for personal discovery and growth.

The "Two-Score-Plus" workshop will provide information on the decision making process for mature women; will focus on the "re-tooling" necessary when children have left the home and new skills and interests must be developed.

The DCC symposium is scheduled to end by 3:30 p.m. Saturday.

Mountain Metals . . . Spring Classes

KINGSTON — March 20th is the first day of spring and also the first day of classes at Mountain Metals, a Kingston crafts workshop. The courses being offered include Pewter Casting, Stained Glass and Jewelry Casting. Open house is planned Saturday from 10 to 1.

Mountain Metals Studio is located on Route 213 at the end of Wilbur Avenue, housed in a 100 year old firehouse, formerly Twaalfskill Hose Company No. 5. Much work has been done to restore this fine building. The school is partially funded by a $600 grant from America, the Beautiful Fund of New York, Inc.

All courses are especially designed for the beginner.

Pewter casting involves the making of small objects such as belt buckles, figures, candle-holders and the like, from wax. The wax form is then gravity cast in plaster molds with pewter.

Stained Glass, taught by Al Tirella of Sunlight Studios, includes instruction in the making of windows, small containers, mirrors.

Jewelry Casting of rings, necklaces, figurines in bronze, silver, pewter or gold will be done with the aid of a centrifuge using the lost wax process.

Each class meets once a week for three hours. All tools and materials except precious metals are supplied free. A tuition fee for each course, lasting four weeks, is being charged.

The Racquet Squad

Barbershop quartets are often organized under unusual circumstances. The Racquet Squad has such a history. The group organized in 1966 for the express purpose of playing a weekly game of tennis. However, since all four members were veteran barbershoppers, it wasn't long before they were singing up a storm in places other than locker room showers. The quartet, which includes Tom LaMotte, tenor; Dave Frankland, lead; Dave Schuman, baritone; Ralph Brandt, bass, will be featured in "Barbershop USA," a production by Colonial City Chapter, Sweet Adelines Inc. The musical is slated for Saturday at 8 p.m. at M. Clifford Miller Jr. High School in Lake Katrine. Tickets are available from chorus members or Abrams Music Store in Kingston.

John Burroughs Field Trip Set

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON — Members of the John Burroughs Natural History Society will have a field trip to Cruger's Island Sunday, March 14, to observe waterfowl and other spring migrants along the Hudson River. Leader will be Dennis Alwon of the John Burroughs Society.

Interested persons should meet at 7:30 a.m. at Whaleback Inn on Route 9G near Bard College. (From Kingston, east across the Rhinecliff Bridge, left at Route 9G, and proceed a few miles to the Whaleback Inn.)

On Wednesday, March 17, members of the John Burroughs Natural History Society will have their regular meeting at the Inter-County Savings Bank in New Paltz. The trustees will meet at 7 p.m. and the regular business meeting will begin at 8 p.m.

Dr. Heinz Meng of New Paltz will present an illustrated talk on the release and behavior of three young Peregrine Falcons. These captive bred falcons were released in the Shawangunk Mountains in 1975 learned to fly well, started catching their own prey, and eventually migrated south in September. This promises to be an interesting program. Members are urged to attend and to bring their friends. Guests are welcome.

Annual Ring Dance At Rondout Valley

KYSERIKE — The annual ring dance of the junior class at Rondout Valley High School will be held in the high school cafeteria from 8-12 p.m. on Saturday, March 13.

The Electra Sound, a duo of professional disc jockeys, will provide music for juniors and their dates.

Julie Decker is in charge of entertainment, Valerie Gladstone of decorations and Cindy Downs of food.

Whitehead Is Guest

WEST POINT — William Whitehead, director of music at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church in New York City, will present the opening program of the Cadet Chapel Recital series on Sunday, March 14, beginning at 3:30 p.m.

Whitehead, a graduate of the Curtis Institute of Music and a member of the faculty at Mannes College, was the first organist to win the Young Artist Award of the Philadelphia Orchestra.

The public is invited. Admission is free, but voluntary contributions are welcome.

The monthly recital series continues through June. The next is scheduled for Sunday, April 4.

RVHS Concert Set

Jazz Ensemble At Paltz Event

NEW PALTZ — If you remember Glenn Miller's "Little Brown Jug" or recall dancing to "A String of Pearls," you'll enjoy the concert this weekend at the New Paltz High School auditorium, South Putt Corners Road, in college town.

A fund raising event for the Elting Memorial Library of Paltz (the building fund seeks $95,000 for an addition to the library), the concert will feature the Dutchess Community College Jazz Ensemble this Sunday, March 14 at 2 p.m.

The Jazz Ensemble is a big group — 18 in all — which features original arrangements used by the bands of the "Big Band Era." The group was formed in 1970 by Roger Thorpe, DCC associate professor of music. A native of Gardiner and a graduate of New Paltz schools, he plays a scintillating trumpet, has performed professionally with the Glenn Miller, Woody Herman and Les and Larry Elgart Bands.

All solos in Sunday's concert, many by Thorpe himself, will also be the original arrangements as performed when the popular songs were first introduced long ago. It promises to be an afternoon of nostalgia, as well as an event aimed at stimulating enjoyment and excitement. And, every seat filled will help the library's building fund grow. So, if you have not already secured tickets in advance, plan to go Sunday and purchase your ducats at the door.

Fishkill Antiques

FISHKILL — The fifth annual antiques show and sale, under the management of Antique Decor Promotions of Brewster, will be held in the Holiday Inn Fishkill Saturday and Sunday, March 13 and 14.

Hours are 1-10 p.m. Saturday and noon-6 p.m. Sunday. Several states will be represented, along with many local antiques dealers, displaying and offering for sale antique items ranging from postal cards to furniture and decorative accessories.

Of special interest this year will be a collection of 19th century steel engravings of Revolutionary War events, an American flag with 34 stars, various paintings and prints depicting the Hudson River, a collection of antique dolls and related memorabilia, and many fine examples of rare Tiffany pieces.

The Holiday Inn is located on Route 9 at Exit 13 of Interstate Route 84. Parking is free and there is a restaurant on the premises.

Streakers, Streakers

NEW PALTZ — Streakers in the Sky, a program devoted to meteors and comets, will be offered at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, March 13, in the New Paltz Planetarium. Tickets are available at the SUB Book Store.

The program will be repeated at 2:30 p.m. on Sunday, March 14.

At 7:30 p.m. and again at 10 p.m. Sunday, a film, Forbidden Planet, will be shown in the main building auditorium. A 1956 psychological science fiction drama involving the survival of a group of earthlings, it is accompanied by a short film, Shadow of an Apple. Admission is free.

Teahouse Tonight

WOODSTOCK — The Woodstock Women's Center will present actress and musician Pamyelle Greinke in "Woman Problem: A Theatrical Assault," tonight beginning at 8:30 p.m.

This is the third in a series of Friday night teahouses at the center this spring.

Ms. Greinke, a New York State resident for the past 10 years, put together the collage of music, history and poetry during the early 1970's, when the women's liberation movement was beginning to become public.

The new exhibit of "People Pictures" by photographers Iris Greenberg and Gail Slotwinsky, which opened at the center last weekend, will continue Saturday and Sunday, March 13 and 14, from 2-6 p.m. Refreshments will be available, and the exhibit is open to the general public.

Meeting Slated

TILLSON — The Rosendale - Tillson Post 1219 will hold a special organizational meeting on Sunday, March 14 at 2 p.m. at the Legion Hall in Tillson.

Plans for the Bicentennial celebration to be held on June 12 and 13 will be formulated at this time. All organizations within the Town of Rosendale are asked to send a representative to this meeting.

St. John Dinner

SAUGERTIES — The Parish of Saint John the Evangelist Church, Route 212, Saugerties, will serve a corned beef and cabbage dinner, complete with draft beer and setups, on Saturday, March 13, from 8-9:30 p.m. Music for dancing will be provided by Peter Ferraro and his Orchestra, featuring vocalist Bobby Farris. We Overlook The 'Real People'

A lot of people are so busy watching and listening to the presidential candidates, they overlook the real people who could make the difference. Show business personalities.

It's simply a matter of scoring. To date, on the Democratic side Jimmy Carter has the endorsement of the Marshall Tucker band and Gregg Allman. Since Gregg is married to Cher, it could mean the entire block of "navel" votes could go to Carter.

Mo Udall has Linda Ronstadt as a supporter and Fred Harris lists Harry Chapin, Arlo Guthrie, Pete Seeger and Tom Paxton behind him. George Wallace is claiming a large segment of country music performers.

On the Republican side of the ledger, Ronald Reagan hopes to net Pat Boone. Gerald Ford is still doing a single.

The Democrats seem to have captured the lion's share of tennis players (which could make a difference at the convention) but have only one tap dancer (Shirley MacLaine).

The Republicans, however, have several blockbusters, Sammy Davis, Jr., Pearl Bailey and John Wayne, who have been known to effect a landslide victory.

Still confused and wondering who to watch in the forthcoming election year?

Watch Rich Little. Rich is no fool. He's not going to align himself with any candidate whose voice he can't do.

Watch Jeanne Dixon. She's another one who, in her business, can't afford to endorse a "loser."

Watch Bob Hope. As yet, he's uncommitted, but you can bet he won't play footsies with a "ski" man even if he has to nominate Jack Nicklaus himself.

Paul Newman. Some people question how much effect a sex symbol will have on the voting public. I can only tell you Paul Newman supported Humphrey in 1968. In 1972, I voted for Humphrey and he wasn't even running.

Watch for the uncommitted vote. There are 97 per cent of the entertainers in Las Vegas, Hollywood, Nashville and New York who are still on the fence.

My husband refutes my theory; he says people listen to

Fertility Determined By Age

DEAR DR. LAMB — My sister-in-law reads your column faithfully. She says that it is possible for a woman of age 60 to become pregnant if precautions aren't taken. I disagree with her. She will look for your answer.

DEAR READER — You have a 99.9 per cent chance of being right, maybe even greater. Documented pregnancy after the age of 56 has never been reported.

In the past decade there has been some confusion regarding menstrual periods and fertility. Women who have been taking sequential birth control pills and interrupt the medicine monthly for artificial menstruation will continue to have this response as long as they take these pills and follow the regime.

The hormones build up the lining of the uterus (womb) in the first part of the month and when they are stopped the lining is shed. This "period" is induced artificially by hormones and is unrelated to the ovaries. Therefore the continuation of monthly bleeding with such a treatment regimen is unrelated to the ability of a woman to get pregnant. For information about menopause send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 5-12, Menopause. Enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Consumers Get Help

NEW YORK CITY — Consumers served by the Poughkeepsie office of the New York State Department of Law received $323,274 in restitution recovered for them during 1975, Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz announced today.

Recoveries topped the $254,000 recovered in 1974 by the Poughkeepsie office by almost $70,000. Approximately $30,000 of the 1975 recoveries was in security deposits for tenants in two large apartment complexes.

The Poughkeepsie office received 2,487 new complaints and closed out 2,554 complaint files for the calendar year 1975, Lefkowitz said.

Coping

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: This is my first "Dear Abby" letter, and I'm counting on your help.

Our son, who is almost 3, is about to drive me crazy with wetting his pants. I realize that little boys do have their accidents, but surely not all the time!

Abby, we've tried whipping him, shaming him and even keeping him from going hunting with his Daddy (which he loves to do) until he quits wetting his pants and starts acting like a big boy.

Nothing we do seems to help one bit. I'll be having our second child soon, and I would give anything for our first child to be potty-trained once and for all. Please suggest something.

EXHAUSTED MOTHER

DEAR EXHAUSTED: Whipping and shaming your child is exactly what you should NOT do! Your pediatrician is the one who is qualified to advise you. Ask him today. Your son may have a physical problem that needs treating.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to the same man for 30 years. When he picked a wife, he said he wanted a church-going girl who didn't smoke or dance—one who was quiet, modest and not sexy.

I was that girl. I gave him two children who are both married. Now my husband has decided that he no longer loves me, and he's taken up with a younger woman who is sexy and can "turn him on." He doesn't care if she smokes or drinks, either.

Behind my back, he had divorce papers served on me. He never let me work because he wanted me to stay home and be a full-time wife and mother, so I have no skills. I don't want a divorce and am contesting it. I left my home and am living with my daughter. I attend church regularly.

The lawyers say we could live separately, and come and go as we please, but that's against my way of life. I don't believe in divorce, and I still love him, regardless. What is your advice? We are both 50.

MARRIED FOR LIFE

DEAR MARRIED: You may prevent your husband from getting a divorce, but you can't force him to live with you or to love you. Perhaps if you hang on long enough, he'll change his mind and return to you, but you have no guarantees.

In the meantime, find something constructive to do. Go back to school or get involved in civic and volunteer work. Good things are more apt to happen to people who forget themselves and think of others. Try it. It works!

DEAR ABBY: Please help me. I just love to get a man who's hard to get, but after I get him, I lose all interest in him.

Then when he loses all interest in me, I start getting interested in him all over again.

I really don't do this on purpose, Abby, but it has happened so many times there must be a reason for it. Can you explain it?

GOING IN CIRCLES

DEAR GOING: You aren't ready for a serious commitment yet. You enjoy the excitement of the chase, but you don't really want the prize. (P.S. It's typical of adolescent behavior, but some grownups never outgrow it.)

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

SPORTS TODAY Seaver Wants to Be a Met, But . . .

Jack Nicklaus watches iron shot head for green.

What Bad Year?, Asks Gary Player

MIAMI (UPI) — Gary Player didn't win a tournament on the PGA tour last year and — in his good-natured way — is getting a little tired of hearing about it.

"When you think that I won $125,000 last year, well, I think that's pretty good," he said.

The South African superstar made his complaint after shooting a 69 Thursday in the first round of the $200,000 Doral Open Golf Tournament. He is tied with Jack Nicklaus and eight other golfers three shots behind co-leaders Hubert Green and Ben Crenshaw going into today's second round.

Player says he feels he has to go home once in a while to see his family and also that he is obligated to play in some tournaments overseas.

"Everybody says I had a bad year last year but they don't understand how hard it is to jump in and out, jump in and out," he said.

He won $74,000 on the U.S. tour last year and added another $50,000 in foreign events.

"If I could have stayed on the tour and played almost every tournament here last year, I think I could have doubled or even tripled my money. In fact, I'm sure I could have tripled it," said the muscular Player who was dressed in a white golf shirt, white slacks, white socks and white shoes.

"When I go home, I don't practice, because I've been away for six weeks and I want to spend the time with my family," he said.

With his frequent trips home to South Africa, 10,000 miles away from here, and journeys to international tournaments, Player says he has covered more miles than any other athlete in history.

"It's well over 4 million miles and by the end of this year it'll be close to 5 million," he said.

The 39-year-old Player said he was pleased with his putting Thursday which resulted in his first sub-70 round since he started playing the Doral "Blue Monster" Course in 1962.

"I'm putting extremely well," he said. "But I didn't play all that well from tee to green. I hit a few hooky shots."

Crenshaw, who seems to be finally reaching the plateau predicted for him when he started on the tour in 1973, said he wasn't playing quite as well as he did when he won the Bing Crosby tournament and the Hawaiian Open earlier this year.

Crenshaw, who had only one previous win on the tour, credited his 1976 surge to advice from his father.

"He helped me on my setup (stance) and got me on the right track," the 24-year-old golfer said.

Green said he picked out a new three wood from his stock of new clubs after he missed the cut at Orlando last week and credited the club for an eagle-three on the 10th hole.

He used it for his second shot and it came to rest just four feet from the hole.

"I haven't been hitting my three woods this year and when that shot hit the green, it scared me to death," he grinned.

He said he hoped he was pulling out of a slump that as plagued him since he won the Southern Open last fall.

"It almost seemed like I made more birdies today than I made all year," he said. "It feels good to have a good round under my belt for a change."

Nicklaus bogeyed the first and third holes — both par fives — and he blamed his problems on his early tee-off time of 8 a.m.

"I was playing like I was expecting to wake up at any time," he said.

Mueller Leads

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Craig Mueller held a 14 pin edge today over Louie Moore for the lead in the $65,000 New Orleans Open bowling tournament.

Mueller's pinfall Thursday for 26 games was 5,644 on 6,494 actual pins spilled, a 211 average and 150 bonus pins for his 5-3 match play record.

Moore, of Columbus, Ohio, was at 5,630 followed by Bill Beach, Sharon, Pa., 5,602; Bobby Jacks, New Orleans, 5,600; and Jim Maxey, Atlanta, 5,586. Mueller, of Union, N.J., was seeking his first Professional Bowlers Association title.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The only thing that satisfies the ego more than being Number One is being able to prove it.

That's what makes Hank Aaron feel so good.

He can prove he's the top salary-earner in the majors simply by showing you his bimonthly paycheck. As a designated hitter for the Milwaukee Brewers, the 42-year-old home run record-holder will get $240,000 from them this year. That's $40,000 more than Jerry Ford gets for running the country, and please, no more jokes about which one had the better year. Neither did.

Without any fringe benefits thrown in, for pure salary alone, here's what baseball's pecking order looks like:

Hank Aaron $240,000, Richie Allen $225,000, Johnny Bench $200,000, Joe Morgan $200,000, Pete Rose $190,000, Lou Brock $175,000, Carl Yastrzemski $165,000, Steve Carlton $165,000, Catfish Hunter $150,000, George Scott $150,000, Nolan Ryan $150,000, Bobby Bonds $150,000 and George Scott $150,000.

One player is missing from that list and that's Tom Seaver, who made $170,000 with the Mets last year. That would put him number seven on the list between Brock and Yastrzemski.

The Mets talked salary with Seaver for this year at the end of last season, but he told them he was in no great hurry, he'd rather wait. He could afford to in view of the fact he was the National League's biggest winner with 22 victories, he struck out 243 batters, making him the leader in that department also, and he set a major league record by striking out more than 200 for the eighth straight season.

One other little item. He won the Cy Young Award for the third time and the only other pitcher who ever did that was Sandy Koufax way back when there were only 10 teams in each league. That "little" item amounts to a sure ticket for Seaver to the Hall of Fame in Cooperstown after he's finished pitching.

Occasionally during the past few years, some people would

Miller: Season May Be Delayed

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — Baseball club owners and Major League Players Association executive director Marvin Miller go back to the negotiating table today to try to get talks off dead center and clear the way for the opening of the 1976 season on schedule.

But Miller and several players think the season is in danger of being delayed.

About 40 players, including the members of the executive board of the players' union, met for more than two hours Thursday with the owner's players relations committee and Miller described the non-negotiating discussions as "the same old hash."

Today's meeting will be a negotiating session and Miller said he was "almost certain" the talks would continue through the weekend.

The players met earlier Thursday for more than two and one half hours to discuss the situation and unanimously adopted a resolution criticizing the owners, Miller said.

Mr. and Mrs. Bench Splitting?

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Is the celebrated marriage between Cincinnati Reds star Johnny Bench and model Vickie Chesser near the end?

Bench, who took the blonde beauty as his bride last Feb. 21 after a whirlwind courtship, said Thursday night "I'll have something to say about it tomorrow."

Bench first saw Vickie on television as the Ultra-Brite "Sex Appeal" girl and had a mutual friend arrange a blind date. It was only 24 days later the couple announced their plans to be married.

"We consider the owners' lockout of spring training camps to be not only destructive to good faith negotiations but also destructive to the image of baseball," the players' resolution said.

"It is an attempt to intimidate the players rather than negotiate and it will not succeed," the players said.

Miller said the resolution was not read to the owners' committee but said he did give it the "gist" of the resolution.

Miller said Ed Fitzgerald, chairman of the Milwaukee Brewers and a member of the owners' committee, admitted during Thursday's session that the lockout was a pressure tactic.

"It was admitted here today they feel if they open the season they don't have a bargaining position, therefore it is to pressure the players. It is a pressure tactic pure and simple," Miller said.

Miller said the primary purpose of Thursday's meeting was to clarify the players' position and a spokesman for the owners said it was to outline the problems to the players and to build some communications.

Miller said the owners feel the season can open as scheduled but said "as time passes it gets more and more doubtful. There's an awful lot to do in a short time."

Cincinnati Reds catcher Johnny Bench said he didn't see how spring training camps can be open before the middle of next week, if then, and said the question of retroactivity was a major "logjam."

That issue revolves around whether or not any contract negotiated by the union would supercede those players might now be under. More than 160 players are now playing out their option year, which means they become free agents at the end of the 1976 season.

Recent federal court decisions have ruled that a player becomes a free agent after he completes the length of his contract, plus the option year.

There is a strong probability any new union contract would provide a player stay with a team a given time, possibly five or six years, then play out one option year before becoming a free agent.

Players now in their option year are insisting their current contracts be honored and Los Angeles Dodger pitcher Mike Marshall said Thursday he would sue the players association if it negotiated that right away.

"I don't want to hurt any other player, but I feel I should protect the rights given me by Franklin Delano Roosevelt," Marshall told newsmen as he left the meeting early to catch a plane. He did not elaborate.

"We will not strip the players of their rights in any contract," Miller said.

argue over who was the best pitcher in baseball. Now nobody does. There no longer is any argument over who is the best pitcher in baseball. Everybody knows Tom Seaver is, and he knows it, too, because he doesn't exactly live in a vacuum.

Now he checks that money list above and comes away with the distinct feeling something isn't right. He hasn't forgotten how Catfish Hunter got $3 million for signing with the Yankees a year ago as a free agent and now with the new rulings on the reserve clause and free agency staring every player in the face, he easily imagines how much he could get if he were a free agent.

But he's not. He still belongs to the Mets and will have to negotiate his contract with them unless he's traded.

They ask him for a figure. He gives them one—$826,000 over three years. That works out to $275,000 a year, a figure that would jump Seaver over Hank Aaron and make him the biggest salary earner in baseball.

The Mets get upset. Seaver is taking advantage of the situation, they feel. Don Grant, the club's board chairman, and Joe McDonald, the general manager, say if Seaver is unhappy with the Mets and wants to be traded, they'll trade him.

"I'm sure they mean it," Tom Seaver said Thursday from Tampa, Fla.

"I don't want to be traded," added the Mets' 31-year-old ace. "I told them that last year, but I'm not coming to them with my hat in my hand."

Seaver doesn't think he's coming at the Mets with any gun, either.

He talks about what some other players are getting, and he doesn't mention any names but it's obvious he hasn't forgotten the $3 million the Yankees gave Catfish Hunter.

"If another player makes X amount of dollars," he says, "should I cover my eyes and pay no attention to that whatsoever. Should I humble myself and say 'oh, no, I don't want the money, let the ball club keep it.' What am I supposed to do, give it the old 'gee, whiz, gang,' and go happily on my way? I'm not in that boat."

Seaver says he has had a happy 10-year association with the Mets, hopes it will continue and believes it will.

"I don't want to leave New York," he says, "but I don't want to stay in New York knowing I could go somewhere else and make more money."

He immediately adds, "somewhere else" could be New York as well.

If you need that translated, Seaver is referring to the Yankees. Imagine Tom Seaver and Catfish Hunter on the same pitching staff. A lot of things would have to happen for that to come about. Chances are they won't.

The odds are Tom Seaver will sign with the Mets again, possibly for somewhere between what Hank Aaron and Richie Allen are getting.

That'll make him number two on the list.

Dalessio Thinks He's Had Enough

By Steve Kane

ELLENVILLE—After two stints as the varsity basketball coach at Ellenville High School, Vic Dalessio said he thinks he's had enough.

"I don't think I'll be around next year," Dalessio said Thursday. "I haven't submitted a resignation—I may not even do that. I might just not apply for the position next year."

Dalessio expressed some disenchantment with the situation at Ellenville during the year, and he reiterated those feelings after his term completed a 6-11 season.

"I've stepped back and reassessed my own feelings, and it seems like I'm not making the progress I should," he said. "It's the lack of respect that hurts most. I've loved the game all my life, and I still love it, but I'm a teacher first, and if you can't teach, you're not successful. I don't think the kids want it. . . I'm not getting the feedback from them that I should."

Though a part of Ellenville's record can be excused for its presence in the same division as strong teams from Liberty, Fallsburgh and Marlboro, there is still the general opinion that Ellenville did not play up to its potential this year. Dalessio felt the attitude his team displayed contributed to that.

"I wouldn't mind losing if everybody gave a hundred per cent and we just lost to better teams, but it's not like that. There is no self pride and no respect for the system. After a while it gets to you," he said.

Dalessio detailed some incidents dating back to the summer that pointed up the apathy he ran against. One was an indoor summer league that folded for lack of participants; another was a minisule turnout at a breakfast that had St. John's University coach Lou Carnesecca as its speaker.

"Ellenville is a funny place," he said.

Marlboro Gains 'B' Finals

MARLBORO—Marlboro High made its way into the finals of the Class B Section Nine basketball tournament at Orange County Community College Thursday night, and the thing most noticeable about the Dukes' victory over Albertus-Magnus was the ease with which it was accomplished.

Nysack, 75-68 to gain a berth in the Class A finals opposite top seeded Liberty.

Monroe dominated the backboards, taking down 14 rebounds for the Dukes. He also threw in ten of his game high 19 points in the second period to help Marlboro shake off a slow start and leave Albertus-Magnus eight points behind at halftime.

Duke coach Joe Ciampi was satisfied with his team's execution at both ends of the court. He had reason to be. The 39 points Albertus-face James O'Neill in the 6:30 p.m. contest, and Liberty will take on Washingtonville at 8:15 p.m.

Ali-Young Set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Muhammad Ali, providing a bicentennial year touch for boxing, has decided to return home again to defend his heavyweight crown against third-ranked Jimmy Young in the nation's capital April 30.

Actually, the scheduled 15-rounder will be fought at the Capital Centre on the outskirts of Washington in Largo, Md. It will be televised nationally for home viewing and will be Ali's first ring appearance in the continental United States since his successful defense of the championship against Ron Lyle in Las Vegas last summer. In recent years, he has fought at such far-flung sites as Zaire, Manila, Malaysia and Puerto Rico.

Ali's bout with Young was announced by Abe Pollin, chairman of the board of the Capital Centre, who will be promoting the fight with Don King, the New Yorker who has arranged most of the champion's recent title matches.

Young, whose biggest win was a victory over Lyle in a 10-rounder, boasts a record of 16 wins, four losses and two draws. Ali has won eight straight against sometimes less than impressive opposition since losing to Ken Norton on March 31, 1973.

It will be the first heavyweight bout in the Washington area since Joe Louis knocked out Buddy Baer in the old Griffith Stadium on March 31, 1941. It also will accomplish a boyhood ambition for Pollin, who saw the Louis-Baer fight as a 17-year-old high school youth and has wanted to bring another title fight back to the nation's capital.

Pollin told newsmen the minimum guarantee for Ali would be worked out by King and the champion.

Hopewell Hopeful

Alabama and North Carolina Have Stumbled Into No-Man's Land

By UPI

Alabama and North Carolina, one by winning and the other by losing, each stumbled into the no-man's land of the NCAA battle which begins Saturday.

Sixth-ranked North Carolina was upset by Virginia in the Atlantic Coast Conference and, as a result, was placed in the Midwest region where top-ranked Indiana and No. 2 Marquette stand as formidable obstacles to the Tar Heels and the NCAA's final round of four in Philadelphia.

Even worse for seventh-ranked Alabama was the fact the Crimson Tide put itself in the same unenviable position as North Carolina by winning the Southeastern Conference title. If the Crimson Tide had not beaten Vanderbilt in overtime Monday, Alabama would have been placed in the Eastern region with an easier path to Philadelphia.

Complicating matters, North Carolina and Alabama face each other at Dayton, Ohio, in top matchup of Saturday's first round. For the survivor, Indiana and Marquette stand next in the line.

The undefeated Hoosiers, led by Scott May and Kent Benson, face St. John's at South Bend, Ind. Indiana defeated the Redmen 76-69 earlier this season to win the Holiday Festival tournament in New York, where St. John's enjoyed the support of a large partisan crowd.

Marquette, 25-1, takes a 21-game winning streak against Western Kentucky in the other half of the doubleheader at Dayton. The Warriors are looking ahead to a Midwest showdown with Indiana and Marquette Coach Al McGuire said, "I'd like to get at Indiana as soon as possible. The sooner the better. Too many things can happen in a tournament if you're looking ahead. Indiana's been close to getting beat a few times and I think they can be tightening some."

Indiana, however, is not the only undefeated team entering the tournament as third-ranked Rutgers carries a 28-0 record into post-season play. The Scarlet Knights meet New Jersey rival Princeton at Providence, R.I. Rutgers won an earlier game with Princeton this season, 72-65.

Defending champion UCLA makes its first NCAA tournament appearance under the guidance of Gene Bartow. The Bruins, who have won 10 of the last 12 NCAA titles, take a 23-4 mark into their first-round game against San Diego State in Eugene, Ore. Although their record falls short of their more spectacular seasons, the Bruins entered last year's tournament in much the same fashion and went on to win the title.

Fourth-ranked Nevada Las Vegas, which lost only once, faces Boise State in the second game at Eugene.

Eighth-ranked Notre Dame plays Metro Six champion Cincinnati at Lawrence, Kan., in one of the better matches of the day. The other games involving top 10 teams have ninth-ranked Michigan against Wichita State in Denton, Tex., and 10th-ranked Washington against Missouri at Lawrence, Kan.

Virginia, which upset North Carolina State, Maryland and North Carolina to win the ACC tournament last week, faces DePaul at Charlotte, N.C., and Tennessee, lucky to be edged out of the SEC crown by Alabama, faces Virginia Military in the opening game of that doubleheader.

Addison (Ad) Jones, the city's legendary Bowling Milkman and all-time No. 1 sponsor, remains a remarkably active octogenarian in behalf of the New York State Bowling Association championships.

After racking up considerable mileage, shoe leather and his own money, Jones has lined up 23 teams for the Kingston Night Program on May 16 in Albany. Mayor Frank Koenig is expected to accompany the Kingston delegation which will be greeted by the ABC's past president, Joseph Robellotto.

Kingston Bowling Association has pledged four teams, captained by Jack Spader, Ed Thomas, Vince Carpio and Joe Fautz.

Other: Kingston entries, with teams and captains: Adirondack Trailways, Tony Van Gonsic; Kingston Cablevision, Wayne Hommel; H&E Wolf Roofing, Hans Wolf; Fisher Home, Robert Nerone; Rondout Savings Bank, Gerry Kearney; The Jones Boys, Robert Shelighner; Tony Shell, Cottekill, Richard Buck.

Bob (Tall) Smith continues to hold firm as the Kingston area's scoring leader (730) but his average has shrunk (?) from 215 to 213 since the last ratings. He is still conceded a solid shot to erase Johnny Ferraro's all-time average mark of 209. Bill Vertetis is in second place with 720.

Joan Jameson, awaiting another child, leads the distaff side with 645, Barb Van Keuren is runnerup at 636. One change during the week saw Terry Becker moved into the No. 6 spot with a 629 in the Bowlerama Quads.

John Relyea and Roger Murray are tied with 289 solos. Art Schnall has 285. Tops among women are Sis Balash with 267 and Karen Tucker 266.

Tourney Dates for KBA

KINGSTON — Kingston Bowling Association has announced April 24-25 and May 1-2 dates for its annual championship tournament at Mid-City Lanes.

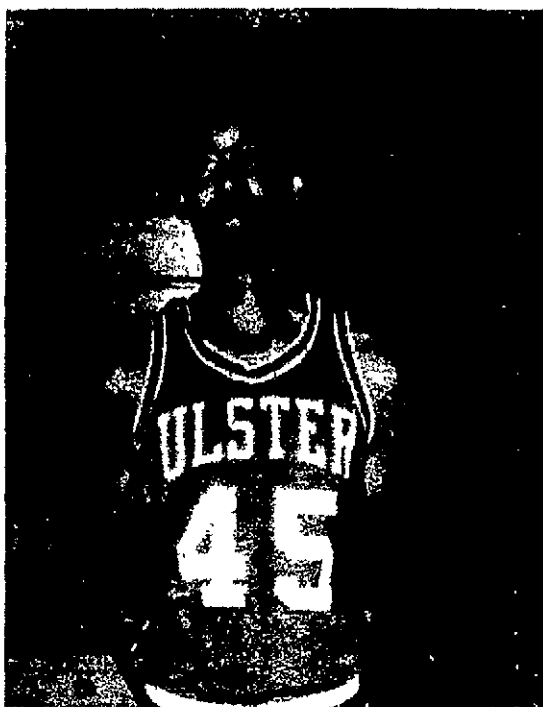

Tournament Manager Edmund Thomas said that entry blanks are available at the three local bowling association establishments. There is no change in entry fees of $30 for teams, $12 doubles and $6 singles. The all-events fee is $2 per bowler.

The team event is scheduled Saturday, April 24 and Sunday, May 2, with singles and doubles Sunday, April 25 and Saturday, May 1.

The KBA is projecting an estimated $4,500 prize list. The increase cost of bowling, Thomas said, has cut into the prize list but the KBA hopes to supplement its prize fund with proceeds of a special promotion to keep the prize on a par with other years.

Deadline for entries is April 20. There will be no extension of the deadline because of the short amount of time between the deadline and opening date of the tourney.

Joe McCall

Ulster's Joe McCall First Team All-MHC

MIDDLETOWN — Jewell Pendleton, the 6-5 center of the champion Westchester Community College Vikings, has been named Most Valuable Player to head the 1976 edition of the Mid Hudson Conference All Star Team.

Pendleton, who led the Vikings to a perfect 10-0 MHC season, is joined by first team selections Joe McCall of Ulster, Ed Dotts of Sullivan, Gary Ioria of Rockland, Steve Lewis of Orange and Chris McLaurin of Dutchess.

Picked for the second team were Ray Knox and Mike Lawrence of Westchester, Ray Younger of Ulster, Tony Michella of Rockland and Al Watson of Sullivan.

Selected by a vote of the conference's six coaches, Pendleton, a sophomore, averaged 13 points in MHC play. He also maintained an average of eight rebounds per contest and scored 26 points in a key win over Ulster the runnerup team, early in the season.

McCall, the Most Valuable Player in the recent Region XV tournament, led Ulster to second place in the MHC with losses only to Westchester. The 6-7 sophomore from Rondout Valley averaged 18 points and 14 rebounds while leading Ulster to a 17-11 season.

Bible Is Feature Of Bicentennial

RHINEBECK — A Bicentennial reenactment of the inauguration of President George Washington scheduled in Rhinebeck on March 20 will include the Bible upon which the first president of the United States took his oath of office.

The Bible will be used in the reenactment under the auspices of Rhinebeck Chapter Order of DeMolay through the consent of St. John's Lodge No. 1 A.Y.M., trustees of the historic Bible.

The famed Bible will be used in the Bicentennial ceremony marking the inauguration of President Washington by Chancellor of New York Robert R. Livingston, then a resident of Rhinebeck.

A Bicentennial parade will kick off the big day with units assembling at the Beekman Arms at 4 p.m. The inauguration Rites will follow at 5 p.m. at the Old Dutch Reformed Church in Rhinebeck, of which Livingston was a benefactor and parishioner. A commemorative dinner will follow at 6 p.m. at the Rhinebeck Masonic Temple.

All community organizations are being encouraged to participate in the Bicentennial parade, in an effort to make this a community project, through contact with DeWitt Gurnell, Town of Rhinebeck Historian.

The reenactment ceremony will be portrayed by the following: DeWitt Gurnell, Town of Rhinebeck Historian; and director of the Bicentennial activities of Rhinebeck as George Washington; Joseph Waters, Rhinebeck Justice of the Peace and President of the Rhinebeck Rotary as John Adams; Earl G. Howells, advisor of the Rhinebeck DeMolay as James Otis and Rick L. Williams, master counselor of the Four Rivers Region Order of DeMolay, and Past Master Councilor of Rhinebeck Chapter, as Robert R. Livingston.

Proceeds from the commemorative dinner will benefit Rhinebeck DeMolay's charitable and Bicentennial activities. Reservations for the dinner are available by mailing a check or money order to: DeMolay, P.O. Box 251, Rhinebeck, 12572.

Gurnell has been working with the DeMolay, in designating this event as Rhinebeck's most historical program for its celebration of the Bicentennial year, something not to be missed by anyone and to be witnessed by everyone.

Regional Energy Session Slated

MIDDLETOWN—A major Mid-Hudson regional conference on energy has been slated for Saturday, March 27 at Orange County Community College in Middletown, to focus attention on those energy-related issues which are particularly relevant to the Mid-Hudson Valley.

The conference has been organized through the efforts of the Multi-County Community Development Corporation, an energy and nutrition advocacy organization centered in Highland in conjunction with the Human Affairs Program at Cornell University. This regional conference on energy is viewed by its organizers as being one of the most significant symposiums on energy to have been planned for the Mid-Hudson region.

The day-long conference will be held from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

$18,000 Hospital Gift

ELLENVILLE — The Ellenville Hospital Auxiliary has received a gift of $18,000 in Israel Bonds from Mildred and Lou Resnick, it has been announced by Evelyn Greenberg, president of the hospital service organization.

The Resnicks who have been frequent and generous contributors to the hospital and the auxiliary chose to give $18,000 because it represents a thousand "chai" the Hebrew word for "life" and the representation of the number 18.

The gift was made in honor of the hospital's 10th birthday as a tribute to Florence and Irving Blickstein. "We were particularly pleased," the Resnicks said, "that the hospital Board of Directors chose to honor the Blicksteins at the annual dinner. We appreciate their steadfast and enthusiastic support of the hospital, their own generosity and that which they encourage from others, as well as their devoted friendship."

Legislature Approves Pension Investment

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — A bill approved by the legislature and forwarded to Gov. Hugh L. Carey would permit the investment of up to $1.1 billion in public pension reserves in a plan to assure $2.6 billion in long-term financing for a number of state agencies.

Legislative sources said $815 million of the retirement funds would be used in the final plan to salvage the agencies, which have hovered close to default for several months.

The scheme, still subject to top-secret negotiations between the governor's office and legislative leaders, also called for the infusion of $76.1 million in state money.

A key part of the plan was approved Thursday night by the Senate. It would create a three member board to oversee all future agency borrowing. It was approved with only a half-dozen dissenting votes and forwarded to the Assembly, which was expected to take up the package Monday.

Leaders hoped that the pension funds, state assumption of responsibility for less desirable programs, and creation of the board would reopen private money markets for the agencies.

The board would have the power to put a cap on so-called moral obligation borrowing, a device invented by former

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller to circumvent the need for voter approval of long term borrowing.

Comptroller Arthur Levitt, long a foe of what he termed "back door financing," had insisted on the cap on agency borrowing as a condition to the investment of pension funds to bail out the agencies.

Eleven major commercial banks had agreed to roll over $280 million in agency debts if certain conditions are met, Levitt had announced Wednesday.

Your Horoscope
By Jeanne Dixon

SATURDAY, MARCH 13
Your birthday today: Diversification is your key to success this year. Your work proceeds with an added creative quality or you move on to something else. Skill at presenting yourself favorably comes from current experience. Relationships develop complexities connected by fascinating threads. Today's natives have captivating personalities, and reformist ideas that aren't always pursued consistently.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Get out of set habits even if it means you temporarily have to skip regular chores. Creative or original work is needed. Get busy at it.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Local travel and errands compete with equally important communications that demand attention. By refurbishing your home you get better use out of it.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: The soft-sell, easygoing, sociable approach is favorable for organizing further ventures. Even partner's fantasies point out profitable facts.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Learn as much as you can about family history. Inventive hobbies pay off; skills you've gained help with current problems.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: You're at a personal peak, and have more leverage than usual. Go after what appeals to you. Chance circumstances get people favorably involved in your plans.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Don't explain what you hope to achieve. Enjoy the present status quo. It never quite comes back, but is affected by what you make of it now.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: A solution is in the offing, perhaps one you gave up on ever finding. It's a great day to resume broken ties, and for group reorganization.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: You finally hear favorable comment. Continue the practical approach in your job. Long-time friends egg you on, but offer little down-to-earth help.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Despite much planning, a last-minute check shows much is lacking. You are of enormous help to others if you realize their place in your program.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Partners come up with provocative ideas that don't fit in with existing projects. Make friends with people who would like to know you better.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Keep careful record of what you lend. New investments are feasible only if you completely understand them.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: You have the facilities, the know-how, and the cooperation needed. What you must put in is personal effort. Travel brings unexpected benefits.

Nuisance bid pays dividends

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Bobby Nail of Houston made one of the most successful nuisance bids of all time when playing for North

When Bobby bid five spades over South's four notrump he wasn't taking any real chance. He was sure they could make a heart slam and equally sure that no one was going to stop to double him at his real desperado bid.

Almost all experts have a way to handle Blackwood interference. The Jacoby method is to double the interference bid to show no aces, pass to show one ace and bid to show more than one ace.

The British pair may well have been playing that same system with the British North player concluding that his spade void was the same as an ace in view of Bobby's five-spade bid.

Whatever the reason the British arrived at the heart grand slam and to add insult to injury Bobby's partner looked at his ace of diamonds and doubled.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Ph.D.

LOCKER: (Q) Diana and I share a big locker at school, which we fixed up real nice last fall. We told Sue she could put some of her books in it because her locker is upstairs.

Now she has taken over the locker completely. It wouldn't be so bad if she were neat, but she is sloppy. We've asked her time and again to clean up her stuff but nothing happens.

We don't want to throw her out because we know she'd be hurt and maybe treat us like enemies. What else can we do?—In a Mess in Florida

(A) Very neatly type or print a set of rules for neatness and a limit on books and other items, for your locker. Paste the list of rules up on the inside of the door. Call Sue's attention to them. Tell her they must be adhered to.

Then if she keeps up her sloppy ways you will have just written reason to tell her she didn't shape up so she must ship out.

Don't be chicken about this. With a girl like Sue you have to be realistic.

HELPING: (Q) I have a real big problem. You see, my boy friend and I broke up and then got back together. He has been shooting up and wants me to help him stop. I really don't know how I can help him without falling to pieces. If you would please give me a little advice I would surely appreciate it.—Very Worried in Virginia

(A) Your best course is love and understanding and willingness to listen to his problems. You should also encourage him to talk to a school counselor, who could help him more than you can.

Under no circumstances join him in taking drugs of any kind. If he insists on this, let him go his own way.

Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P O Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Dr. Adams cannot send replies.

Seek Stocking-Masked Robber

By Matt Spirens
KINGSTON—Police are seeking a stocking-masked robber who confronted two female clerks at Stewart's Bread & Butter Shop on Albany Avenue with a sawed-off shotgun Thursday night and fled with some $47 in cash.
 The armed robbery occurred shortly before 11 p.m. City detectives said the thief fled on foot.
 The robber was described as a white male with dark complexion, about 6-feet tall, with a black full mustache. He wore a stocking mask with holes cut out for the eyes and mouth, detectives said, and a black checkered coat.
 The robber demanded that the two clerks, who were alone in the store at the time, hand over the money, which was placed in a paper bag. He pushed past a male customer just entering the store as he fled, police said. The customer called police when the clerks told him what had happened.

Dentist Charged

Saugerties Town Police early today charged Woodstock dentist Theodore Belfor, 34, of Glasco Turnpike with second degree burglary and third degree assault after he allegedly kicked in the door to a Blue Mountain Road home and punched the woman occupant in the face.
 Police did not identify the alleged victim, who they said knew Belfor, but explained that she was allegedly punched three times in the face and possibly sustained a broken nose.
 Belfor was released after posting $500 bail following the 2:40 a.m. incident.

Assault

Ellenville State Police on Thursday charged James Sheridan, 37, an employee at Lake Minnewaska with second degree assault in connection with an incident last Sunday.
 Authorities said that during a dispute with several teenagers over some property they claimed to have found lying at the side of the road on Lake Minnewaska property Sheridan allegedly swung the neck of a cello (not connected to the cello at the time) which smashed through the rear side window of the car the teenagers were riding in and struck one of the occupants in the face as he was eating a sandwich, knocking out all the teeth in one side of his mouth.

Concorde Challenge Brewing

NEW YORK (UPI)—Air France and British Airways, challenging the authority of New York and New Jersey, say they intend to begin federally approved Concorde supersonic flights to Kennedy Airport next month.
 But, the Port Authority of New York-New Jersey, which operates the airport, said Thursday it will use "every legal means" to bar the Concorde until completion of a six-month trial at three other airports.
 The airlines, citing authorization from Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr., sent a telegram to Port Authority Chairman William J. Ronan saying they intend to schedule flights into and out of Kennedy "beginning on or about April 10, 1976, and to initiate training flights next week."

Woodstock Clinic

WOODSTOCK—A clinic for immunization against polio, whooping cough, diphtheria, tetanus, measles and German measles will be conducted March 17 at the Woodstock Health Center, 8 Maple Lane, from 9:30 a.m. until 10:30. The clinic, conducted by the Ulster County Health Department, will be under the direction of Marilyn Mitchell. These preventive services are available for those age three months to 21 years.

Two Arrested

Following a call from an alert resident, Ulster County Sheriff's deputies and Shandaken Town Constables early today arrested two Sayville, L.I. residents, John Flynn, 16, and William Rome, 28, on charges of third degree burglary. Deputies said they were allegedly caught inside John's Sunoco Gas Station on Route 28 in Big Indian shortly after midnight. They were jailed in lieu of $2,500 bail each.

Minor Injury

Hurley State Police said today that one minor injury was reported Wednesday morning when a school bus carrying about 50 children slipped on its side on Route 28A in the Town of Olive. The bus had pulled to the side of the road to make room for an oncoming truck, went into a ditch and toppled over, police said. No tickets were issued. One 14-year-old complained of a bruise on the knee, authorities said.

Jewelry Taken

An as yet undetermined amount of jewelry was taken in a burglary at Lucci's Jewelers, 601 Broadway, sometime Wednesday night or early Thursday. City detectives said several showcases were ransacked. An inventory was underway today to determine exactly how much was taken.
